Dear Dr. Henney:

I strenuously object to having genetically modified organisms (GMO) added to my food without labeling. I regret that the F.D.A. allowed GMOs to be used in foods without long-term testing for safety and without labeling or premarketing approval. I regard this procedure as lax and potentially irresponsible. Thousands of scientists abroad have questioned GMOs safety and foreign governments have banned them. I personally protest against the F.D.A.'s policy in this matter and demand to be informed when I purchase food about the inclusion of G.M.O's in my products,
