Introduction

Are you looking to make a difference in the lives of the American people? Your ideal position is waiting for you at the U.S. Food and Drug Administration! The FDA proudly serves as the regulatory, scientific, public health and consumer protection Agency responsible for ensuring that all human and animal drugs, medical devices, cosmetics, foods, food additives, drugs and medicated feeds for food producing animals, tobacco and radiation emitting devices are safe and effective.

At the Center for Devices and Radiological Health, the medical devices regulatory arm of the FDA and the Department of Health and Human Services, we are building a diverse, inclusive, and dynamic workforce whose mission is to protect and advance public health by ensuring and facilitating medical device safety and innovation.

As a member of the FDA's Executive Officer community, you will serve amongst an elite cadre of Executives charged with providing strategic leadership, upholding a commitment to public service, and advancing the parallel missions of the HHS and FDA. As our new Executive leader, you will collaborate with colleagues and stakeholders from diverse administrative, scientific, and regulatory backgrounds, to ensure the strategic goals and objectives of the Department and Agency are pursued in a collegial, interdisciplinary, and transparent manner. As a member of this Executive community, you will influence the direction of innovation and transformation of the Federal Government and lead and mentor the next generation of public servants.

Duties/Responsibilities

The CDRH Executive Officer (EO), who also serves as the OM Director, is a member CDRH's Executive Leadership community. Reporting directly to the CDRH Center Director, you will serve as the primary authority and principal advisor on all administrative matters, direct all management activities, and ensure the uniformed, transparent adoption and advancement of Departmental and Agency initiatives across our organization. Your stewardship will be instrumental in transforming administrative activities from transactional processes and practices to strategically focused business solutions that directly support the FDA's mission. Specifically, you will oversee and lead the Center's strategic human capital management activities, our diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging program, our employee engagement initiatives, the Center's acquisition and competitive sourcing activities, integration of budget and performance goals, and fiscal oversight of User Fee and appropriated funds. As you perform these responsibilities, you will have the opportunity to collaborate with your peers across the FDA and throughout the Department to establish, cultivate, and sustain communities of practice in all administrative, operations, and fiscal management areas.

As an Executive with a wealth of Federal Government experience, you will serve as a principal advisor to Agency and Center officials, as well as CDRH managers and supervisors on matters regarding administrative management, laws, regulations, policies, and procedures. Utilizing your expertise in the human capital, fiscal and contractual management, as well as other operational areas, your advice and counsel will be sought regarding the Center's programs and their impact on the strategic plans, goals, and objectives of CDRH. As the Executive Officer, you will be the catalyst and chief advisor for the CDRH Center Director, accompanying or representing them at Department, Agency, and Center meetings. You will build and cultivate relationships across the Center, Agency, Department, and Congress to foster alignment around proposed and/or recommended strategic priorities of the Agency and Center designed to build capacity, reinforce infrastructure, and address outdated methodologies and promote new organizational efficiencies.

During times of transition, you will provide steady leadership and manage change to ensure continued optimal organizational performance. You will provide sound guidance and leadership to the Center and create strategic innovations facilitating the continued advancement of our important public health mission. Your direction will be vital in the Center's ability to realize its strategic vision and plan, as well as those policies, priorities, and programs designed to facilitate successful implementation. You will model organizational accountability, agility, and inclusivity and welcome suggestions from all generations/ facets of the workforce to foster innovation to address and overcome new and unexpected challenges.

Supervisory Responsibilities

As the Executive Officer and Director for the OM, you will set the strategic vision, goals, and objectives for the Office. You will plan, direct, and delegate duties ensuring the timely completion, performance, and high quality of work products developed by the Office. As such, you will evaluate and adjust priorities and timeframes for completion of deliverables and provide direction and guidance to other Center executive level officials, subordinate managers, supervisors, and staff. You will monitor and determine the staffing and budget needs of the Office.

Desired Professional Experience

- Proven Senior leader with a minimum of five (5) years executive-level Federal Government experience managing administrative and/or operational functions with a similar scientific, regulatory, health care, or public health mission.
- Demonstrated ability to partner and collaborate effectively across organizational lines to build and foster strong and sustainable working relationships.
- Demonstrated ability to successfully address, navigate, and chart positive paths forward to bring satisfactory closure to high profile, controversial, sensitive, and rapidly changing issues and programs in an environment that is highly visible.
- Proven ability to develop and implement a strategic vision and facilitate organizational change to advance new initiatives.
- Demonstrated ability of fostering and instilling a diverse workforce culture for a multidisciplinary staff that embraces, respects, and supports differences while promoting professional development, collaboration, and inclusion.
