Docket # 98N-1038

2013 '99 APR 30 AM 11:11

Concerning the issue of food irradiation labeling. I would like to add my objection to the use of such terms as "cold pasteurization" or "electronic pasteurization" as alternatives to the term "treated by irradiation" on food labels. As a conscientious consumer I have a right to know how the food I purchase is processed and that it is labelled appropriately and conspicuously. Therefore, it would follow that as long as the said food is be treated in any way that it be labelled so and that this labeling requirement should not expire at any future date.

I will go out of my way to purchase organically grown non-irradiated food and have a right to know that what I buy is labelled.
