April 28, 2000

Janet Henney, M.D
Commissioner FDA
5600 Fishers Lane
Rockville, Md. 20857

Dear Dr. Henney,

I am writing regarding OLESTRA, Proctor + Gamble, and Frito Lay.

When potato chips made with OLESTRA, first came out, I bought one bag to try them.

It was the worst experience for me! Within one half hour, I had severe abdominal cramps (which I compare to having a baby)! Also diarrhea and a terrible taste in my mouth, which I attribute to the coating of greasy matter that remained in my mouth, after eating the product. Please do not eliminate the label notice stating "that it may cause abdominal cramping and loose stools."

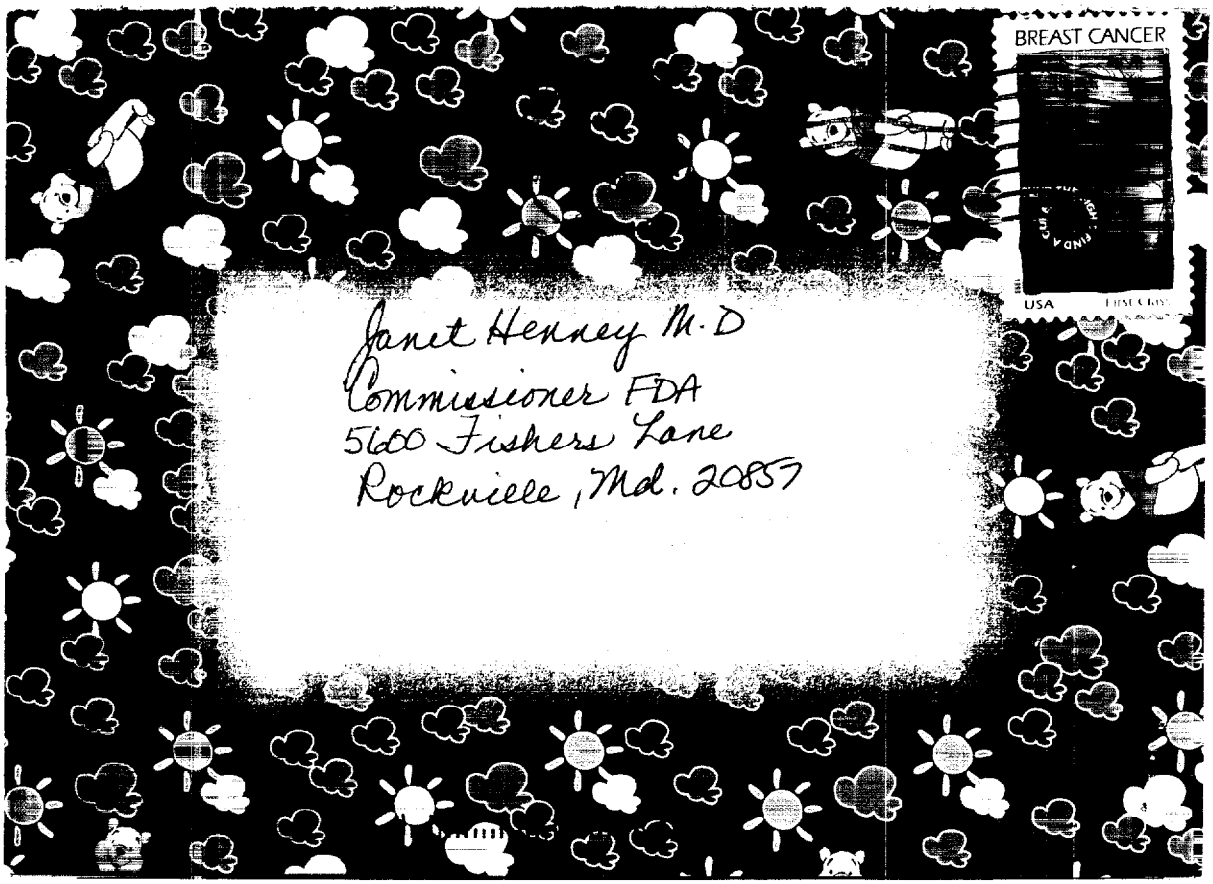
It would be an injustice to everyone who has had health problems from this product.

Sincerely,
Lorraine M. Houghton
39 Pleasure Ave #2
Pittsfield, Ma. 01201

Made in China. ©Disney
Based on the "Winnie the Pooh" works copyright A.A. Milne and E.H. Shepard

00F-0792

C12



Janet Henney M.D
Commissioner FDA
5600 Fishers Lane
Rockville, Md. 20857