FDA Proposed Rule, DOCKET # 97N-0023

Nov. 22, 1999

Dear FDA People,

6072 '99 NOV 30 P2:10

I am an eleven year old boy with asthma. My doctor has me using inhalers regularly to manage my asthma. I currently use Ventolin, Flovent, and Proventil HFAs. I depend on these and other medications to help me feel good, do well in school, and play hard in sports activities.

My doctor cannot tell me which HFA medications I will need as I grow up. Therefore, it is important to me that you are careful to make sure that I can get a good replacement for any HFA I may need before you take the HFA away.

Your proposal states that you may start banning HFAs in 2005 even if there isn't a replacement available. I ask you not to do that, because I, or someone else with asthma, may need that particular medication in the future.

Sincerely,

Tommy Janese
