

COUNTERFEIT MEDICINES FILLED WITH EMPTY PROMISES.

Counterfeit medicines are fake and dangerous. They may:

- Be contaminated
- Contain the wrong or no active ingredient

DON'T BE A VICTIM!

- Minimize your risk by purchasing ONLY from U.S. state-licensed pharmacies.
- If using the Web to purchase, make sure the site is a state-licensed pharmacy in good standing in your state. Check with your state board of pharmacy.

OR, look for this Seal:

Some sites display the Seal of the Verified Internet Pharmacy Practice Sites™ (VIPPS®) Accreditation Program. For a list of sites with the VIPPS® Seal, visit www.nabp.net/vipps/consumer/listall.asp.

If you suspect you have purchased a counterfeit drug because you are experiencing unexpected side effects, or notice something different or odd about your medicine, contact your pharmacist or doctor.

To learn more about counterfeit drugs, visit FDA's anti-counterfeit website at www.fda.gov/counterfeit

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES
U.S. Food and Drug Administration

www.FDA.gov