The design, materials, and workmanship of equipment does not allow proper cleaning.

Specifically, as noted on 11/02/2009, the following food contact surfaces of equipment are not designed or constructed to facilitate proper cleaning, sanitizing or to prevent cross-contamination:

- The design of the cabbage dryer does not allow easy access to thoroughly clean all interior surfaces. An accumulation of black residue and cabbage remnants was observed beneath the spinning drum through an inspection port. A foul smell reminiscent of rotting vegetation was also apparent.
- The perforated cabbage transport cart has permanently mounted wheels covered with apparent rust and black residue. This cart was hoisted across the wash/cook/cool tank and the centrifugal cabbage dryer 4 times, while water dripped from the wheels and the bottom of the cart into the shredded cabbage. Prior to lifting, the cart was observed rolling across the Processing Room floor.
