

Limitations: The adverse event and product problem reports contained in this record are not necessarily causally related to (caused by) the reported product, nor do they mean the product was defective. Consumer complaints involving animal foods are received by FDA through voluntary reporting systems. Not all reports undergo follow up actions by FDA; however, each report received is important to FDA as part of our ongoing surveillance efforts related to pet food safety. Trends in reporting can provide an early warning of emerging safety issues of concern.

Other limitations:

- For any given report, there is no certainty that the reported pet food caused the adverse event. The adverse event(s) reported may be more related to an underlying disease, condition, or concomitantly administered medication.
- The report narratives are provided in the form in which we received them, the quality of the information provided about the adverse event/product problem is dependent on the quality of the information received from the veterinarian and/or pet owner.
- Adverse event report numbers should not be used to calculate incidence rates or measures of relative risk. It is not data from a controlled study, and there is no accurate way to know the true size of the population exposed to a product, nor the true population affected with an adverse event.
- Adverse event data should not be used to compare the safety of different products. Many factors can influence reporting, and products that are more widely distributed or sold in greater volume may have more reporting than those with limited distribution or sales. Products for which there has been recent publicity may experience more reporting for a period of time afterwards. Underreporting is also common with adverse event reporting systems.

EON-508787	11/30/2022 18:20	Abound Grain free Pate - roasted turkey dinner in savory juice I	There are flakes (smaller than a pencil eraser about the size of confetti) of hard white particulate mixed in with the pate - it appears to be paint or plaster. It can be cracked with a fingernail but is hard and the edges sharp. The surface can be smooth or rough. This can't be healthy for an animal to consume. EON-508775	11/30/2022 16:24	FC SA PELLET DIET MOUSE/RAT, FC SA FORAGE DIET RABBIT, FC SA PELLET DIET HAMSTER/GERB, FC SA FORAGE DIET HAMSTER/GERB, FC SA PELLET DIET GUINEA PIG, FC SA PELLET DIET CHINCHILLA, FC SA FORAGE DIET GUINEA PIG, FC SA PELLET DIET RABBIT	On October 6, 2022, an internal email was sent out to many and likely all PetSmart locations recalling Full Cheeks, the company's proprietary brand of small animal food. Ten products were mentioned in the recall, including all diets for chinchillas, rabbits, hamsters/gerbils, mice/rats, and guinea pigs. The starter kits for hamsters, guinea pigs, rats, and rabbits were also recalled, and PetSmart employees were instructed to remove and destroy the packages of food each kit contained. Finally, store-use food for chinchillas, rabbits, hamsters/gerbils, mice/rats, and guinea pigs was to be destroyed and replaced with a different brand. A notice was attached to this report. The internal email indicated that it was a compliance issue, but did not specify further. Several customers and associates have[1] anonymously noted[2] an increased amount of bugs in their food, and some have speculated[3] that the bags were not sealing correctly. PetSmart has not informed the public about the recall according to their recall notice page[4] and no extra details have been given to either associates or pet parents. Pet parents have been finding out through word of mouth from associates or social media about the recall. It is my understanding that PetSmart has a regulatory obligation to report any voluntary recalls[5] to the FDA, but the recall is not posted on the FDA website[6]. Did PetSmart alert you of their recall?

EON-508703	11/29/2022 21:16	Hills Prescription Diet original low fat Batch code T1320517 Other numbers 226 30763	(b) (6) has a history of diarrhea from liver cancer but this usually causes him to lose his appetite. I bought a new case of Hills Prescription original low fat (because he had his gallbladder removed along with liver cancer). For 3 days he had diarrhea where he peed when he pooped. His stools were very runny. He was panicked to go outside, too. He had eaten the food for exactly 3 days, a can a day. We dug the cans out of the trash and they each had the same batch code. We pulled the ones that matched that batch code (started with T132) and started feeding him ones that started with (T131). We changed nothing else. His diarrhea subsided after about a day and a half. Stools are normal again.	12	Years	Terrier - Yorkshire	Dog	14	Pound
EON-508680	11/29/2022 15:04	Hills Science Diet Large Breed Adult 1-5 Chicken and Barley Recipe	We purchased and opened a new bag of the food he has been on for 3 years. The kibble was smaller than normal but we figured maybe they just changed it up. Gave him a cup full for dinner, over night he threw it up. From then he did not eat and acted lethargic. Took him to the vet, he was dehydrated and very sick. They kept him for two days on iv meds. Got a little better and came home...at that point we did not suspect the food so he ate two pieces. Threw up again and from there got worse. Had to be admitted again and stayed for 3 more days on IV meds and had multiple tests done. He almost didn't make it but finally turned around. In total he went 11 days without eating, lost 10 pounds and may have long term liver damage. He would not touch or look at the food after he got back to normal eating. When I called Petco to ask if they were aware of any changes to the food they informed me that they have had 3 more similar calls about the same food. I also found reviews online that are similar to our case. We still have the bag and would like to have it tested to get to the bottom of this. Any assistance with that would be appreciated. Thank you!	3	Years	Retriever - Labrador	Dog	75	Pound

EON-508626	11/29/2022 7:40	Victor Hi Pro Plus	Bag of Victor Hi Pro Plus bought on 11/19/2022. Upon opening noticed it was very crumbly or grainy. Assumed maybe got turned upside down during shipping. Began feeding at lunch that day to three 13 week old puppies. On Sunday, 11/20/2022, all pups had diarrhea. On Monday 11/21/2022, one pup became extremely ill with vomiting, diarrhea, and lethargic, blood in stool and required emergency vet care. Diagnosed with bacterial infection. Mentioned to vet the food looked unusual. Feed boiled chicken and rice that night to all three and returned bag of food to retailer and was replaced with new one. Next day pup improved but another had allergic reaction to chicken. Took that pup to vet along with sample of food from bad bag. Vet said definitely something wrong with food. Hairs can be seen in food and overall does not look right an to contact manufacturer.

I fed the cats at 8am on 11/25/22 and they threw up food in house within about 20 mins of eating. This has happened before, but this had been 2 days in a row and that was unusual. I was putting the unused portion of the can food into the refrigerator and noticed a foreign object in the can. I looked further and food 1 large and 2 smaller pieces of plastic in the food and 1 smaller piece adhered to the inside edge of the lid. Upon inspection of another opened can we had in the refrigerator, it appears this plastic is normally fully attached to the inside lid of the canned food but was drying and detaching from the lid into the food.

We took (b) (6) to the vet on Monday and her white blood count was less than 2. (Normal is 3-17 and vet said was highly unusual.) Both cats had messy rears. Stool was tested for viruses - negative and cats are vaccinated. There was blood in the stool of at least one - possibly the third cat (b) (6) who later had diarrhea. The salmonella test was $400 so we declined. Friskies Shreds Turkey and Cheese best before Aug 2024 222211159 L83720026 is the suspect. The actual can is gone, but this is from the same case. He began to projectile vomit about 30-45 minutes after consuming the food. (b) (6) then started acting lethargic and by the next day was barely eating. On the night of (b) (6) he was progressively more lethargic, losing a lot of weight, and began drinking a lot of water, like his thirst could not be quenched. I took him to the vet on (b) (6) and they did blood work and X-rays and found that his kidneys had stopped working and were beyond healing. EON-508005	11/19/2022 14:12	Wellness complete health kitten pate (given to kitten) Wellness pate (given to adult cat)	Our kitten (8 months old calico) and cat (3 years old tabby) were both given Wellness brand cat food. The kitten was given the Wellness Complete Health kitten pate, and the cat was given the regular Wellness pate. Both products had a plastic lining which was bleeding into the food. You could clearly see the white lining on the inside at the bottom of the can bleed into the food after taking the food out. This happened with multiple cans of both the kitten and adult cat food we gave each respective cat. They both would have dry heave reactions after eating this food, and in some cases, they vomitted. We tried other food for their next meal for a few days and they would be completely fine. When we went back to the Wellness brand, they would have the symptoms immediately again. We believe it has to do with the plastic getting into the food but regardless this is an issue that should be investigated.	3	Years	Domestic Shorthair	Cat	15	Pound
EON-507995	11/19/2022 10:44	Blue Buffalo Life Protection Formula Chicken and Brown Rice	I received a new bag of his Blue Buffalo Life Protection Formula Adult Chicken and Brown Rice when he started with a stomachache and diarrhea. I stopped his food and started cooking food until his stomach was better and then tried to reintroduced the food. He started getting sick again with upset stomach, diarrhea, and increased respirations. So we went to the vet who recommended giving him the cooked food for a week before and switch food. But I wasn't sure it was the food yet, so I slowly reintroduced over a week and once I got him up to 75% of the Blue Buffalo (day 4) he got even sicker this time with blood and diarrhea much more frequent this time. I switched him off that food to some senior chicken and brown rice I had and he has been fine since except the increased respirations at rest has continued. This food was ordered from blue buffalo's Amazon shop, which I have since seen many reviews from pet owners since Aug having the same issue.	12	Years	Other Canine/dog	Dog	55	Pound

EON-507954	11/18/2022 16:32	Purina Fancy Feast Gravy Lovers Poultry & Beef Collection	A shipment of Fancy Feast Gravy Lovers was received from Chewy on Monday, November 7. The cats began eating this food the following day, November 8. They did not finish the food, which is unusual. One of the 3 cats vomited on Wednesday, November 9 and again on November 10. By November 10, all 3 cats were refusing to eat the food at all. I went out and bought a different brand from a different manufacturer that night, and 2 of my cats started eating again. (b) (6)r, the smallest of the 3 (Tabby - spayed female, 10.5 lbs, (b) (6) - neutered male, 8.5 lbs) at 7 lbs did not eat on Thursday or Friday, November 11 and was vomiting a clear foamy liquid. Since the other cats were eating again (a different brand) I brought (b) (6) to the vet on Saturday, November 12. She was given Elura and Cerenia and subcutaneous fluids. She ate a small amount of fish Saturday night. She didn't eat on Sunday even though I gave her Elura and Cerenia as prescribed and ate only a small amount on Monday, Nov 14. During this time she had been lethargic, grooming less than usual, was not sleeping in her usual places in the house and not being affectionate. She didn't eat on Tuesday and I brought her back to the vet where on exam, her vet thought she might have a bacterial infection. She was given a Baytril injection in office. About 12-15 hours after the Baytril injection, she began eating again and appears to have resumed her normal routine and behaviors. I put in a complaint to Purina but I was advised they will not perform a chemical analysis of the food. I still have the open boxes of wet food. Although we have fed the cats for over 10 years with this food with no issues, my cats are older now and I'm hesitant to keep feeding them this food. Purina says their recipes for the food have not changed, although it is not clear whether this could be an issue with either the sourcing of the ingredients or an issue in manufacturing.	10.5	Years	Domestic Shorthair	Cat	7	Pound
EON-507927	11/18/2022 12:24	Kirkland Signature 8 in 1 multi-benefit chews	We have 2 dogs. (b) (6) is almost 8 years old, (b) (6) is almost 2 years old. They each have been getting these vitamin chews for about 6 months now. (b) (6) gets 3/day. (b) (6) 1/day. We were running low, so we bought a new bag on 11/11/22. Tues am (11/15/22) (b) (6) got one chew from the almost depleted pouch, and (b) (6) got the last one from the old pouch. Then I opened the new pouch and gave (b) (6) 2 from it. That was about 6:30-7am. (b) (6) was fine until about 2pm, when she started throwing up. She threw up repeatedly. She was shaking, drooling, and obviously in pain. We were lucky to get a vet appointment that afternoon (4:30pm). I normally wouldn't have gone to the vet so soon, but her symptoms were obviously very serious. She got a Cerenia shot and 500ml of fluids. Although the Cerenia kept her from vomiting the rest of the night, she never felt well. She couldn't lay down comfortably, she continued to pant, to look dazed, and to drool. I tried to take her to the ER at about 2:30am, but the wait was going to be 5 hours. We drove to another ER, but they took too long too, so we drove home to await the vet opening at 7am. We got her in by 7:45 and she got another shot of Cerenia, a shot of pain meds, some pain pills, Cerenia pills, and a liter of fluids. They did a blood panel and a pancreatic panel. Her pancreas levels were out of the normal range. At this point I was worried she was having an acute pancreatic attack. She has never had issues/symptoms, but we lost a dog to acute pancreatitis a couple of years ago, so I have trauma around that and am ever cautious. She was able to rest more on Wednesday after the vet, but she still refused any food or water. She remained dazed and uncomfortable through the day.	8	Years	Schnauzer (unspecified)	Dog	64	Pound

			(b) (6) was fine all through Tuesday. The dogs had gone the same places and eaten the same foods except for the vitamin chews. My wife walked and fed (b) (6) on Wednesday while I was at the vet with (b) (6). She, of course, gave her one vitamin chew with breakfast (per normal). At this point I had no idea the chews might be the source of the issue. Again, she had breakfast about 7am. By 6pm she began throwing up repeatedly. She also had loose stools. She threw up all night (maybe 6 times). She didn't have the extreme pain, dazed look, drooling, etc. that (b) (6) exhibited. I'm supposing because she is younger and only had one chew rather than the two (b) (6) had received the morning before. (b) (6) finally accepted some little bits of boiled chicken at 12:30 Thursday morning. Meanwhile, (b) (6) continued to throw up. Since I had the Cerenia pills from (b) (6) vet visit, I crushed one up and gave it to (b) (6) early Thursday morning. It seemed to help. So (b) (6) never went to the vet. Like I said, when (b) (6) got so sick out of nowhere, we imagined all sorts of things--she had something lodged, she'd ingested something noxious on our walks, she was having pancreatic attack. But when the second dog has nearly identical symptoms nearly 24 hours later, it becomes really suspicious. It wasn't until early this morning that I realized the only differing factor was the new bag of vitamin chews.

