Dear Michael Friedman,

I am writing to express my concern about genetically engineered food. There are numerous environment risks associated with this practice. GE foods threaten to destroy genetic diversity, as they are known to become and facilitate weed growth. The recombination of some genes into others such as peanuts, can cause severe allergic reactions in some people. I request that you support the cessation of this environmentally damaging practice and until it stops, to support and endorse package labeling to facilitate consumer education and prevent sickness and allergic reactions.

Thank you,

Sarah Godlove
