To Whom It May Concern:

On March 16th, American Longevity filed a Petition for the Modification of 21 C.F.R. § 101.93 to Include Structure/Function Claims with Disclaimers that Eliminate Perceived Disease Connotations, Docket No. 04P-0129. On pages 4 and 14 of the Petition, the sentence “L-Arginine is a nutrient that your body uses to make nitrous oxide, which relaxes blood vessels, and therefore may lower blood pressure” includes an inadvertent error in need of correction. The word “nitrous” should be “nitric.” As such, for those two sentences, the correct wording is “L-Arginine is a nutrient that your body uses to make nitric oxide, which relaxes blood vessels, and therefore may lower blood pressure.” Please ensure that the record accurately reflects this change. Thank you very much for your assistance in this matter.

Respectfully submitted,
American Longevity, Inc.