EON-507582	11/16/2022 14:00	Collachews Natural Dog Treats Beef + Collagen, Collachews Natural Dog Treats Peanutbutter + Collagen, Paw Love Split Elk Antler Grain Rawhide Dog Treats - 1 pk	(b) (6) came into our home on April 10, 2022 as a rescue. She had been hit by a car and was underweight, and ended up healthy and thriving. She has always been a picky eater but loved her peanut butter collagen chewbones. On the morning of (b) (6), she was a happy pup, had the biggest zoomies run since we had her. She accompanied me on an outing that afternoon and i went to Petsmart and got her some Beef Collachews same maker as the peanut butter ones. She ate one. The next morning, she was needy with me, not really wanting to do our usual 4 mile walk. She seemed extra picky and a bit down. Tuesday morning, (b) (6), she did not walk at all and I carried her the entire way, and she seemed "puny." Wednesday she went to the groomer and the groomer reported that she appeared to not recognize her and did not seem herself. She still seemed down and was not really eating. Later that day, she seemed to perk up a little, bark/played a bit with my husband and lept outside over our senior dog, (b) (6), even seemed to run a bit. She still really didn't eat. I made an appointment for Thursday morning, (b) (6) for the vet to check her out. The next morning, she was up early and drank water, not her usual schedule, and she climbed into the bed and laid next to me, which was not her usual either. We went to the vet that morning at 8am, and the vet indicated she had an upset stomach, so bloodwork and xrays were taken. Her ALT liver values were off the chart - 2300. The vet indicated she needed an ultrasound to rule out liver shunt and cancer and got her into the emergency vet with internal medicine specialty soon after, that same day. Ultrasound showed nothing remarkable, so a biopsy was scheduled, but she had to be hospitalized to receive plasma as her blood was not clotting. She was in significant acute liver failure.	2	Years	Havanese	Dog	10	Pound

			The plasma took and the biopsy was performed on (b) (6), completed by (b) (6). She was sent home that evening to recover, but was back in the hospital by 4:30 am on (b) (6), as she became neurologically inappropriate in the middle of the night, suspected that ammonia was not clearing her system, so they wanted to offer supportive treatment the next 24-48 hours. By 1:00 pm that day, she was declining, and by 3:00 pm I was back up there and she was in significant decline, told to take her to another vet to try to save her. She died in my arms on the way there, although CPR was administered upon our arrival, but to no avail. Liver biopsy came back the following week, the pathologist saw diffuse, severe hepatitis (inflammation) with significant necrosis (death of the liver cells) and megalocytosis, which is consistent with aflatoxicosis or from pyrrolizidine alkaloid toxicity, however, I have connections with a veterinary toxicologist and plant pathogens have been ruled out. I am strongly suspecting the beef collagen chew bones (Collachews from M Pet Group) which have rice flour and wheat flour, possibly the peanut butter collachews from the same company, as she consumed many of those over time, or strongly considering also an antler horn (Paw Love) that I had purchased on September 30th, 2022. I have a senior dog in my home that has been unaffected, as she does not eat chew bones since she has no teeth. I have contacted the manufacturers of both of these products. I have the products in question still in hand and am wondering about getting them tested for the possible aflatoxin. I do not want this to happen to any other animals.

I have had multiple instances of a foul odor in the past, but today's can smelled outright rotten. I've had two instances where product was hardened over as if it had been mummified. I've have had several instances of this product's beef being discolored white, stringy, and containing congealed substances that don't appear palatable. I was made privy of multiple FDA and legal issues with this company. I am disappointed the FDA has allowed them to operate given multiple instances of product test result forgery, testing positive for pentobarbital, and instances of dog fatality linked to their products. It's in my opinion the FDA advising pet owners to not buy Evanger's products is insufficient. The FDA's lack of action against this company could and likely will result in health impacts or death in animals. Please note my extreme disappointment in the inability to act decisively against a pet food company that routinely lacks accountability and knowingly produces a sub standard product due to health processes not being followed.

I've bought these treats by the dozens, monthly for years now without issue till 3 months ago when I noticed some sticks had a powdery white substance on them. At first I thought it was congealed fat but my dog got sick after eating it and I never gave him one with the white substance on it again. Thinking it was a fluke, I've bought more since, all with mold within the vacuum sealed packaging containing the treat. Recently the entire box, every stick had white mold on it. I buy these through the Etta Says store on Amazon, where the reviews are filled with people complaining about the mold on various listings for their Yumm Sticks product. So I contact Etta Says directly asking when the mold issue would be resolved. I received a response from a man claiming to be the owner by the name of Douglas Martin who said they didn't have a mold problem, and it was a 1 in 1000 chance of a failure of the vacuum seal which would cause the mold. I told him I would be willing to send samples to him and pictures but told me he didn't understand me and to stop torturing my dog. It should be noted, when I've opened these treats to examine them, the vacuum seal appeared normal, intact, as I've known them to be for years. To be clear, my dog only got sick once from these treats because then I knew what to look for on the treats before feeding them to him. I would be more than willing to offer you the same as I offered (b) (6), pictures or to send you any of the dozens of treats that I have with this powdery white substance. Please look into this, dogs are getting sick and the owner of the company has no interest in looking into this matter.

EON-506772	11/5/2022 23:16	Pet'n Shape Ckik'n Hide Twists	(b) (6) had her annual visit in June of this year her check-up went great bloodwork was normal. On Sep 19th 2022 I took her to our vet because she had diarrhea, vomiting, and lethargy. The vet gave her anti-naseau and anti-diarrhea medicine. She still was not acting right the following week and I took her back to the vet for blood work. Here electrolytes were all over the place and she had very high kidney values of BUN and creatinine. She was admitted to the Vet hospital for 4 days- given fluids and medication. The vet initially thought it was acute exposure to toxins, and asked me about grapes or raisins, we do not have these at our house. They tried meds for possible a-typical Addisons, blood work was done again about a week later. Her BUN and Creatinine were elevated again, and (b) (6) would not eat. I was given the ok from the vet to syringe feed her chicken baby food because she was still not eating. We saw a specialist on Tuesday, Nov 2 who evaluated (b) (6). He could not find a reason that her kidney was not working properly and mentioned that her case reminded him of cases he had seen 10 years ago where the dogs had eaten tainted chicken jerky from china. I mentioned she had eaten the Pet 'n Shape All-Natural Chicken Hide Twists Dog Treats, 16-oz bag, which I did not know but are made in china. I have not given her any of the treats since her initial illness onset, and do still have the bag. (b) (6) is currently under the care of a specialist. She is home and we are giving her 20ml of vanilla ensure to support her caloric intake as well as hydration, she is also eating small amounts of boiled chicken breast, and Instinct Toppers (given after illness not before). EON-506661	11/4/2022 11:12	Taste of the Wild	We have had all dogs on the Taste of the Wild Grain Free diet because of another dog having a reaction however this one dog was the only dog that had grain free food from a puppy where as the other 4 did not. She ended up not being able to breath after laying down long periods at night and we would get her up and walk her. We had chest x-rays, blood work and a echo done to find out what was the cause. Come to find out she has DCM or an enlarged heart and I think it is because there is no Taurine in grain free food. EON-506651	11/4/2022 8:08	Zignature Dry Dog Foods (multiple flavors/varieties)	We have been feeding our 2 Havanese dogs zignature products since they were puppies. They were both born in October 2016. Mid-October, one of our Havanese dogs, (b) (6), began coughing a lot and having labored breathing. We took (b) (6) to the vet. The vet discovered he had fluid building up in his lungs and also identified a concern related to his heart. On 11/3/22, we took (b) (6) to have an echocardiogram at (b) (6). The hospital identified enlarged Right Atrial and Ventricles with moderate to significant regurgitation in the mitral and tricuspid valves consistent with Canine Dilated Cardiomyopathy. When I returned home, I conducted a google search to learn more about the condition and discovered a link between DCM and Zignature products in a report by the FDA in 2019. I wish I had known about this report. Our local pet store had been recommending Zignature to us and we have exclusively purchased Zignature for our dogs, thinking we were making a healthier and more premium choice for them. Nobody ever mentioned this report. Why isn't Zignature required to disclose this report on its products? Perhaps our dog wouldn't be in this situation if we had changed food brands 3 years ago (half his life ago) in 2019. With DCM we understand our dog has 6-24 months average life expectancy. Our family (2 adults, 3 children) are very heart broken for our poor (b) (6), who we love very much. We can't imagine that we will lose him so soon and feel our trust has been betrayed by Zignature. I do understand other conditions can cause DCM, but its not very common in Havanese. (b) (6) was purchased from a breeder with a healthy track record for their dogs.	6	Years	Havanese	Dog	11	Pound

EON-505882	10/29/2022 20:48	Simparica Trio	Simparica Trio is being administered through tablets by a broad weight range. For example, If the dog weighs anywhere between 44.1 to 88 pounds, it gets the same pill. This means that a 50 pound dog and an 87 pound dog will recieve the same dosing. The problem with this: the drug was not safety tested in this manner. For safety trials, the dogs were given specific doses for their specific weight (the recommended minimum dose). The more precise dosing was achieved through using a combination of tablets. For example a 66 pound dog would receive 2 tablets: 1 tablet from the weight range up to 44 pounds and 1 tablet from the weight range up to 22 pounds. This achieved the actual recommended minimum dose. The problem is veterinarians are NOT using combination tablets to achieve recommended minimum dose, so the 66 pound dog recieves a dose for an 88 pound dog by using only one tablet. This is dosing the dog differently than the safety studies. This drug already has high Adverse Reactions percentages based on the manufacturers own study in the Prescribing Information guide. I want to administer the drug in the safest manner and not administer unnecessary excessive dosing, for the entire life of my dog; but my veterinarian will not allow using combination tablets. I have called many other veterinarians and recieved the same response. I would assume this same principle applies to most of the heartworm, flea, and tick medications because they use similar broad weight ranges as well, but my experience has been solely with Simparica Trio.

EON-505820	10/28/2022 19:24	Pet n' Shape-Chik'n Hide Twists	Patient presented to (b) (6) on 9/9/22 for an approximately 1.5-week history of progressive weight loss, anorexia, decreased fecal output, and lethargy. She had been managed with her primary veterinarian for 5 days before presentation and was diagnosed at that time with a GI ulcer, as she had melena and a strongly regenerative anemia. During her stay with her primary, (b) (6) was noted to have persistent decreased electrolytes, despite supplementation, as well as a fluctuating hypoglycemia. As such, she was referred to (b) (6) for further work-up and care. During her 13-day stay with (b) (6), no melena was seen, but (b) (6) electrolytes did remain low, despite high rates of supplementation with potassium, phosphorus, magnesium sulfate, and dextrose. She was also persistently acidotic on blood gas and her ionized calcium trended towards the low end of normal to true hypocalcemia. An insulin: glucose ratio was sent out to (b) (6) and returned normal, ruling out an insulinoma. Profound ileus was also noted, and so (b) (6) was placed on Metoclopramide and Azithromycin as well. An upper endoscopy was performed at the time an E-tube was placed and found no gross lesions within the stomach and duodenum. The biopsies collected from the stomach and small intestine showed mild lymphoplasmacytic infiltration but were overall unremarkable. Approximately halfway through her stay, (b) (6) owner informed us that she had fed (b) (6) and her housemate chicken jerky wrapped raw hide treats for the last 1.5 years, but that she had received a fresh shipment at the end of August, and that was when she had first noticed (b) (6) weight loss and decreased fecal output. With this information, a urine sample was collected and sent to (b) (6) to screen for Fanconi's, and the remainder was used to perform a urine fractional excretion test.	3	Years	Maltese	Dog	1.05	Kilogram
			The fractional excretion showed severe loss of potassium, phosphorus, and sodium into her urine, and renal failure index of 6. At this time, (b) (6) was becoming progressively duller and her owners elected to stop treatment and she was humanely euthanized on (b) (6) Approximately 1 week after her death, the urine test from (b) (6) returned positive for Fanconi's. Upon speaking with the lab, they stated that (b) (6) case was likely the worst they had ever seen. As Maltese are not one of the breeds pre-disposed to development of congenital Fanconi's, and as her clinical signs started when the new batch of treats was given, we are submitting this report to facilitate investigation of the treats and to determine what might have caused the development of Fanconi's.

