The average inorganic arsenic (micrograms/serving) reported for each product category was calculated using all inorganic arsenic values. For those samples not speciated because the total arsenic was below the threshold for speciation, half of the total arsenic value was used for the inorganic arsenic value to calculate the average. For samples with the total arsenic less than the detection limit, half of the detection limit was used for the inorganic arsenic value to calculate the average. Please see the Full Analytical Results tables for rice and rice products for further information.

<sup>2</sup>An assumption was made that 1 ml = 1 g for the purposes of calculating inorganic arsenic per serving.

<sup>3</sup>The highest sample in this category was a rice bran cereal containing inorganic arsenic equivalent to 30 mcg/serving; the next highest samples in this category contained inorganic arsenic equivalent to 11 mcg/serving.

<sup>4</sup>The 16 Toddler Cereal samples are a subset of the Infant Cereal category due to potential use in both infants and toddlers.

<sup>1</sup>The information provided for the origin of the samples and the sample description was obtained from product packaging and for some samples, additional information provided by the rice industry or the distributor. In many cases, it was not possible to determine the location where the rice was grown and rice packaged in a state may not have been grown in that state. It is important to note that (1) this study was not designed to make inferences about arsenic levels between individual states or countries; (2) these samples are not necessarily representative of the entire state or country; and (3) samples from some rice-growing states were not part of our survey.

<sup>b</sup>Sample 728648 was not speciated because the Total As value was below the quantitation limit. Sample 728651 was not speciated because the sample was moldy. For these two samples, the inorganic arsenic was assumed to be half of the total arsenic value.

<sup>1</sup>Serving size based on Reference Amount Customarily Consumed (RACC) per 21CFR 101.12 for each product category. An assumption was made that 1 ml = 1 g for the purposes of calculating inorganic arsenic per serving.

<sup>2</sup>Some of the beverages in this category have been marketed as "rice milk", a product name consumers could see in supermarkets and consumer materials. However, FDA's regulations do not contain provisions for the use of the term "rice milk". Therefore, in this document, the term "Non-Dairy

<sup>3</sup>For all Protein Beverage samples and some Rice Beverage samples, the amount of product required to make 240 mL of beverage was used in the inorganic arsenic per serving calculation.

<sup>b</sup>Sample was not speciated because the total arsenic was below the threshold for speciation. For those samples not speciated, half of the total arsenic value was assumed and used for the inorganic arsenic value. For samples with the total arsenic less than the detection limit, half of the detection limit was assumed and used for the inorganic arsenic value.

*ppb = parts per billion (microgram/kilogram)

<sup>1</sup>The information provided for the origin of the samples and the sample description was obtained from product packaging and for some samples, additional information provided by the rice industry or the distributor. In many cases, it was not possible to determine the location where the rice was grown and rice packaged in a state may not have been grown in that state. It is important to note that (1) this study was not designed to make inferences about arsenic levels between individual states or countries; (2) these samples are not necessarily representative of the entire state or country; and (3) samples from some rice-growing states were not part of our survey.

<sup>4</sup>Serving size based on Reference Amount Customarily Consumed (RACC) per 21CFR 101.12 for each product category. For rice, the RACC serving size used was 45 g per serving based on dry weight.

<sup>5</sup>TR = Trace. Result between the limit of detection and limit of quantitation (see table below).

<sup>b</sup>Sample 728648 was not speciated because the total arsenic value was below the quantitation limit. Sample 728651 was not speciated because the sample was moldy. For these two samples, the inorganic arsenic was assumed to be half of the total arsenic value.

*ppb = parts per billion (microgram/kilogram)

<sup>3</sup>Serving size based on Reference Amount Customarily Consumed (RACC) per 21CFR 101.12 for each product category. An assumption was made that 1 ml = 1 g for the purposes of calculating inorganic arsenic per serving.

<sup>7</sup>Some of the beverages in this category have been marketed as "rice milk", a product name consumers could see in supermarkets and consumer materials. However, FDA's regulations do not contain provisions for the use of the term "rice milk". Therefore, in this document, the term "Non-Dairy Rice Drinks" includes products that may be marketed as "rice milk".

<sup>8</sup>For all Protein Beverage samples and some Rice Beverage samples, the amount of product required to make 240 mL of beverage was used in the inorganic arsenic per serving calculation.

<sup>b</sup>Sample was not speciated because the total arsenic was below the threshold for speciation. For those samples not speciated, half of the total arsenic value was assumed and used for the inorganic arsenic value. For samples with the total arsenic less than the detection limit, half of the detection limit was assumed and used for the inorganic arsenic value.

Limit of Detection (LOD) and Limit of Quantitation (LOQ) - in ppb

Note - actual limits may vary depending on the analytical portion used in the analysis.

For inorganic arsenic (sum of AsIII and AsV), the limits are the sum of the individual species.
