Dear Commissioner Henney,

My family feels strongly that we must all do everything possible to prevent continuation of the cycle that gives up new and potent antibiotics to commercial (e.g. farming) uses only to find that we are attacked by resistant bacteria.

Some day science will fail to come up with the next super weapon. Survivors will not thank those who could have stopped this futile escalation. It seems some lesson should have been learned from the now-resistant TB revival. Now we have SYNERCID on the same road.

Please use your power to stop the use by livestock producers of medically valuable antibiotics added to the animal feed merely to produce growth and enhance their profits. The health of all of us including farmers and their children is at stake! Virginiamycin is risking lives.

Very truly yours,
Gisela R. Gall
(Mrs. D. M. Gall)