I gave (b) (6) two small pieces of a treat that evening and within 12 hours he developed very loose stool, (Diarrhea) . (Wednesday evening). We then put him on a chicken breast and rice diet and he seemed to improve on Thursday. We left on Friday for (b) (6) to visit our son and (b) (6) seemed somewhat lethargic but bowel seemed to be improving. On Saturday evening the diarrhea returned and he seemed more lethargic. Early Monday morning, October 10 we took him to a vet in (b) (6) who we did not know as we live in (b) (6). He gave (b) (6) multiple antibiotics and ran blood work and gave him sub-cutaneous fluids. Within hours (b) (6) seemed to get much worse. We tried to reach the vet that evening but could not. The next morning (b) (6) had a major seizure and we rushed him back to the vet. The Vet said blood work showed massive kidney failure and that we would have to put him down. We were devastated. I spoke to our local vet when we returned and he said that he had never seen BUN and Creatinine numbers that high in a dog and said that could only be attributed to acute kidney failure, i.e. poisoning. I have placed at least 12 calls into the manufacturer, Westminster Pets, and most calls went unanswered. Finally yesterday (October 25) I got a call from the quality person after I tracked down the finance director at Westminster Pets by using LinkedIn. The QA person (who by the way has no training in quality or biology/chemistry based on her answers to me) said they do everything required at Westminster Pets and product is safe. They do not, she said, test for heavy metals.	17	Years	Lhasa Apso	Dog	11	Pound

			My vet felt strongly that the product must have been contaminated with heavy metals or some other very toxic component to observe the blood results we were seeing in a dog that was walking just one day prior. He got really sick one day and had to be brought in to emergency hospital. After weeks of testing and finding nothing. Lab testing needed to be sent out to University of Pennsylvania to do specific testing for Fanconi disease. Results came back positive and they said it was due to the chicken jerky treats given to him over the span of a year. EON-504025	10/11/2022 13:16	Fancy Feast Poultry & Beef Grilled Collection	(b) (6) had shown no signs of illness prior to her becoming sick. One morning (b) (6) returned inside from a morning outside only to begin vomiting white, bubbly, foamy spittle with blood in it. Small piles. She did this on and off all day and tried to go into dark hidden spots within my house all day. I placed her in a bedroom so I would know where she was. She laid in an unusual position (on her stomach with her head to the side) most of the day with intermittent attempts to vomit only to produce this white, foamy spit. The next morning, I took her to my local vet's office. The next day, she was euthanized. The vet concluded she had a walnut sized tumor in her stomach. Two weeks later, I spoke with a neighbor whose cat had been euthanized due to similar symptoms (outside one morning, inside he began vomiting white, foamy, bubbly spit with some blood, lethargic, trouble vomiting but lots of dry heaving). Their vet was inconclusive overall as to cause of illness but did contact the poison hotline who felt rat poisoning was unlikely due to the large amount needed to be ingested in order to kill a cat of that size... We chatted about the events of the day our cats became sick and determined we both fed the cats Fancy Feast wet food. My neighbor's cat ate FF Gravy Lovers Poultry & Beef Collection and (b) (6), my cat, ate FF Poultry & Beef Grilled Collection. EON-504022	10/11/2022 12:52	Fancy Feast Gravy Lovers Poultry & Beef Collection	(b) (6) (orange tabby) showed no signs of illness up to Saturday, (b) (6). He was a 100% indoor cat up until 3 weeks ago when I started letting him outside with my two other cats to wander around the exterior of my house for an hour while I walked each morning. Saturday, I walked for an hour, returned and (b) (6) was waiting by the door. He was dry heaving, attempting to vomit. I put all three cats back inside the house. (b) (6) vomited two small puddles of bubbly, foamy spit with a bit of blood mixed in. He continued to try to hack something up all day in this manner, only to have spittle with bubbles...clear and white frothy bubbles. In between these moments, he seemed to try to make moisture in his mouth...he vomited like this probably four or five times (production of vomit). Jerked his head to the left and nearly placed it on the ground while attempting to vomit. He wasn't able to get water or food down and stopped trying by afternoon. I took him to the vet. They ran blood tests to test for rat poison ingestion and took an X-ray to see if he had swallowed something. Nothing showed up for either type of testing. Poison control was also called for access to a pet toxicologist. They felt at his size rat poison ingestion was unlikely. This same day, (b) (6) was euthanized due to his airway never allowing him to get enough oxygen. The Xray showed white filled lungs indicating he wasn't getting air. The vet said they could see his baronial tubes which wasn't supposed to be seen. His stomach also showed to be full of air. I returned home after euthanizing (b) (6) and spoke with my neighbor who lives a few streets over in my subdivision. Her cat (b) (6) a tortoiseshell tabby, died the week before from similar symptoms (vomiting white frothy bubbly vomit with small amount of blood, lethargy, had been outside that morning as well). We were sharing events since the symptoms were similar.	4	Years	American Shorthair	Cat	10	Pound
			She had taken (b) (6) to our local vet who determined (b) (6) had a walnut sized tumor in her stomach. My neighbor and I determined we both feed (b) (6) and (b) (6) Fancy Feast wet canned food: (b) (6) had Gravy Lovers Poultry & Beef style wet food from Fancy Feast and (b) (6) had Fancy Feast Poultry & Beef Grilled Collection wet canned cat food that morning and leading up to the morning they became sick. EON-503862	10/8/2022 21:32	Merrick Grammy's Pot Pie	Upon feeding my dog Merrick dog food he immediately developed extreme diarrhea. For a couple of months, I'd noticed the dog food looked different. It's more "mushy" and gelatinous. Also, his stool began to smell horrible, which is very unusual. but coincides with the change in dog food texture. We've been noticing that he was getting re-occurring diarrhea. Today I opened a new can of Merrick to feed him. He developed severe diarrhea within a few hours of eating the food. EON-503791	10/7/2022 15:40	Redford Naturals Limited Ingredient Diet Grain Free Puppy Lamb & Sweet Potato Recipe Dog Food	Our friend bred her male and female golden retriever and had a litter 11 weeks ago. She let us know she was feeding the puppies Redford Lamb and Rice Puppy food bought from Pet Supply Plus in (b) (6). We went there to purchase a bag of the same food (Sep 8th) to continue feeding it to the pup to transfer to the food we intend to keep her on. At 8 weeks old, we went to pick up our female puppy on Sep 11th along with a small bag (6 cups) of food from the breeder. When we got the pup home we began to feed her a mix of the breeders food and the bag of food we bought of the same brand and flavor. Our puppy began having diarrhea within 24 hours and it continued for over a week. We tried all kinds of different feeding tactics to include just our bag and just their bag. Through talking with the breeder, we found out that 4 other families that picked up a puppy were experiencing the same issues and were all using the same food from the same place.	9	Weeks	Retriever - Golden	Dog	11	Pound

EON-503782	10/7/2022 14:44	Limited Ingredient Diet Redford Naturals Grain Free Lamb & Sweet Potato Recipe	I received this puppy from a private owner (not a breeder) on Wednesday 9/21/22. He was 9 weeks old at the time. When I went to the house to pick out which puppy would be mine on 9/1/22, I stopped by Pets Supplies Plus (b) (6) near the pet owner's home to pick up a bag of the same puppy food that all the puppies had been eating and were used to. The food was "Redford Naturals" brand in the "Lamb and Sweet Potato Recipe". I started to feed the puppy this food when I brought him home on 9/21. By Sunday 9/25, the puppy began to behave a little off from baseline, just slightly more sleepy and less playful. The morning of Monday 9/26, he was more lethargic and his eyes looked a little glossy, but he ate food that morning and drank water, then went to lay down. By the afternoon of 9/26, the puppy became very lethargic and unable to keep any water down without vomiting. He was unable to eat and unable to walk more than a few steps. I immediately called to get him to the vet and in the process of transporting him there, I reached out to the girl I received the puppy from to update her on the situation. It was at this point I found out that this is the 3rd puppy from the litter to get sick and we were all using this exact same food from the exact same store. And this food is the store's own line, not a big supplier. The litter of puppies was 12 in total, 11 of them went to different homes. All of the puppies except mine went to their homes the weekend of Sept 9-Sept 11. I picked my puppy up 10-11 days later. The other 2 puppies got sick a little over a week before mine did. So the timeline also seems to line up with when the puppies were brought home and started on the new bag of food. When I brought my puppy to the vet on Mon 9/26, the vet staff was very concerned by the look and demeanor of my puppy and immediately suspected parvo virus due to the symptoms and level of sickness. He tested negative for parvo and negative for parasites. He was given an anti-emetic shot and iv fluids in office and I was sent home with oral antibiotics. I immediately switched dog foods and started the antibiotics when we arrived home. The puppy was significantly better within 24 hours and back to his baseline within 48 hours.	10	Weeks	Retriever - Golden	Dog	9	Pound

EON-503713	10/6/2022 22:00	Royal Canin Gastrointestinal Low fat	Started seeing flying bugs in my basement and kitchen, soon after purchasing a case of Royal Canin prescription GI low fat canned, dog food. After a few weeks, of searching for the source, tossing out human food and cleaning, I pulled out the case of Royal Canin canned food and it was swarming with bugs, filled with eggs, etc. The bottom layer of 12 cans was so severely damaged, that several were popped open, filled with bugs and nearly empty of food. I informed the Vet, where I purchased the food, and they said they would take it back, but I did not want to bring those bugs into the hospital. I proceeded to toss out the bad food and contacted the manufacturer, Royal Canin. I gave the info on the can I had that wasn't damaged, but they refused to do any investigation, saying it wasn't enough information and they offered me no compensation or any concern. They simply said they were sorry this happened.

EON-503672	10/6/2022 13:16	Authority Everyday Health Indoor Kitten Cat Wet Food - 5.5 Oz Pate With-Grain Chicken & Liver Entree	Yesterday I went to Petsmart in (b) (6) and bought a case of the Company Brand Authority of Kitten Chicken & Liver Entree 5.5 oz cans. Best if used by date May 12, 2025; Lot number is, I believe (it is hard to read), 9KCLU1 1003. I didn't notice until I got home that several of the cans were bulging. When I open the package to get a closer look there were, in fact, 16 of the 24 cans bulging. I called the store to report that I would be bringing them back but I also decided to call the company number that was printed on the can as well. The person who took the call was only going to report a problem. Didn't ask what the food was, what size, or anything else. I insisted that she get more information. She then took the name of the food and was ready to disconnect when I informed her she had to have more information. If this was a problem they needed the best by date, lot number etc. She said ok and asked if there was anything else she could help me with, even though she still had not gotten any of the information from me. I asked to speak with a supervisor. After a few minutes another woman came on the line and I explained the situation. She said she was sorry that happened and asked what she could do to help. I told her she needed to get the information from the can so they could track the lot number because that many bulging cans in one case was a problem for that lot and that it was probably botulism that could kill cats & kittens. She then said this was something she had never had to do before so I gave her the name of the product, the size cans, the UPC #, the expiration date and lot number. She said she would forward it to the next department.
			This concerns me because she was a "manager" and if she had no idea what to do in a situation like that it could potentially kill hundreds or thousands of animals. There has been a huge shortage of canned pet foods recently and the only thing I can take from this is that their quality control decided to allow the product out into the market just to fill shelves. This is a blatant disregard for the lives and welfare of the animals it could affect and this company needs to fix their reporting issues. I potentially see needless veterinary bills and pain and suffering for the animals as well as their owners. The veterinary costs associated with treatment for an animal sickened by tainted food products can run into thousands of dollars if the pet even survives. Many people simply can't afford these costs. Please check this product out to see if there are any other issues and please make this company fix their products as well as their reporting process.
EON-503670	10/6/2022 13:00	PUREVITA GRAIN FREE 96% REAL BEEF ENTREE CANNED CAT FOOD	On 9/29/2022, I gave my pet 1/2 can (around 2.75 oz) of PUREVITA GRAIN FREE 96% REAL BEEF ENTREE CANNED CAT FOOD. Within 30 minutes of finishing her meal she proceeded to vomit it ALL up. She became lethargic and was clearly having a reaction as her eyes were watery and her face became slightly swollen; lasting around 24 hours. She has never had a reaction to new foods like this in the past. I accidentally fed her the same food on 10/5/2022. She did not vomit; however, she did become lethargic and her eyes became watery. Again, this lasted for around 24 hours. I contacted the company that I purchased the food through, Loyal Companion, on 10/6/2022 to discuss returning the product and to notify of my cats reaction. EON-503631	10/5/2022 22:24	Wellness Pate Chicken & Herring Dinner Smooth Loaf	(b) (6) = almost 11 months old American Short-Hair/Tabby/part Bengal (littermate brother = (b) (6)) Sept. 28, 2022 I was running late so I quickly dished out three bigger scoops of wet food, set it down and left (12:05pm). I came back home for lunch at 12:35pm. Not all of the food had been eaten (this is very rare, as my two kittens usually gobble it up - especially (b) (6)). (b) (6) not eating in afternoon or evening - very unusual. (b) (6) ate, just not as much. They ate a few treats in kitty condo. (b) (6) clearly not feeling well, lethargic, and not eating (usually rambunctious play and eating in evenings). Neither kittens were too keen on eating the cat food at lunch, at 4pm or in the evening ((b) (6) ate a little, (b) (6) none in the afternoon after lunch). Around 8pm I found vomit with a rubber piece in it in the basement (quite a bit of vomit - about 3-4 locations). More vomit found upstairs in our bedroom (not a lot). Approx. 8hrs between possibly eating the rubber and vomiting (12:05 - 8pm ish) (b) (6) ate some food during the afternoon and evening, and (b) (6) ate a little at 10:25pm, but I didn't want him to eat much since he had been so sick. I gave them some goats milk to stay hydrated ((b) (6) didn't drink much of it - (b) (6) drank most of it).
			Thurs, Sept 29 I contacted the pet food manufacturer via email the first morning after (b) (6) was sick. I also sent photos of the rubber piece found in the vomit, and photos of the can it likely came from (sides and bottom of can). I also put the can and remainder of the contents in the freezer. My husband and I have searched our house for any remnants of rubber and racked our brains with what it could be (besides contaminants in the cat food), but each time we come back to it most likely came in the wet food. We do not have any other pets or children, and no visiting guests where the rubber could have come from. (b) (6) eats very fast and with large bites. He likely took a big bite of wet food and swallowed before realizing there was rubber in his mouth. He stopped eating part way through his meal (likely right after swallowing the rubber as that would have been painful). He was unwell and not eating the rest of the afternoon and evening and vomitted multiple times. Monday, Oct. 3 Five days (and three hospital visits later) - (b) (6) had to have emergency gastrointestinal surgery as a smaller piece of rubber got stuck in his GI tract (duodenum). I asked the surgeon to please keep the piece of rubber so I can send it in (and he did). We want to make sure other pets do not ingest any rubber that may have contaminated other cans of food. This is a good company (from our knowledge and hours of research) and likely a mistake from the plant.

