Dear Sir:

The FDA is here to protect the consumer and the food chain. I oppose the proposed rules and guidelines on genetically engineered (GE) foods.

All GE foods should be subject to mandatory premarket safety testing and not allowed on the market until such testing is successfully completed. I also believe that full disclosure - labelling of GE food ingredients - should be required so that the buyer can make an informed choice.

In addition there should be a moratorium on GE foods pending long term studies to identify their safety to us and to the environment, or lack of same. I believe that many of the populations physical ailments today are food related, and GE foods may only accelerate this deterioration.

Sincerely,
Lucrezia Fuchs
