Subject: Periodicity of FDA Food Code Revisions

During our last business meeting, the cost and time involved in adopting, and implementing the biennially updated versions of the FDA Food Code were recognized by our membership as problematic.

The Great Lakes Conference on Food Protection voted to urge the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to retain the two year review cycle of the FDA Food Code, and change the Food Code revision cycle to every four years.

Sincerely,

Jasmine Lincicome, President
Great Lakes Conference on Food Protection
