Docket # 99D-0557

To F.DA management

Since genetically altered pigs are being considered for xenotransplants I bring the following to your attention

(a) Pigs are not any safer than non-human primates for such transplantion.

(b) there has been inadequate public debate before proceeding with this hazardous procedure

(c) who will be responsible for the liability of zoonotic virus contagion

(d) Lifelong monitoring is required to determine the safety of these transplants.

All of these are reasons to stop now.

Yours truly
Philip Glaser
