Dear Jane Henney,

You will be delighted to know that I have resolved not to purchase foodstuffs containing corn, nor cornstarch or corn syrup, wheat or wheat flour or canola or anything which might contain genetically modified products. I cannot afford exotic illnesses nor to be a tester of novel products. So I am purchasing direct from growers or organic products.

I strongly object to having unidentified products going into my body:

And I suggest that pollen and gene drift is not even being discussed with the seriousness it deserves. Where do you think you will be able to get uncontaminated foodstuffs? How are your gardening skills? Do you belong to Seed Savers?

Stop being a lapdog for corporations before all belief in a virtuous government is gone -

Sincerely
M.R. Eucalyptus

Please give me a serious reply that you will promote labeling - while you begin testing and prohibition!

and none of this nonsense about States having to add US federal permission to have higher organic standards.
