PRODUCT NAME	STATEMENTS	INGREDIENT(S) TO WHICH THE CLAIM REFERS
Immun'Age	Nitric oxide (NO) is a soluble free radical gas that plays a critical role in immune function and central and peripheral neuronal transmission. In vitro studies observed Immun'Age's interaction with NO and inducible nitric oxide synthase (iNOS). The study showed Immun'Age both scavenges NO and promoted its production in a dose-dependent manner from particular neutrophils and macrophages.* Further, in an open randomized controlled clinical trial, researchers observed that administration of Immun'Age supported healthy levels of superoxide, nitric oxide and glutathione in blood monocytes, suggesting once again its antioxidant regulatory properties.*	Fermented Papaya

PRODUCT NAME	STATEMENTS	INGREDIENT(S) TO WHICH THE CLAIM REFERS
Immun'Age	Scientific research has shown Immun'Age supports healthy immune function in several ways.* Researchers have found increased immune and antioxidant activity in macrophages associated with supplementation of Immun'Age.* In vivo studies have shown increased activation of natural killer cell activity.* Furthermore, human trials have demonstrated that oral administration of Immun'Age for one month increased the mean rate of gamma interferon production.* Among the many actions of interferons is their stimulatory effect on lymphocytes. Immun'Age may induce T-cell and B-cell activity indirectly via increased interferon production.*	Fermented Papaya
