Dear Commissioner Henney:

The FDA is not doing enough to protect the public from the dangers of genetically engineered foods. Your agency should require safety tests for all genetically engineered foods before they are put on the market. Once there, they should be clearly labelled. Consumers have the right to decide what they will eat. If anyone gets sick from eating a genetically engineered food, the companies that produced it should be held liable.

Basically, I support the points in Docket #OOP-1211/CPI.

Sincerely,

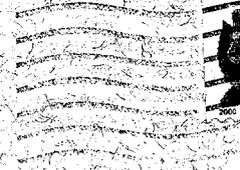

Martha Bushnell, Ph.D.
