Re: Good Housekeeping. Mar. 2000.

2536 '00 APR 16 P2:32

7/26/2000

I'm all for labelling!

Dear Ms. Jane,

I am one person who cannot take foods processed by irradiation, nor microwaved, nor genetically altered. I cannot use certain canning jars made today - blue ones (tinted) - because of it. I can usually tell when an item has stored such products, like the shelves & bins. I can tell if oregano in a pizza has been treated. I can tell if cat food (dry) has been treated, or even if it has been stored near central electric lines in a store supplying their computerized cash registers. I can tell if leather has dye that's been treated. I can't work on computers. Although I have the aptitude, I become ill from emanations from the screens. (My eyes change color, & I start to grow cancer at the diaphragm area).

98N-1038

C 5185

So - when I read an article saying all these things are relatively safe, I wonder who I am. I can't shop in stores with walk-in keeps, with metal detectors, or with large scale computerized cash registers. I can't eat candy bars that have been sitting near these cashier stations. I can't touch books or magazines there either. I can't make friends with or work with people who have eaten these things or who have worked on these jobs. I worked as a Word Processor for two years, & it nearly killed me. all jobs computer!

And - I don't know why. I'll never be able to work! All of these things land me in bed with heart problems, clammy sweats, & diarrhea. All cars, too!! No games or toys!!

I've never seen anything labelled. I've tossed out dollars. One doctor told me I'm one of six.

Terry Bruegger 11044 W. 3rd St. Oakland, WI. 54835

Bruegger
11066 W. 3rd St.
Exeland, WI
54835

21:32 07/26/00 EAU CLAIRE, WI 542

EXELAND
26
PM
2000
54835

Jane E. Henney
Parklawn Bldg. / Rm. 14-71
5600 Fishers Lane
Rockville, M.D. 20857.