Concerning Docket #98N-1038 -
Irradiation in the Production, Processing, and Handling of Food

May 10th, '99

To Whom It May Concern:

As a citizen, I urge the F.D.A. not submit to corporate pressure to eliminate irradiation labeling. All foods that are irradiated should be labeled as such so that we, the consumers, can make our own choice.

Irradiated foods, dispite being so obviously unnatural, have not been sufficiently researched. It is disgusting that the guilty corporations are attempting to use the public as the guinea pigs (not that any real guinea pigs should ever be used).

The irradiation of foods is madness enough, a madness driven solely by greed. To not label foods that are denatured in this way is horrific.

Sincerly,

Elizabeth Sartain
