Introduction

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is the regulatory, scientific, public health and consumer protection agency responsible for ensuring all human and animal drugs, medical devices, cosmetics, foods, food additives, drugs and medicated feeds for food producing animals, tobacco and radiation emitting devices safe, and effective.

The mission of the Center for Drug Evaluation and Research (CDER) is to perform an essential public health task by making sure that safe and effective drugs are available to improve the health of people in the United States. CDER regulates over the counter and prescription drugs, including biological therapeutics and generic drugs.

The Office of Generic Drugs (OGD) oversees the development and implementation of standards for the safety and effectiveness of generic drugs. OGD reviews and evaluates Abbreviated New Drug Applications (ANDAs) and their amendments or supplements and determines approvability. OGD establishes bioequivalence specifications for drug products and develops guidelines for bioequivalence reviews, industry protocol and studies. OGD oversees all aspects of labeling submissions for ANDAs.

The Office of Safety and Clinical Evaluation (OSCE) supports the timely assessment of ANDAs submitted under section 505(j) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic (FD&C) Act on equivalence standards for generics drugs with attention to coordinating complex scientific considerations. OSCE also supports the development and implementation of safety programs, specific to a risk evaluation and mitigation strategy, during the generic drug application review.

- Serves as a member of Division, OSCE, OGD, and/or CDER committees and working groups in collaboration to consider problems or the direction of medical, scientific, and regulatory issues associated with or impacting the review of generic drug products, representing the division in working groups to share results and best practices.
