Re: Docket # 98N-1038 "Irradiation in the Production, Processing, and Handling of Food"

It is highly unethical to impose irradiation on people who don't want it in order to protect factory farms and highly automated processing facilities from the consequences of their business practices.

You should demand that the industrial food industry clean up its act. At the very least, you should insist on prominent labeling using terms "irradiation" or "irradiated" and the "radura" symbol.

We have the right to know what kind of food we're eating.
