Jane Henney,

I am writing in regard to the uncontrolled use of antibiotics in animal food products & by physicians.

As a biologists I know that the resistent species will flourish and become the major population when the antibiotics are used to often and too much.

All parts of our population, especially our children, will become sick and less and less of their illnesses & diseases will be controlled by our antibiotics because they are overused in our meat industry

Please limit the administration of these antibiotics to our meat production animals.
