Dear Ms Shalala:

We trust that what we are hearing is incorrect - that there will be a weakening of labeling requirements for irradiated food.

98N 99 DEC 23 P12:58

Every citizen - and - we would think that you would want that right yourself - should know that the food he/she buys is irradiated. Some studies have shown that food products undergo chemical changes after exposure to radioactive isotopes.

Most citizens believe the FDA is looking out for their interests regarding the safety of the products they consume. Please don't let this become another case of where you bow to corporate interests and the public be damned.

Sincerely - Dany Wakefield
