Position: Supervisory Health Scientist

Office Location: FDA
Center for Tobacco Products
Office of Science
Beltsville, MD 20705

Opening Date: November 29, 2021

Closing Date: December 3, 2021

Area of Consideration: FDA-Wide

The CTP, OS, KM offers a fast-paced, dynamic environment and an opportunity to work with dedicated, energetic people who really want to make a difference and improve public health. The position is ideal for someone who wants to have a critical role in the organization and would enjoy the challenge of handling a variety of assignments related to the regulation of tobacco products, as well as take on a supervisory role.

Duties include:

- The selected employee will supervise a team of health scientists, program analysts, and technical information specialists who provide authoritative and professional expertise in dealing with public health issues related to tobacco products that support implementing the Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act.
- Serves as a supervisor for a contingent of subordinate positions. Supervisory duties include assigning work, setting short-term priorities, reviewing work, giving advice and instruction, identifying training needs, evaluating performance and recommending personnel actions.
- Supervises the activities required to advance and maintain the tobacco regulatory science program, designed to enhance the evidence base used to inform FDA's regulatory decisions, implementations, and subsequent assessments of effectiveness.
- Keeps abreast of scientific developments and current practices in tobacco regulatory science through review of published literature and by continuing professional development through interactions with experts in the field.
- Keeps abreast of best practices and new developments within the domain of Knowledge Management. Certification in Knowledge Management is preferred but not required.
- Analyzes Office's current processes to help identify areas that would benefit from application of Knowledge Management practices and principles.

- Plays a supervising role in the development of policy by providing expertise on current issues related to the tobacco regulatory science program.
- Prepares reports and makes presentations to supervisors and peers internally, and professional societies and industry meetings externally.

Desired Knowledge and Skills:

- Mastery and knowledge of recent developments in the health science fields of Knowledge Management and tobacco regulatory science.
- Demonstrated ability to recognize the need for changes and draft new procedures to solve critical or novel problems and perform more refined analyses.
- Knowledge and demonstrated experience in identification of problems, gathering information, drawing conclusions, recommending solutions, and negotiating acceptance and implementation of the recommendations.
- Mastery of written and oral communications methods and techniques in order to skillfully and clearly communicate complex information and/or to draft papers or guidance documents for publication.
- Knowledge of CTP missions, programs and organizational structures sufficient to collaborate with other CTP staff on public health issues and problems.
- Ability to communicate effectively to accurately represent the FDA, CTP and the assigned program area in dealing with representatives of other agencies and organizations.
- Excellent organizational skills.
- Excellent oral and written communication skills.
- Exceptional interpersonal relationship skills and ability to collaboratively lead teams (e.g., maximize each person's contributions, reconcile divergent viewpoints, and maintain harmonious working relationships).
