Dear Janet Henney, MD

I am writing re: the proposal to remove the warning on WOW products w/olestra.

I had a severe attack after eating WOW potatoe chips. I was at the emergency room & had to see my own doctor. I was out of work for one whole week and in severe pain for about 36 hours with no pain medication. I would not eat anything with olean in it if my life depended on it. I urge you not to remove the warning from olean products. I feel very strongly about this. I think the warning should be made bigger on the package & made even stronger. I understand there were many such occurances and it is very important to anyone that may have a reaction to it.

I feel very adamant about this issue.

Sincerely,

Lynette A. Gordon
