Dear Ms. Henney:

I would like to encourage you to have the FDA to ban animal uses of growth-promoting antibiotics used in human medicine.

I'm amazed that the European Union is ahead of the U.S. on this issue. It seems clear that E.U. has had a great deal of success in restricting antibiotic use through their livestock producers, and yet the U.S. hasn't made a move in that direction. Our public health is to important for our (U.S.) unwillingness to tackle this issue.