Recently, every time my dog eats the dry food, within minutes, he starts to snort and reverse sneeze, and then vomits the food up. He did this several times, so I switched him to a sensitive stomach wet food diet thinking he had a stomach bug or just didn't feel well. He has eaten the wet food for 2 days and not vomited it a single time. Tonight, I fed him the dry food previously mentioned, and he has not finished his bowl and he started to snort, reverse sneeze and vomited the food. Since he ate the other food for 2 days and was fine, I have to assume it is the dry food making my dog vomit. I would like to add that my dog does not eat very fast. Medication and a digestive diet was prescribed. By 8/29/22, they had not improved, were barely eating and were still throwing up so I called my regular veterinarian and took them in that day. I have also opened a ticket with PetSmart to ask when the review will be posted as I believe customers should be aware of the sharp bone pieces that are in this food. For some background, I had started giving one of my dogs this food about a month ago. In the beginning this seemed like a wonderful find, but then I had started to notice small hard pieces in the food, which originally I thought was the rice. But then I started to look closer (smashing the wet food in my fingers) and was disappointed to find that there were several sharp bone pieces in the food. It was not just a few cans, it was in all of them that I started to inspect very closely (about 5 cans). I've purchased over 40 cans in the last month, but was able to return the last 24 cans I just bought after discovering the bone pieces. I went to the Petsmart in (b) (6) (on Saturday 9/24) where I purchased these cans, and spoke with the manager and showed the bone pieces that I had found in one of the cans. The Manager informed me that she would speak with the Nulo rep and also return the cans I bought as not resalable.
			I strongly believe there is something not right about finding these sharp bone pieces in this food, which is advertised to be free of meat by-products and also for small breed dogs. The pieces I found were sharp and hard, and I feel these pieces could cause damage while trying to make their way through the digestive system of a small breed dog, I have also contacted Nulo but do not believe the response is satisfactory. Nulo thanked me for bringing this to their attention, apologized for my experience, and advised me that their "food is designed to have a more finely ground texture, however a small amount of ground bone or soft cartilage is inherent because our product, unlike many others, contains a high level of animal-based protein sources, rather than plant based-protein sources. Generally, small pieces of bone found in cans are not harmful for pets and can be easily broken up and digested, especially when eaten with a full meal (as opposed to a pet chewing on an intact bone and swallowing much larger fragments by themselves)."... Nulo also did ask for the best by dates and production codes, which I did provide them a photo of, so that their Quality Assurance Team can review. Again, I strongly believe there is an issue with this product and it concerns me that Petsmart will not post my review to allow customers to know and then decide for themselves if they would still like to buy this product, and that also, this is still being sold. I believe this product is falsely advertised as being a premium product.

My foster kitties, One young adult cat and 5 kittens, were fed canned Fancy Feast kitten food for breakfast around 8am. Within about 2 hours of food consumption, all six kitties began having diarrhea. Diarrhea worsened throughout the day and they became lethargic. Two of the kittens vomited. All 6 kitties were prescribed metronidazole and Fortiflora for the diarrhea and cerenia for abdominal pain and nausea. Fecal was negative for GI parasites. They were prescribed a prescription GI diet while they recoverd from being sick. The two kittens that vomited received B vitamin injections. The kittens and young adult cat have eaten Fancy Feast kitten food many times prior to this incident, but this was a new box of Fancy Feast kitten food. The two veterinarians that I work with examined the kitties and felt that the severe GI upset was due to the food.			Domestic Shorthair	Cat

Which should of been my 1st sign not to buy the dog food. When I arrived at home the one box was infested with hundreds of some type of insect and the 2nd time, which was yesterday, the box was infested with maggots. I called the Dollar tree store notified an employee about the situation. I was asked if I wanted to go back to the store to grab another box. Obviously my response was, "NO!!!" I advised the lady to check the food and about whatever was flying around. I had to search my whole house because I noticed the maggots were crawling up my kitchen walls. The one bag where the dog food was also had maggots in it. Needless to say that it was disgusting. I 1st noticed the maggots were crawling up the wall where I had placed the food in the food bowl. EON-502582	9/28/2022 16:12	Line-Caught Alaskan Cod Salmon & Sweet Potato Recipe. Purina Beyond.	I purchased Purina's Line-caught Alaskan cod, salmon & sweet potato recipe. The pictures on the label show cod, salmon, and sweet potato. My dog has a severe allergy to chicken. When he started to scratch himself until he bled, I didn't understand what had happened. I looked at the ingredients on the back of the can, and it read, "cod, chicken, fish broth, turkey, liver, salmon, sweet potato." The label is meant to mislead consumers into thinking that cod, salmon, and sweet potato are the main ingredients. It does not mention that chicken is the second ingredient. As a result, I have to take him to the vet to ensure the wounds don't get infected. Not only will this cost me money, but it has upset both my dog and me. I understand their response but also have concerns in general because I would imagine the majority of consumers run into similar issues where bags are disposed of due to placing food in containers and delayed onset of conditions leads to food packaging being disposed of. We have a follow up blood draw in two weeks to see the condition of the liver enzymes and have kept the food and stools for sampling purposes. Initial Message to Manufacturer: I am contacting you in regards to my dogs situation that occurred recently. On Monday the 12th (b) (6) ate a full bowl of the dog food shown in the Amazon purchase picture attached and referenced in the information section above. For the next 8 days (b) (6) did not eat but had energy and was seemingly fine visually. She would still take treats but refused to the kibble she had previously eaten. On the 9th and 10th day she began peeing more frequently and it got to the point where on 9/22 I felt it was necessary to get her into a vet for an emergency visit. Upon the visit there were x rays performed that showed large amounts of inflammation in her GI tract. A urine sample was taken and it came back showing signs of having an infection. Two days later we took her to our personal vet to have a follow up and make sure the ER vet did not miss anything. Blood samples were procured and the results showed multiple issues related to elevated liver enzymes. I am contacting you to ask if there are any similar issues that have been reported regarding this topic and if you have information to share or support you can provide in general. I am also contacting you to see if you are interested in obtaining a sample of this food for your own testing purposes as we will be sending out the food for laboratory testing. Happy to provide any other information necessary. We had transferred the bag to a food container and threw out the bag that night. EON-502307	9/25/2022 22:28	Soft and Chewy Milkbone	I have been giving (b) (6) the "Soft and Chewy Milkbone" snacks ever since he was a little puppy. Around that time he had a few seizures (my belief was that it was because of his slipped disc to which he recovered from). His seizures would come every few years, they were very infrequent until about two years ago. He began to have seizures every other day. I had taken him to various vets and they told me he had epilepsy. During those times that he was having these frequent seizures, I had increased his snack intake (those same soft and chewy snacks) drastically. He was getting them three times a day, everyday. When I went on vacation in July for three weeks, my sister was watching him and she did not give him any of those snacks. During my time away, he did not have a single seizure. When I came back, I began to give him those snacks again and he began to have seizures again. I stopped giving him those snacks altogether and his seizures stopped. I looked at the ingredients in those snacks and it has propylene glycol (this is banned in cat food but not dog food). I did a lot of research on this ingredient and read so many stories about people who gave their dogs food/snacks with this ingredient and their dogs began to have seizures. When they stopped giving their dogs this ingredient, the seizures stopped. Propylene glycol is an ingredient in anti-freeze. I am confident to say that my dog's seizures was because of the propylene glycol in his snacks. The date that I put, was the first time I had actually wrote in my calendar that (b) (6) had a seizure. I did want to clarify that he did have seizures before that.	11	Years	Shih Tzu	Dog	14	Pound

I took the female beagle in urgent care late the following evening after initial episode but they were only admitting critical patients due to staffing shortage. I collected a fecal sample and had their vet run a parasite test which was negative. I have an appointment scheduled for them tomorrow afternoon, and even though they are feeling much better, I am still deeply concerned something was wrong with the filling in the bones. EON-502287	9/25/2022 14:04	Orijen duck and chicken entree in bone broth adult cat food	Three months ago I purchased the Orijen canned chicken and duck cat food from Champion pet foods for my very finicky 9 yr old cat. She LOVED it and soon wouldn't eat anything else. We noticed that she was drinking a LOT of water on this diet, to the extent that she would go to the tap right after eating and ask for water. Prior to trying this food she rarely drank extra water. So, we started adding water to this already soupy food, but it didn't stop her water drinking. Thinking the food might be too high in sodium, we made a vet appointment and ran complete blood work and urine analysis. Shockingly, in three months of feeding this food (her labs had been done three months prior showing high normal kidney function (2.0) and all other systems normal) she is now showing signs of early kidney disease (2.5). We were advised by our vet to stop the Orijen food immediately. Immediately after eliminating the food, our cat stopped the excess water drinking (75% drop in excess water intake). We are now adjusting her diet and will redo her labs in 1 month in the hope that this food didn't do too much kidney damage. I was also unable to get a full nutritional analysis document from this company (I was told they don't have one yet - how can a product be brought to market without a nutritional analysis document??) and the few details I did get and passed to my vet didn't make sense to our vet when she compared them with other brands' nutritional data. Because this happened to our cat so fast and this kind of kidney damage is irreversible, I felt compelled to file a complaint.	9	Years	Abyssinian cat	Cat	7.2	Pound

