Dear Dr. Henney,

We urge that the FDA follow the EU's ban on the use of growth-promoting antibiotics in animal feeds that are also used in human medicine.

With improved sanitation and less crowding in barns, American food animals should be able to be raised healthily without adversely impacting the health of the American consumer.

We want to avoid the development of new antibiotic resistant strains of bacteria. We urge you to take effective action.

Sincerely,

Selma H. Silverstein
