Diseases long controlled by antibiotics are becoming more difficult to treat. I believe they have been overused by physicians, hospitals, & live stock producers. They must be used more judiciously.

Antibiotics have been used to promote growth in hogs, cows & chickens & to fatten them cheaply. This is not what these medications were to be used for. The World Health Organization has recommended a ban on the antibiotics to be used to promote growth. I would ask you to please adopt this position for the safety for all animals & people.

I support the Union of Concerned Scientists position to this in the name of all mankind.

Yours truly,
Pauline