EON-501789	9/19/2022 18:52	Pet Botanics Mini Training Reward Chicken Flavor	After eating a couple of the treats, the following day, my dog was violently vomiting and having diarrhea, all over the entire house. He continued to throw up all of the food in his stomach as well as bile because there was nothing left. His poop started like soft serve ice cream, and eventually got to the point where it was just water with blood in it. He was shaking profusely. We ended up taking him to the vet to get multiple shots and pills, and determined it was more than likely from these treats, as nothing else in his diet or routine changed and he wouldn't have gotten into anything. We were left with a couple hundred in medical bills and had to throw away furnishings in our home that were absolutely ruined due to his illness.	2.5	Years	Shih Tzu	Dog	14.06	Pound
EON-501771	9/19/2022 15:04	Wellness	I started a gradual 10 day transition to Wellness Gravies chicken entrée can food. On the 3rd day I noticed both of my cats using the litter box very frequently. The amount of bowel movements became more and more as the days passed and I added more food. When I looked at the ingredients I noticed FLAXSEED. Then one of my cats began over grooming herself so I took her to the vet. They took blood, did urine and stool test. Vet said FLAXSEED could cause "VOLUMOUS POOP" Came back positive for Urinary tract infection probably from over cleaning herself from all the bowel movements. Went on antibiotic. Then had to have urine retested again. Bills came out to over $500. After stopping the food both cats went back to normal bowel movements. I reported to Chewys where I purchased it from and to the company Wellness. I was told by Chewys I would be able to get my vet bills paid. Then they said they could not do that and I needed to report it to Wellness. Wellness sent me an apology letter but that their vet was no able to make any correlation. They also sent me $100 of coupons which I attempted to use today at Petco and they were not accepted. Petco said when they scanned the coupons nothing was found. So Wellness not only did not pay for my vet bills but also sent me $100 worth of useless coupons that do not work. FLAXSEED does not belong in cat food. This is their regular diet. We have 15 indoor only cats that are spayed/neutered and up to date on vaccinations living together in the same home. They range in age from just under a year old to 16 years old. The only difference in their daily life is that 3 of them eat a prescription diet from Royal Canin and the other 12 eat Purina Naturals. We meal feed. They all eat a measured amount from their own bowl and are separated for meals so we know exactly who eats what. Tuesday 8-30-22 we woke up to several piles of blood tinged vomit. Only one cat did not eat breakfast that morning. By Wednesday 8-31-22 AM more cats were sick, inappetence, diarrhea, bloody vomit and lethargy. I took the two sickest cats into (b) (6). They had labwork with no significant findings. All sick cats were being treated symptomatically. By Wednesday evening it was obvious that the only three cats not sick were the three eating the Royal Canin diet. The Purina was stopped and Royal Canin Prescription GI diet was started. I contacted the manufacturer who said there had not been any recalls and that I could submit a sample of the food to them for quality control testing that would take three months. I agreed to send them the sample and provided them with the lot numbers (2084 1085 0944L05 Best by Sep 2023) and everything they requested but told them that was an unacceptable response as I had twelve actively sick cats. I told them that I was concerned about other cats being sick and it not being caught as a cats routine diet is not the first thing we think to be the problem when a cat comes into the hospital sick and that my situation was unique in being able to pin point the potential cause for illness. I consulted with my veterinarian as well as (b) (6) who referred me the (b) (6) for food testing.			Years	Domestic (unspecified)	Cat
			They sent me an overnight label but do to the holiday weekend the sample was not able to be sent until 9-6-22 as the lab was closed. I received the packing materials from Purina on 9-9-22 and sent them their sample as well. I received partial results today from the (b) (6) confirming the presence of Bacillus Cereus, Bacillus Subtilis and Enterococcus Faecium. Illness and recovery for my kitties has varied for each one and has been up and down. Vomiting has stopped, still dealing with some inappetence and some diarrhea. A They improved overall with symptomatic treatments that include, subcutaneous fluids, anti-nausea medication, stomach protectant, antibiotics and appetite stimulants.

EON-501488	9/14/2022 18:44	Earthborn Coastal Catch, AvoDerm Original Lamb Meal & Brown Rice Recipe Adult Dry Dog Food	Dog Food Copper Over-Supplementation Came Close to Killing My Otherwise Healthy Labrador Retriever Problem Summary Commercial dog food does not include copper levels as a part of the label. Copper storage disease is entirely preventable by limiting the copper levels in commercial dog food to zero or to a safe level for all dogs. (b) (6), my lovely Labrador retriever was born (b) (6) was a healthy happy puppy. Her breeder alerted us about copper storage disease being a concern for Labs in 2015. (b) (6) had been on Earthborn Coastal Catch dry dog food, recommended by her breeder once she was weaned and on solid food. As the breeder became aware of copper storage disease and the challenge of finding out how much copper was in commercial dog food, she did a great deal of research, as copper levels are not on dog food labels, and found the lowest copper-level commercial dog food, which at that time was Avoderm Original Lamb and Brown Rice, which I began feeding (b) (6) in June 2016. (b) (6) was 2.5 year at that time. (b) (6) was an active Lab and was fun to train using positive training methods. She gained her Canine Good Citizen Community/Urban Titles, Rally Level 2 Title and Senior Dock Diving title by age 7. She was still very vigorous, acting like a happy young dog at that age. In January 2021, (b) (6) vomited several times, which was very unusual for her. I called her regular vet, (b) (6) immediately and after tests, she noted that (b) (6) was at increased risk for pyometra and needed to be spayed. Knowing of copper storage disease concerns in Labs, she recommended going to the Veterinary Specialty Hospital now known as (b) (6) who could spay her and at that time perform a liver biopsy. (b) (6)surgery was 1/26/21. The liver biopsy results are 1880 liver quantification Grade 3 of 5.	8 Years	Retriever - Labrador	Dog	28 Kilogram
			The Vet Specialty Hospital team was led by (b) (6), and Internal Medicine specialist who had treated many dogs for copper toxicosis. He brought in a Canine Nutritionist, and together developed a treatment plan. Key elements were as follows: ? (b) (6) came off Avoderm completely early in the week following the biopsy. A custom diet was developed by the Nutritionist. (b) (6) was fed this diet 3 times per day with specified number of grams per day of eggs, soybeans, couscous, carrots, green beans, spinach, pumpkin and canola oil was developed by a Nutritionist connected with the Internal Medicine practice that developed her treatment plan. I had to figure out how to prepare this in batches for a week, preparing it as a casserole, which took about 4-5 hours each week. Apples and blueberries were her only training treats. She has daily supplements including B-6, Folic acid, Vitamin E, BalanceIT-Cu and Welactin Canine Omega 3 liquid. ? She began D-penicillamine 10-15mg/kg 350mg on an empty stomach by mouth every 12 hours made by a compounding pharmacy called Stokes Pharmacy. ? She began SAME 20mg/kg known as Denamarin Tablets with one large dog tab and one medium dog tab daily. (b) (6) was being closely monitored on the D-Pen, and I was able to do so easily since this occurred during the COVID-19 pandemic, where I was able to work my fulltime job from my home office, where she would be with me during the day. She began vomiting again in late April 2021. On 5.20.21 she became very ill. She was vomiting with diarrhea and very unsteady on her feet. (b) (6) recommended that I take her straight to the (b) (6) where she was admitted. She almost died that weekend, kept alive with fluid IVs. It was determined that there were serious renal complications due to the D-penicillamine. The Medical record note states D-penicillamine – Please

			DISCONTINUE forever. She was discharged 5-23-21 and was still very weak, thin, and sickly. She did not want to eat. She was on new medications, including prednisone, and telmisartan. I was told to use a product called Entyce to get her to eat and to use Cerenia for nausea, vomiting and decreased appetite. She also lost her ability to blink and needed Genteal Eye lubricant. We were told to add Royal Canin Hepatic canned dog food to her custom diet. Eventually her appetite came back. She was able to blink her eyes again after about 8-10 weeks. Now she gets 1 can per day spread over 3 meals and combined with the egg and couscous recipe. She has been under care of (b) (6), getting rechecks until August 2022; and she is returning to regular care with (b) (6) who ran urine P:C tests and will continue to monitor her every 6 months. Total costs of biopsy, Emergency Hospital stays, and (b) (6) totaled to $9,379.45. This does not include vitamins, dietary supplements, the cost of medications, and custom meals. I am fortunate that I had the resources to pay for this very expensive and totally preventable health problem, and I am aware of many not so fortunate. (b) (6) is doing well now, thanks to my breeder's awareness, my quick action, and good veterinary care from (b) (6) (b) (6) will continue to be monitored, given daily Denamarin and fed her specialty diet and supplements. She recently became a Certified Pet Therapy dog, as she loves to greet people, and we hope to work with school and college kids that are working to recover from their social isolation during these last two COVID years. I am grateful for FDA's work on COVID vaccines and boosters – thank you.
			Labs are the most popular breed in America and while they may have a genetic predisposition for copper storage disease, their numbers mean that they were simply among the first breeds to be identified. Her Internal Medicine Vet has sadly reported that he continues to see an uptick in this diagnosis, as has been noted, beyond breeds that may be genetically predisposed. I have had other breeds and rescues and (b) (6) has taught me that I love having a Lab. This has been a very hard year for us, full of grief and anxiety over her shaky recovery from a disease that is entirely preventable. I want to be able to keep all pets from going through what my Lab and my family have been through. We are all in this together. I am pleading on behalf of dog lovers that the FDA take immediate corrective action to: require copper levels to be listed on the containers of commercial dog foods, and lower the copper concentration in commercial dog food to a safe level to mitigate this avoidable and potentially fatal illness.

Friday (b) (6) began to throw up and wasn't acting like herself. Was up pacing through the night. Restless all night, thought maybe she ate a bug and was having a reaction. Never thought it was the food because we buy this brand and have been using the exact one for at least 6 months without any issues. By Tuesday I made a vet appointment and Wednesday she was acting more normal. So thought nothing of it and canceled the appointment. Then our boxer started to throw up and wasn't keeping any of the food down, we watched him and thought maybe it's the new bag of kibble, by day two he was still throwing up and I had a vet appointment already scheduled for that next Friday for both my Boxer and the Chug. We stopped giving all the dogs the kibble and the next day my Chug stopped eating, he never threw up but had no appetite. We made boiled chicken and rice and fed them that the next few days because their stools were runny, dark and not normal. On Friday we took them to the vet for their check up and asked about the food and the vet said it's common due to the food staying in warehouses longer and not shipped on refrigerated trucks so they go bad. The Boston Terrier and the Boxer have no more symptoms the Chug is still off his food. The boxer lost 10 lbs. I contacted Petco but due to us throwing out the bag, they will not give us a refund even with a receipt. My pet's overall behavior was normal before giving him the Calming Chews was normal - he was spunky, active, alert, eating and drinking normal. We gave him 3 chews as directed for his weight and age around 9am on 9/9/22. After giving him the chews I took him outside where he ran around the yard as normal. Around noon we decided to take him to the State Park for a walk (5 minute drive from the home). Once arriving at the state park I took him out of the car where he proceeded to forcefully throw himself on the ground (the dirt and the pavement). He started retching but nothing was coming up and at one point he was retching and squatting as if he was going to poop. He was clearly agitated and kept pacing and then throwing himself on the ground whimpering. After about 15 minutes of the behavior we decided to load him back in the car and take him back to the house. When arriving to the house he was panting excessively, whimpering with every movement, kept getting up and laying down and rolling around on the ground. His gums and tongue were pale pink and he felt cold on his underbelly. This was not typical behavior for him. As we got him in the house while we tried to contact a local vet to see him, he was trying to hide in the closet and bathroom. We took him to an animal hospital over a hour away and when we arrived his heart rate was over 200 - extremely dangerous and continued retching. We contacted poison control to go over the Calming Treat ingredients, which they deemed safe for dogs. We tried to contact the number on the Calming Treat can and it was unavailable. We wanted to bring to your attention a possible problem our dog had with the Purina Pro Plan Beef dog food. She became very ill after she ate from a new bag we had just opened. Prior to us knowing she had been fed three times. The first time she started to react differently and did not want to complete her food. This is not her normal behavior. She always eats her complete meal. The second and third time we fed her were the same issues in which time she began to throw up followed by diarrhea. This became problematic to the point she was dry heaving and bleeding. We did take her to the Vet Hospital (due to time of night) and were able to start her on IV's and antibiotics. X-rays determined there was no blockage or mechanical issue however her intestines were dilated but no direct issue could be determined. Her blood work suggested there may be some sort of bacterial infection. We are informing you about this in case others have had issues with their dog food. We are supplying the info from her food to provide you the identity from the food she ate. Our may concern is to be informative and ensure other dogs do not have the same issue with this batch of dog food. If you need to contact us for further information please feel free to do so. When the dog food was getting low, I put the rest in oven to kill remaining weevils. Opened 2nd bag which was heavily infested with weevils. I had hoped it was only one bag. Nope, both bags were already infected. Simply Nourish needs to clean their factory free of weevils! It's bad to sell a product that is infected with grain-eating bugs.

