Commissioner Henney,

I do not want to be a test subject just so Mousanto and the others can get rich. To promise 25% of the riches to the govt scientists if GM foods get pushed onto unsuspecting and/or unwilling public fast enough is a way to assure slezzy science.

I will avoid all products that I know to be genetically modified until you/the US govt let citizens health be more important than corporate greed. This is a shameful trick to try + put over on people who don't have a lot of time to read + understand. Or perhaps you could test your products on govt workers children only, yours first.
