Dear Ms. Henney

Please prohibit livestock producers from adding medically important antibiotics to the feed of animals to promote their growth. New antibiotics drugs, such as Synercid, just approved by the FDA in September, are not always working. The bacteria are becoming immune. Part of the problem is the use of these antibiotics for livestock growth. Please encourage this practice to stop now, if not for the sake of our children, but the health and well being of all.

Regards,
Diana O'Connor