EON-500646	9/3/2022 0:00	Member's Mark Chicken Jersey Recipe	Our Maltipoo, (b) (6), had been eating Chicken Jerky Treats from Member's Mark (Sam's Club). She is only 15 pounds and would eat 2-3 a day. Our Goldendoodle, (b) (6), would eat the same amount but he is 65 pounds. One day we noticed a large amount of urine on our floor. (b) (6) had an accident in the house which she never does. We also noticed she was drinking large amounts of water and not eating. The only thing she would eat were the treats. This went on for several days. We took her in to see the vet. They checked her sugar, urine, and complete blood work. Her Potassium was very low and a few other factors. The vet gave her an appetite enhancer, pain medicine and antibiotic. They believed she had a urinary or bladder infection. After a few more days, she was not improving. No eating except the dog treats, drinking lots of water and having many accidents and the urine was clear in color. We took her back to the vet and her potassium was lower. The vet sent us to a specialist who performed and ultrasound and more blood work. She was in ICU for 2 nights and receiving potassium, fluids, and other meds by IV. When she came home, we discontinued the dog treats, continued giving her the prescribed Potassium supplements and appetite enhancer. She finally began to eat and her water intake while still high, was lower than a few days before. She stopped having accidents in the house. 2 weeks later she had a follow-up with the specialist. Her potassium levels were coming up but still a little low. They provided me the results from the blood work and it specified she had Falcon Syndrome from the ingestion of Chicken Jerky Treats. The prolonged consumption of the treats created a toxicity in her system. She is improving but has to have continued follow-ups and possible long-term potassium supplements. We are praying she recovers completely. We have eliminated the product from our home.	10	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	15	Pound

Zero signs of distress. She was fed right before we went out for dinner around 7:30 pm I believe. A cup of dry food and a packet of wet food. When we returned home around 9 pm she had pooped twice. Once on a pad and once on the floor as if she couldn't make it to the pad. She had also vomited on her dog bed right next to where we found her. She was very lethargic and would not get up or change positions even though she acted like she wanted to. She was responsive this whole time. After about an hour of monitoring her I assisted her to stand up and she stood before laying back down. Around 11 pm she finally stirred and got up for us to take her out to pee. When we returned to the house she drank lots of water and proceeded to vomit twice before drinking more water. She seemed more alert which made us think that she might have gotten a stomach bug or eaten something bad and she had gotten rid of most of it. She laid down near her water bowl, but we encouraged her back to her dog bed in the living room so that we could better monitor her. From this point she would change positions occasionally and not stay still. I stayed with her until about 1 am and went to bed. She was alone for about 30 minutes while my brother chatted with me. He then went to watch her for the rest of the night. He did ask me to come look at her when he returned to her because she was laying awkwardly on the floor with her rear feet on the bed, but that isn't unusual for her.	11.5	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	60	Pound
			About 30 minutes to an hour later my brother called me in alarm. When I arrived (b) (6) was laying on her side and panting heavily in distress. We woke up our mother and the three of us decided to take her to the emergency vet. I called to make sure they were open and they encouraged me to bring her in after describing the symptoms. Having decided to take her to the emergency vet we all went to get clothed and when we returned moments later she was not responsive and I saw her take her final breaths. We contributed the incident solely to her health condition, and that may still be the case; however, the suddenness of her passing raised my suspicions. I found that mom had opened a new box of wet food and fed her the first packet taken from that box. My concern is that this wet food pouch may have been contaminated and led to the poisoning of our dog. I am reporting this in case you want to investigate or corollate with other reports. I truly hope this is not the case and no other animals are being harmed. She was fed a Pedigree Chicken Casserole Flavor packet. All of the information about the box and the packet are below. On August 28, 2022, we fed our two cats Verus Feline - Tuna Paté Formula (one can total, split into two bowls). The food was stored in a cool, dark cabinet before use. Can was opened and a small amount of water was added to the product before immediately serving. Cat 1 vomited just minutes after the food was initially consumed. Cat 2 vomited about 20-30 minutes after the food was initially consumed. This was our first time using this brand and product. The first two ingredients of the product are tuna and chicken liver. Neither cat has ever shown an allergy to either of these ingredients. Additionally, Cat 2 (3 years old) has never vomited outside of what are clearly hairballs, so this was already an unusual occurrence made even more so by both cats becoming ill at the same time. Each cat was sick very soon after eating the food and vomited only the food. Both cats recovered in ~1 hour and were able to drink and eat solid food without further clinical symptoms.	7	Years	Domestic (unspecified)	Cat	10	Pound

EON-499856	8/23/2022 12:25	Blue Delights For Small Breed Dogs Top Sirloin Flavor Pate	I, (b) (6), am writing about Blue Buffalo, regarding a dog food purchase that ended up killing my beloved pug, (b) (6). It happened on 07/28/2022. I came home that morning, and (b) (6) wasn't acting right; she was going in circles, bumping her head into the walls, and not paying attention when I called her name. She was acting "out of it". I thought she had a stroke, and it scared me. I called her Veterinarian - (b) (6) office, and they got me in. (b) (6) looked at her and tells me to put her on the floor. (b) (6) did the same thing: going in circles, bumped her head into things, and she just wasn't right. He asked me some questions, like was she outside? No, she's an inside dog. Did she eat chocolate or table scrapes? I said no, only her regular dog food, which was Blue Buffalo dog food. They keep (b) (6) overnight for observation. They gave her IV medication, antibiotics, shots, and they put her on oxygen. I was so upset because she's a baby, and she's my baby. I got her back. She was like my normal (b) (6) - happy and playful. I was just happy to see her well. That's all I wanted. Then on (b) (6) was good all morning. She had her food Blue Buffalo, then the afternoon hit, and she had diarrhea, vomiting, fever, and she was drinking a lot of water. She then started to become lethargic and had fast/slow breathing, so I called the Emergency Veterinarian. They said they would take her in. I rushed her in, and they did blood work, chest x-rays, gave her oxygen, and started IV. The Veterinarian told me that things looked really bad. He asked questions, like was she outside? No, she is an inside dog. Did she get into toxic chemicals or eat anything different? I said no, I always give her Blue Buffalo. I said she got her shipment in of her dog food from Chewy; it's Blue Buffalo Blue Delights Top Sirloin Flavor Pate.	19	Months	Pug	Dog	6	Pound
			She has always eaten this food, but this was a new shipment, and I have been feeding her this since she got sick the first time. I let him know this and he said it's a possibility it could be the food. Her blood work was off, and he said she has a bad infection. I just couldn't comprehend this information - that was my baby (b) (6). He then asked me, "Ma'am, are you understanding what I'm telling you? Your dog only has a 10-15% chance of making it through the night". I said okay because I was disbelief what was going on. The other Veterinarian came to me and said, "I know this is hard. Do you understand how ill your dog is?" I said yes and no. She said, "Ma'am, (b) (6) may not make it through the night". I just fell apart; she was only a baby. I asked if I could see her, and she said yes, so I went to see (b) (6). She was hooked up to oxygen and yet, she was gasping for air. I just seen her so helpless, and I asked myself - what could I do for her? I asked the Veterinarian, "Is she suffering from this?" She said yes, she is. I told her I don't want her to suffer, and she said another option for you is to put her to sleep; I just lost it again. I couldn't believe this was happening. I called my husband, daughter, son, so they could say their goodbyes, and they left afterwards. It was just me holding her and the Veterinarian came in, explained to me what she was giving her, and how she would react; then, (b) (6) was gone. I cried and cried, watching my beloved baby girl pass away. Here is my story. I'm giving you all the information you requested. Please look over my case. Thursday), (b) (6), the first dog (who has cancer) started having diarrhea, even though she had been off of chemo for a week. I called the vet's office on Friday and the oncologist is out until Monday. Saturday morning, the next dog, (b) (6), a 12 1/2 yr old Chocolate Lab started getting diarrhea. Also on Saturday, my 3 yr old Foster named (b) (6) started getting diarrhea AND vomited in his bed. And on Saturday as well, my 14 year old dog named (b) (6) developed watery diarrhea. Worse diarrhea than the others. I have 3 other dogs in my home who have NOT been given Tundra and none of the three are sick. I have serious concerns that there is some sort of bacterial contamination in this bag and probably others as well that can make other dogs sick or even kill them. I don't want more dogs to get sick or die because I did nothing. I am pretty sure it's this bag of dog food as only my dogs that ate this food are sick. My dog, (b) (6), is the youngest of the four sick dogs. He's super healthy and has never been sick. The other three are older, and the diarrhea has been hard on them. I have searched all over this bag - even using a flashlight - and can find no lot number or expiration date. Also, I have 4 sick dogs but your form only allows me to report on one, so I picked the youngest - (b) (6).	3	Years	Retriever - Labrador	Dog	80	Pound

They drained his bladder and then we took him to another pet hospital where he could monitored with a catheter and I.V. for several days. EON-498668	8/14/2022 20:28	Bayside Selects Ultimate ProPac Ultimate for Adult Dogs	Approximately two weeks ago while on a camping trip in (b) (6) started to reject his usual food of 6-8 years, Bayside Selects Pro Pac Ultimates Grain Free dog food. For the next few days he would take his treats (Milk Bones and Blue brand Health Bars) and some fresh vegetables (carrots and blueberries) but generally refused to eat his normal food. While outside on this trip, (b) (6) was on a leash and did not spend time outside unsupervised. (b) (6) slept and spent his leisure time in the camper. On Sunday, July 31st, approximately 1-2 days after returning from the trip, (b) (6) had a vomiting episode in the morning but took food later in the day. The next day, Monday, (b) (6) was taken to the vet due to bloody diarrhea. It was from this initial visit that he was diagnosed with pancreatitis and colitis. He left this vet appointment with the following medication: an appetite stimulant, antibiotic, probiotic, anti-vomiting, liver and pancreatic antioxidants. From here, he was fed a diet of boiled chicken, white rice, and cooked green beans at our vets advice. In the past when we have encountered gastrointestinal issues this is food he seemed to the most. After 2 days, (b) (6) would refuse this food, so we bought a half dozen cans of Hill's Prescription Diet i/d low fat dog food. He continued this cycle of vomiting, grazing food, and taking and refusing medicine for another two days. On 8/9, (b) (6) spent the morning vomiting. He was found one afternoon laying in bed surrounded by his own vomit because because he was too weak to move. He was taken to the vet and given medication intravenously. At this point, we were feeding him de-skinned apples and apple sauce, even crushing his medication into his apple sauce so he would take some of it. The following morning, 8/10, he was admitted to the vet once more after peeing what looked like blood and vomiting a substance white in color that, according to our mother, resembled egg whites (he was not fed any eggs during the past several weeks). From this second admittance he was diagnosed again with pancreatitis and colitis; additionally, he was diagnosed with hepatitis and IMHA, or immune mediated hemolytic anemia.	12	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	22	Pound
			From here, (b) (6) was under vet supervision for the next two days to allow time for the medicine used to treat IMHA to take effect. After (b) (6) his blood work showed a rapid and dangerous decline in his hematocrit levels, indicating that the treatment was not effective. On that day, (b) (6) after consultation with our vet, we elected to have our dog put euthanized, as to not let him suffer any longer. After getting back from the camping trip and dealing with symptoms for several days now, our mother noticed something wrong with the most recent bag of dog food she had bought, the food that (b) (6) had been eating from for 2-3 weeks now. When she lifted the bag off of the ground, there was a pool of oil on the ground. This oil would have had to seep through several thick layers of material for it to reach the outside of the bag. On 8/3, my mother returned this bag of food to the point of purchase, a Feeders Supply Store located at (b) (6). The clerk at the store issued a refund; later that night, our mother went back for the food thinking that we should really keep it in our possession for evidence due to the rapidly declining state of our dog. She picked the food up the next day. When she arrived, the clerk told her that they actually had to bag the food up in several garbage bags due to the foul odor it was emitting. Once back in our possession, the dog food was stored in several garbage bags, where it continued to emit a foul odor, leak oil, and grow a white colored substance. On 8/3, my mother began correspondence with the manufacturer of this food, Midwestern Pet Foods, via email. A employee named (b) (6) responded to her email and they began collected information from my mother, including information about the food, photos of the food, and vet bills. In one email dated 8/4, the representative even admitted that the food seemed "rancid" and "not feedable". This correspondence continued for several days. On Friday, 8/12 my mother received an email from (b) (6) stating the following:

			"Thank you for your message. I am so sorry to hear your pup (b) (6) is not doing well. Yesterday. I sent a request to the plant on when I can expect the results from the quality assurance and microbiology testing. It is difficult when you are working with outside parties, their response time is out of your hands. Usually the turn around is 2 weeks. I am trying to push them to move faster. I sent them another email this morning and included your concern of the white substance and photos. I am sorry for the delay. I am sure (b) (6) is in good hands and hope that he improves quickly." As of the time of submitting this report, we have not heard any more from (b) (6) or Midwestern Pet Foods. Additionally, at the time of submission, we are waiting to hear back from our veterinarian about options for analysis of the food in question. According to our vet and online veterinary resources, pancreatitis is commonly brought on after ingestion of excessively fatty foods. Pancreatitis, when unchecked or severe, can cause inflammation and damage to other organs, as was seen in (b) (6). Furthermore, the autoimmune response, a latent, genetic component of our dog's genome that had never presented itself before, can be triggered by large amounts of inflammation. Like most inside dogs, our dog was occasionally the recipient of human foods (eggs, blueberries, un-buttered popcorn, and meat scraps such as chicken and ham), was known to occasionally scrap for whatever food he could find on the ground in the kitchen, and experienced, at most, infrequent bouts of indigestion, vomiting, and diarrhea. He had no history of pancreatitis, colitis, or hepatitis before this incident.
			We are submitting this report because we believe this foul and rancid food is what led the untimely, and incredibly painful decline of our beloved dog, (b) (6). It is in our opinion that this rancid food is what started this deadly domino effect of organ inflammation and autoimmune response. We want to make sure that no other dog has to go through the pain that our dog endured during the last two weeks of his life. We are devastated, and the trust we had in this food that we have relied on to ensure our dog was in good health throughout the majority of his life has been violated. Thank you for your time.

