Dear Commissioner Henney:

I am very concerned about Genetically engineered foods that we are eating without knowing how these foods will affect our health, or if they are a threat to the environment.

The FDA will not release new drugs coming on the market without thorough testing to see what harmful side effects they may cause. Why in the world is the FDA not more concerned about GE foods without more studies?

Some studies have shown GE foods could create new toxins, antibiotic resistance, allergic reactions, and other dietary risks for consumers.

My family and I are very concerned and would very much like to have the GE foods tested and labeled and have a moratorium placed on them until they are proven safe. Please use your influence in having these things done by FDA.

Sincerely

E. Floyd Mann
