To Whom it May Concern:

I have just received and read the Letter from the Publisher of The Journal of Longevity.

According to the First Amendment to the Constitution, freedom of speech and/or choice is a cornerstone of our democracy.

Furthermore, because vetamins, minerals, and certain herbal formulas are designed, tested and proven to promote health & vitality, they certainly deserve as much protection under the First Amendment. The government allows citizens to assess the risks of tobacco and trusts them to make the right decisions. Similarly, it should allow them to access all other advertisements and make their own choices.

In closing, drugs on the street are illegal but technically so are the drugs that are in medication that the pharmacy companies sell for people.

Thank You and may I please hear from you?