EON-498609	8/13/2022 11:24	2/ 3.000 oz (85.00g) Fancy Feast Clas Chkn CndC 24x3oz N9 U 10050000429940 92 SAP Material ID: 11056698 Best by: MAY 2024 2143 9052 15 L02	Hello, When I buy cat food I purchase in bulk since I feed my 5 cats and numerous feral and homeless cats. A few months ago, I purchased a couple of cases of Beef and Chicken Fancy Feast and returned them to the store due to the cans being swollen. The store returned my money, but threw away the food I am told after being reimbursed. I recently tried buying my Purina Pro Plan Chicken Hairball dry food and it is now nowhere to be found. I called Purina and was told that it has been suspended since March or April. Chewey does not even have this food. Purina's answer to the problem is to buy the Turkey or Salmon flavor food and they don't know when Chicken will be available again. Today, I noticed that two cases (48 cans) of Chicken Fancy Feast Pate still in the wrapped cases also have swollen cans. I called Purina again and I am being told many stories about supply issues, but on the other hand also being told that Purina has never been recalled. I have figured out at this point that Purina has never been recalled probably due to keeping the pet parent happy by just returning their money. Their solution is to reimburse me and have me throw away the food that is probably infected with BOTULISM. I spent a long time on the phone asking if anybody is going to actually open the puffed out cans and figure out why the cans puffed out. I was more or less initially brushed off and told that it is probably just a small hole or other type of damage to the cans, but the cans all look good to me and almost 50% are affected.
			I expressed to them that I was concerned about Botulism since the box holding the case looks good as well as the over wrap and the fact that this was my second purchase where the cans were swollen. I also mentioned to them that I found it funny that all of my problems seem to be with Purina Chicken products and they have no clue as to when they will be available again. I was additionally told by Purina that numerous dog foods are also suspended. When I mentioned contacting the FDA due to concerns about all of the puffed out cans, Purina offered to send me a label to ship the 48 cans back to them. My concern is that I really think at this point someone needs to really test what is in the cans and see why they are all puffed out. I do not want to ship the cans back to them to just have them thrown out. Please advise me as to how to proceed. I still have all the 48 cans if you would like to test this batch. On a separate note, did you know that the new dry cat food that they have for allergies is made with genetically modified eggs? That is what Purina told me on a another phone call.

EON-498408	8/10/2022 23:44	Primal freeze dried nuggets chicken formula	On July 1, 2022 I Purchased primal pet chicken freeze dried nuggets based on the ingrediants listed and an intolerance test we had perfromed by a third party. On the first day of feeding my dog had a loose projectile stool. We attributed this to diet change. On July 2, 2022, her stool was more solid than on July 3, 2022, my dog had 4 episodes of vomiting followed by multiple projectile liquid stools, then 3 bowel movements of gastric acid, and blood. She was listless and dehydrated by the time we got home. We immediately took her to the emergency vet where she received fluids, labs ,stool testing, urine test and several hours of critical care treatment. The vet was stated she may have eaten something bad and that she was having kidney issues as her urine was overly dilute. She was dehydrated but her urine was like water. The vet allowed us to go home and monitor her closely. We had a few more episodes of horrible stools and vomiting as well as clear urine. I found a recall for the beef version of this food and thought the Primal Pet Nuggets may be the issue. I stopped the food and researched the product. I reviewed the website and found that the freeze-dried nuggets food is actually raw meat. RAW is not stated on the package or any of their packages. It only states Freeze-dried. This is a problem considering her age and the risks of feeding raw food to any dog. Had the package stated RAW I would not have purchased it. We stopped feeding the Primal Pet and her symptoms resolved. I am concerned that this nearly fatal situation was caused by Primal Pet food. I would not have purchased and fed this to my puppy had the manufacturer started RAW on the package.	4	Months	Bulldog - French	Dog	10	Pound

EON-498305	8/9/2022 18:00	Tender & True Organic Chicken & Liver Recipe	I purchased a bag of Tender and True Organic Chicken & Liver Recipe dry cat food to acclimate my cats to it, due to a shortage of their regular organic brand lately. I mixed a small amount of the food into their regular dry food to start the acclimation process. About 3 days later I noticed that (b) (6) was having trouble with her stools sticking to her, and difficulty in passing the stools. All of my cats then stopped drinking water completely. (b) (6), who was 15 years of age and in good health prior to this, stopped eating also. I stopped feeding the food to them. (b) (6) and (b) (6) seemed to return to their normal eating habits. However, (b) (6) kept getting worse. She refused her food to a greater degree as each day went by. I was able to get her to eat some Greenies dental treats for a couple of days, but then she refused them. I wound up isolating her into a crate cage and started force feeding her small amounts of canned food mixed with strained baby food meat a couple of times a day. In spite of this, she grew weaker each day, until one day she vomited what I had fed her for breakfast and died from the stress of this. A couple of days prior to this she was lying down on the carpet and passed a stool that looked old, which was followed by mucous. She then started passing small amounts of diarrhea, soiling herself uncontrollably and urinating uncontrollably.	15	Years	Domestic Mediumhair	Cat	8	Pound

They've told me the cattle hair sometimes happens (rarely) from where they source their USDA meats and the green color is not mold but something that can appear on meat from USDA facilities. They are asking to send me a prepaid envelope to return the pieces and the product. But I am concerned if I do this, there will be no oversight. I took him to the emergency vet on 8/3/22 where he was diagnosed with Pancreatitis and on 8/5/22 where he was having breathing difficulties. He is currently on a strict diet provided by the vet and recovering. On 8/6/22 I decided to continue with feeding my other 2 cats the kibble, as they were not on a restricted diet. (b) (6), my 11 year old tortoiseshell cat, had gastrointestinal distress, diarrhea, and vomiting. I was not sure if it was the kibble or perhaps what was causing them to be ill was a virus. Today, 8/7/22, I decided to give my 3rd cat (b) (6) the kibble as she dislikes eating wet food exclusively. Not more than 45 minutes after the kibble (b) (6) was crying and vomiting around the household in great distress. I believe this kibble has contaminated pieces in it that are making my cats ill. At this time I am monitoring all 3 of them, as (b) (6) and (b) (6) are improving, and (b) (6) is under watch to ensure she does not get worse. EON-497941	8/4/2022 12:00	Purina Pro Plan Adult small breed Chicken Rice Formula	We had been feeding our three dogs Purina Pro Plan small breed dog chicken and rice dog food for over two years, then Purina made changes to the formula of this brand of dog food. We opened the bag and fed our 3 dogs their 1st bowl of it and within an hour they all began to vomit and have diarrhea and became lethargic. Over the next few days their vomit and diarrhea became bloody and my dogs continued to deteriorate. We took them to the vet who tested them for all kinds of infections and sickness but could not find anything. The vet along with us suspected the new food since all 3 dogs became ill at the same time after eating their first bowl of this. My dogs have continued to deteriorate over the past 8 months so we had my oldest scoped which showed toxic damage to the entire GI tract and we suspect it is no different in the other 2 dogs. What was seen appears to be a chemical toxic poisoning from this food. We now know that there are numerous reports of this same problem with this food and we have contacted Purina, but they have done nothing to help any of us pet parents, except to offer some kind of possible financial support for the bills. All 3 of my dogs will likely not recover and we are now looking at possibly putting them down. This has been a nightmare with severe suffering on all of us and our dogs. There is something very wrong with this food and Purina has admitted that they know about it since receiving hundreds of reports of the exact same symptoms of dogs after eating the first bowl of this food but have refused a recall on it or to tell us what was in it that did this to our dogs.	5	Years	Terrier - Yorkshire	Dog	10	Pound

On May 10, 2021, after I watched an advertisement on YouTube.com, I ordered four 2.2 oz. cans of Dr. Marty's ProPower Plus probiotic, which later tested positive for toxic cobalt. It was mailed to my (b) (6) home on May 13, 2021 via USPS Tracking (b) (6) from Dr. Marty's Pets: 9361 Canoga Ave. Chatsworth, CA 91311, telephone (800) 670-1839, website www.drmartypets.com. I received it on approximately May 20, 2021, and I gave it to my 20-pound Cavalier King Charles Spaniel, (b) (6), a female in good health, age 8. Per the "feeding recommendation," I gave her one scoop per day for three weeks before I tried it myself. On June 20, 2021, the first day I tried Dr. Marty's ProPower Plus probiotic powder [LOT #44300 MFG DATE: 01/2021], I had a stomach ache. The second day I tried it (the next day), I had a stomach ache and I felt like someone had injected sulfuric acid underneath my kneecaps - an extremely unusual, intense pain. I immediately stopped giving it to (b) (6), but the damage was already done. (b) (6) started having approximately ten seizures per day and night for the next year, until she died one year later, on (b) (6). After I complained to the (b) (6), BBB.org removed all of the one-star reviews that said "Dr. Marty Killed Our Dogs." On December 21, 2021, Dr. Marty's ProPower Plus probiotic powder tested positive for toxic cobalt using a ChemSee Heavy Metals Test. I took pictures of the results, and I still have three unopened cans of Dr. Marty's poison supplement that can be used by testing labs and law enforcement to prove that Dr. Marty deliberately poisoned his product, that he sent it to me through the US Mail, and that he deliberately killed my dog. What is unusual about this case is that I tested the poisoned dog food on myself, so really I knew there was definitely something wrong with it because the intense pain under my kneecaps was so unusual.	8	Years	Spaniel - King Charles Cavalier	Dog	22	Pound

			I have three witnesses. (b) (6) (b) (6) (b) (6) I also have hair samples and stool samples from the month that she died. I am willing to testify against Dr. Marty in court because I have seen multiple complaints online from other dog owners who wrote that "Dr. Marty Killed Our Dogs." I can ship Dr. Marty's unopened cans of poison to an official lab for proper chain-of-title documentation for court. I am not seeking damages. I want to prosecute him as a criminal and to stop him from killing other dogs. Time is of the essence. At age 8, (b) (6) was poisoned by Dr. Marty, and she died age 9. She wasn't the first victim of Dr. Marty. In my opinion (that is shared by other dissatisfied Dr. Marty customers on the internet), Dr. Marty is a fraud, a sociopath, and a serial dog poisoner: (b) (6) Poison ain't kosher, and Dr. Marty Goldstein should not be allowed to poison dogs.

The symptoms progress rapidly and by noon she was acting intoxicated and was falling down and have trouble drinking water from her bowl. We took her to the emergency vet and she was seen at around 2:15 pm. The vet performed a tox screen and discover the presence of THC and amphetamines. She is under care of the vet through the weekend to monitor blood pressure and other vitals. She has been sedated and given charcoal. No one in our home has ever used drugs. Even though she was only outside for a short time this morning, we searched the yard, porch, driveway, house and even down the street to see if there was any evidence of drugs. I bought the dog chow brand of food that they had, I fed my 4 month old puppies this food because they were the ones that needed food at the time. Anyway I fed it to them, and the next day I go out to their pen, and I find 4 dead, 3 in bad shape/dying, and 2 somewhat in better shape the the 3 barely hanging on. I was devastated the only thing that has changed or been different is the dogfood period. 8 puppies are dead and 2 I'm not sure if they will make it either I'm beyond pissed about this I've heard the stories about killer dogfood but I never believed it would happen I'm a believer now.	4	Months	Shepherd (unspecified)	Dog	20	Pound

Upon opening the box, we smelled something horrible, like something had died. We pulled the two packs of 24 out of the Amazon box. They were shrink-wrapped together, and there was liquid between the plastic and the box the cans were in. We took off the plastic and opened the box, and half of the cans were covered in black goo and there were flies and maggots inside. I'm not sure if one of the cans had gotten busted while being stored, or if something had been sealed inside and grew and broke the seal somehow. Either way, it was absolutely vile. It smelled like absolute death.

I opened a new bag a week ago and noticed my dog became extremely itchy. She developed a hot spot on her head. She started chewing on her paws etc.. my dog ^(b) (6) gets kibble-no treats etc.. I could tell it was an allergic reaction and couldn't figure out why. On Saturday evening when I fed her I noticed a different type of kibble in her food.. it was round and a light brown. Her food is dark brown in the shape of a triangle. This was taken straight from the bag of kibble. I began looking through the bag and found several of these foreign kibbles in her food. So somehow the company must of mixed another type of food i with the one my dog is on.. I returned the bag to the store where I purchased it and explained what happened.my poor dog is still suffering from eating this food for a week. He was on a special diet and our other cat (b) (6) is an overeater so we do not feed him treats or extra food. (b) (6) had started not liking other flavors of the Delectable Bisque, and only liked the Shrimp and Tuna one. For the last 2-3 months he's only like that one. About 2 weeks ago, (b) (6) randomly started having a strange issue with his mouth. He was acting as if he had something stuck in there and it progressively worsened into him full on acting like he was chewing a mouthful of kibble when he wasn't eating at all or when he was only eating the bisque. I had a vet THOROUGHLY check his mouth and throat and she found nothing wrong. Several days later he vomited clotted blood and I rushed him to a different vet who also could not figure out what was wrong, but thought it could be symptoms of his medication. We took him off those and there was no improvement. 4 days later, I put (b) (6) to sleep because he was miserable. Days after that, I finally gave (b) (6) the same food as a treat, and he IMMEDIATELY had the exact same mouth issues (b) (6) was having. He also became lethargic and had injuries to his mouth such as tongue sticking out, foaming, half his mouth hanging down, and mouth crooked. 24 hours later he is still lethargic and now has a swollen lip and a sore there. This CANNOT possibly be simply a coincidence!! I told other people with cats about this and SEVERAL of them said they give their cats the same thing and they've had mysterious illness as well!!! PLEASE PLEASE recall this and investigate ASAP!! I had my sweet (b) (6) for so so long and he was my baby, I will not be having children and he was all I've had for many years and to see him go like this, so suddenly and in pain and sickness, unable to eat when everything showed that his illnesses were holding up just fine, is devastating. After weighing it out, the bag proved to contain 4.5 lbs, not the 5 lbs I paid for, it was short by a half pound. I contacted the store & was given the option to return it for a refund, which I did. I was told that no one else has complained & they did not have a scale to determine the actual weight of the other bags in their inventory that they are selling despite the possibility of deceiving their customers. I emailed the manufacturer, included photos, & called their customer service a day later. I was told it could be a mistake that only affected this one bag out of a nationwide distribution, but the incident would be reported to management. I was then offered a voucher for a replacement bag which I declined. The next day I received a response to my email which stated that a 5 lb bag should weigh 5 lbs, that this incident would be reported to the company's quality control team, & my address was requested so they could send me a voucher for a replacement bag. I'm filing this report to the FDA since there's an equal chance that this is an isolated incident that affected only the one bag I bought or it's possibly an issue that has &/or is affecting multiple or all bags which are currently being sold. If consumers follow the recommended feeding chart on the bag & count nuggets, they would have no reason to actually weigh the contents & therefore would not be aware that they only received 4.5 lbs of food even though the package is labeled 5 lbs.

