Dear Mrs. Henney,

I would think that if you allowed (or were in favor of) the FDA to approve claims filed for saw palmetto and the symptoms of benign prostatic hyperplasia, and psyllium husk seeds, folic acid, vitamin B-6, vitamin B-12, vitamin E, and the risk of heart disease, that it would be to the advantage of the average person interested in improving their health. We should have information available so we can make informed decisions.

Sincerely,

Audrey M. Gokeau
