

Kidwell, Judith L.

From: Erik Jansson [planetearth@erols.com]
Sent: Friday, March 31, 2006 11:43 AM
To: Kidwell, Judith L.
Subject: Docket No. 2005P-0377/CP 1 multiple sclerosis and aluminum
Attachments: ms1312oa.pdf

Re: Docket No. 2005P-0377/CP 1

Dear Judy,

Here is evidence that multiple sclerosis is also partially generated by aluminum overload. Quite clearly, aluminum food additives would not be safe for such persons, or those who will get multiple sclerosis in the future. Demyelination is the key factor in the disease, and aluminum has been shown to produce such an effect.

Best regard, Erik

2005P-0377

3/31/2006

SUP 9