Dear Mr. Friedman,

It has been brought to my attention that the Food and Drug Administration requires animal tests for pharmaceuticals. Animal testing is cruel and obsolete. The public demands that animal testing be stopped. Companies should be allowed to substitute "in vitro" tests for animal testing. Until this substitution takes place, you will be receiving countless letters demanding an end to animal testing. Think of all the animals you can save from being abused and even killed. This matter deserves a lot of thought and consideration. Please give this matter your full attention. Please do the right thing.

Sincerely,
Carol M. Smith