EON-495959	7/13/2022 15:56	RACHAEL RAY. NUTRISH. DISH	(b) (6) started showing signs of aggressive toward me for no reason. Started just growling, then turns into biting. His Dr. suggested an ex-ray. She thought he might have a pain somewhere else. The ex-ray only showed the joint pain that he was already being treated for. As his aggressive became worse, the Dr. suggested a CT scan. Nothing showed. Then I took him for a CSF tap. It was clear too. The Dr. suggested an MRI. But I would have had to go to (b) (6) for a few days. I just could not afford the trip and motel and the $3,500.00 for the test.. So the Dr. said I should maybe think about putting him down, because I am 74, and live alone. And she was afraid for me. I just kept thinking he might get better. He only got worse. Now he was attacking my Cat. He became very viscous. For what ever reason, I needed to give myself time to make this decision. So I thought I would try and make his last days as good as I could. So I changed his food. He started getting better. I talked to his Dr. she said she had herd about some Dog foods, that cause problems. As time has gone by, (b) (6) is no longer aggressive. I can pet him, and hug him again. Because of the many dog bites I received, I am still cautious. But for the most part I have my sweet guy back. The only thing I changed was the food. He is still taking the same medacine. He was on the 1-6 year chicken and barley and loved it and we never had an issue, but he has been so off since he was on Science Diet canned food for a week after a tooth extraction and then I switched him to the Perfect Weight kind to help make sure he is getting the nutrients he needs. He is typically a total tank when it comes to food and nothing has ever upset his stomach. I now have to make him boiled rice and meat for a few days/meals and then he will eat one or two meals before he simply will not eat the Science Diet anymore. He eats anything else, but will not touch this food. He began vomiting on the days I introduced science diet back into his diet. I am done feeding him this food. He eats everything else I offer and doesn't get sick from anything but this food. I read many similar reports from 2019 which is highly concerning and why I am immediately reporting this because clearly nothing was done to handle it within the last three years. He is doing better when I stop feeding him this. He is not sick. This food has been making him sick. He has been acting absolutely normal otherwise. He is an absolutely good crazed dog normally, but now he wakes up and doesn't eat if this is all I offer. He had only thrown up 5 times in the four years I have had him prior to starting this food (less than 6 months ago) and now we have to be nearing 20 times. He threw up 4 times yesterday. In one day. EON-495787	7/12/2022 10:12	Any adult or senior cat food or treats	I believe cat food items (canned, dry AND treats) should all be required to show phosphorus content. I have dealt with cats with hypothyroidism for 7 years. Cats with hypothyroidism have a propensity of kidney issues or kidney disease. All my research shows its important to feed low levels of phosphorus. I have spent so much time researching & trying to find out how much phosphorus is in a product when it could be right there on the label. I have learned that hypothyroidism & kidney disease are fairly common among older cats. There are foods that say "for urinary tract" but the phosphorus percentage is still above the recommended amount. Also, without it on the label, a company can easily change the amount without the consumer knowing, so I could have researched that a particular food has .5% phosphorus and the company changes it to 1.5% without me knowing. I believe this affects enough cats to require it to be listed on all cat food and treats, at least for adult and senior cat labels. Thank you, (b) (6)

A few weeks ago I noticed white spots forming on the chicken formula food. I do keep the food sealed and stored in a cool, dry and dark area. Going back to the subject of the white spots I originally thought the spots were an ingredient part of the food but kept noticing more of them as the days trickled by. Today I opened the box and storage bag and noticed a LOT more white spots and now believe it's mold! The food also smells rotten. I looked on the box about spoilage and it only says "for best flavor, finish in 8 weeks" there is nothing about spoilage. I actually started noticing the spots around week 4-5, after opening. My dog has had runny stools for the last week and today my dog barfed and is not eating. He is not active but usually is and when I tried to take him for a walk he wouldn't go and stood in the street and started drooling. I do believe him not feeling well may be caused from your moldy food. After receiving the treats, the following morning (approximately 10 hours later) he became inappetent and lethargic. He had a few episodes of bilious vomiting. (b) (6) It showed evidence of severe gastritis and enteritis but no evidence of pancreatitis or GI obstruction. I treated him conservatively and gave him subcutaneous fluids and anti-nausea medications that evening. The following day when he continued to be inappetent, I hospitalized him for the day on IV fluids, gastroprotectants and anti-vomiting medications. He ate a small amount of a bland GI diet that evening. The following morning (~4-5am) he developed acute severe gastric distention and clinical signs concerning for gastric dilatation and volvulus (i.e. non-productive retching, hypersalivation, pacing, hunched posture and severe tympanic gastric distention) which required that I rush him to (b) (6) to have abdominal x-rays performed. Fortunately his stomach was not twisted, but I had to decompress his stomach with a nasogastric tube. He had severe ileus that required he be hospitalized on IV fluids and supportive medications for 48 hours. Throughout that time he developed severe hemorrhagic gastroenterocolitis. His signs resolved following his hospital stay on supportive care (4 days after eating the treats).	10	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	25	Pound

We took him to the veterinarian this morning. Upon running tests, sugar was found in his urine, requiring further tests to confirm the initial diagnosis of Fanconi-like syndrome. The veterinarian asked if (b) (6) had eaten any chicken treats made in China. He had eaten the Ol' Roy Rawhide Free Twist Sticks sold by Walmart. We had no idea they were a product of China and could cause kidney problems. The veterinarian conducted further tests and contacted an internist who confirmed the diagnosis and cause - the chicken treats made in China. The FDA has been aware of problems with chicken treats made in China and I'm appalled that a warning has never been issued or the products recalled. There are reports of dogs with ongoing problems or even death caused by chicken treats made in China. Hopefully, we got treatment for (b) (6) before any permanent damage. EON-494348	6/22/2022 13:52	Purina Pro Plan DM dry cat food.	To whom it may concern, I was shocked to find on Chewy.com that Purina DM dry cat food for diabetes contains PCMX (disinfectant) that is highly toxic to cats and the drug ducosate sodium! PCMX is also called chloroxylenol - Please see the copy and paste from Wickipedia below which states the disinfectant SHOULD NOT EVEN BE USED AROUND CATS. Also, the drug ducosate sodium is used for constipation and can cause inflammation and many other side effects - see side effects list below. The normal standard for all drug products is to list them as an active ingredient, and for example corn starch or purified water as an inactive ingredient. Purina listed the drug and PCMX as inactive. I believe adding the two ingredients to pet food is illegal! What available research does Purina have to show to the public that would allow them to place a disinfectant known as highly toxic to cats and a drug with side effects to cats in pet food of which: - The drug was not prescribed by a licensed veterinarian after a full examination of each cat. - Consent of the pet owner was not obtained.

			Disclosure to the pet owner of the exposure to the toxic disinfectant and use of a drug was not provided. Pet owners are not required to read the fine print on pet food ingredient lists for the purpose of looking for substances with known toxicity to cats (or to be educated to the names of toxic ingredients) and to look for drugs. Please enforce a recall and have pet owners who purchased the product receive full disclosure of the ingredients. EON-494289	6/22/2022 0:16	Purina Pro Plan Focus Kitten Favorites Variety Pack Canned Cat Food	I have received multiple cans from boxes of Purina Pro Plan Focus Kitten Favorites Variety Pack Canned Cat Food within the past few months that were severely swollen or dented, twice to the point that the cans had burst. I have purchased these from multiple stores (Amazon.com and Chewy.com), and have had this happen with cans from both places. Each time this has happened, the outside boxes have appeared undamaged. Additionally, this has happened when purchasing both the 24 pack (variety pack) and 12 pack (variety pack). I apologize, but the only one I had a picture of was: Purina Pro Plan Kitten Classic Chicken and Liver Entree, Exp. Feb 2024, Lot #: 20391162 (see pic attached). I am unsure if the other affected cans have been the same flavor, or if they were the other flavors included in the variety pack (classic salmon and ocean fish entree, ocean whitefish and tuna entree). My cats have not have any noticeable adverse effects so far from this food, but I have thrown out any cans that looked suspicious. At this time the food was opened (without a tear off seal) and put into small autofeed food container. First signs of problem were seen on the morning of (b) (6). Signs of vomiting from a cat who rarely vomits and was not eating. He always liked to eat off the top of the containers while we were filling up bowls and he did this time as well. Affected cat could have been the only pet who ate from this bag as the new food hadn't gotten to the bottom of the autofeed container for the other cat to consume. • Symptoms included vomiting, not eating, not going to the bathroom, and lethargy not normal for this cat • Problems would have begun about 6 days after initial feeding. Not sure when last feeding would have been or if other cat had consumed the same food. • We monitored symptoms for 2 days thinking it was a stomach bug as the vomiting, lethargy, and not eating continued. He vomited every day from morning of (b) (6) night of June 16th and then on the morning of (b) (6) we took him to a veterinarian. Physical examination was normal but after blood results were taken his BUN and CRE levels were very high and showed he was in advanced renal failure. We took him home and later that day he was euthanized based on his results and condition.	5	Years	Domestic Shorthair	Cat	10	Pound

Yesterday I noticed that my dog (b) (6) vomit a small amount and eat grass. I made sure she drank water and had fresh water in her cage, and again before bed I gave her a treat. I noticed that she was eating grass again this morning, so I assumed her tummy was just upset again because other than her getting sick, she was moving around OK, wasn't lethargic, wasn't exemplifying any symptoms that would suggest something more serious and did eat and drink before I went to work. I put her in her cage with two additional treats (and 2 treats for my other dog) and fresh water. When my husband got home he noticed her unresponsive, surrounded by puke and poop, not breathing. I checked my others dog cage and she too had got sick. After her passing, I started to suspect the food and I remembered that my dog (b) (6) had got sick a few times after I began giving her the treats, but she gets upset stomachs sometimes and again was otherwise fine (eating and drinking normally), but now I'm worried that the treats might have been the cause of my dogs death.	14	Years	Maltese	Dog	9	Pound

EON-492311	6/11/2022 18:40	Tiki Cat Grill Sardine Cutlets in Lobster Consommé 6oz Can	On I believe May 25th, I gave my cat half of a 6oz can of one of the Ahi Tuna & Crab Surimi flavor from the Tiki Cat Grill 8 can boxes for her usual lunch routine. She's been eating this line in particular since she was a little kitten and has always loved it, so I found it very odd when she kept avoiding it and meowing very loudly. She eventually did take two bites, and then proceeded to throw them up. I was worried it was something wrong with her, but she ate a 2.5oz pouch of the Aloha line (no fish in this particular flavor, although what flavor it was I don't remember) the next day and was fine. She also had no issues with dry food. I gave her a half of a single 6oz can of the Ahi Tuna flavor (also from the Grill line) about 2 days later and she proceeded to do the same thing. I decided that there might be something wrong with the tuna flavors, and I didn't know where to look to report it so I was unable to then, so I decided to return the original box and instead try single cans of the non-tuna Grill flavors. Today, 06/02/2022, i opened a 6oz can of the Sardines in Lobster Consommé and put half into her dish as usual for lunch. After putting half into the bowl, I noticed entangled around the fish chunks and sauce a black line which I assumed was a loose vein or something along those lines. I pulled it out and discovered it was in fact, a knotted up black string. I believe it may be a broken off string from a fishing net. I took a picture and did not give it to her. We've never had issues with the Tiki Cat line in any way and we've been giving this line in particular for over a year and I'm very concerned about these issues. On top of that, it seems to be just the Grill line as 05/31/2022-06/01/2022 both I gave her half of a single 6oz can of Tuna and Mackerel flavor from the Luau line and she had no issues and ate it all quickly without issue. So it's not the fish or the tuna. I will not be buying any Tiki Cat flavors for a while
