Ms. Jane Henney, M.D.,

I am writing to you out of concern. Recently I have been reading more and more about genetically altered foods.

My question to you is, "Why hasn't the FDA given the consumer any choice in this matter?"

I do not choose to eat foods that are not natural but, how would I know whether they've been altered or not?

Be it for health, religious or personal reasons, I feel people need to be informed.

I can't imagine how out of control this matter could become unless we as consumers are able to stay on top of this.

Please, Please, help mandate labeling of these "freak" foods.

Sincerely,

Mari Krajec
