Dear Dr. Henney:

I know you face much opposition from drug manufacturers and the live stock industry, BUT

I am writing to ask you to follow the European Union and leading public health agencies and ban the use of antibiotics to fatten livestock when these drugs are also used to treat humans.

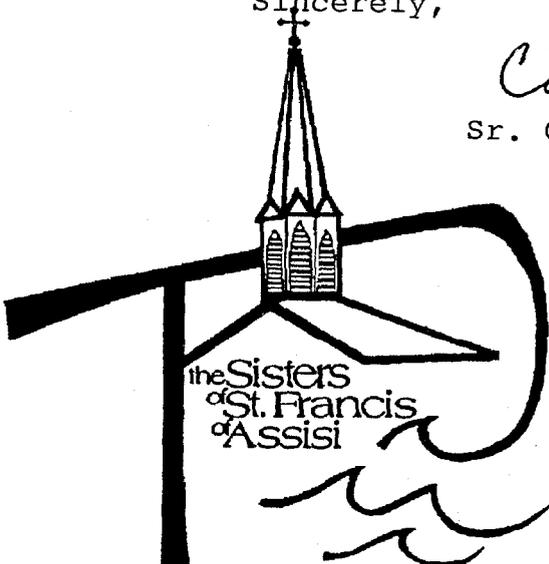

Opposing corporations and other large groups in their means of making and increasing their huge profits is pretty scary these days, but it has to be done for the survival of our environment and people.

I encourage you in this work, and shall pray for your success.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Cordé Rea, O.S.F.
