

Limitations: The adverse event and product problem reports contained in this record are not necessarily causally related to (caused by) the reported product, nor do they mean the product was defective. Consumer complaints involving animal foods are received by FDA through voluntary reporting systems. Not all reports undergo follow up actions by FDA; however, each report received is important to FDA as part of our ongoing surveillance efforts related to pet food safety. Trends in reporting can provide an early warning of emerging safety issues of concern.

Other limitations:

- For any given report, there is no certainty that the reported pet food caused the adverse event. The adverse event(s) reported may be more related to an underlying disease, condition, or concomitantly administered medication.
- The report narratives are provided in the form in which we received them, the quality of the information provided about the adverse event/product problem is dependent on the quality of the information received from the veterinarian and/or pet owner.
- Adverse event report numbers should not be used to calculate incidence rates or measures of relative risk. It is not data from a controlled study, and there is no accurate way to know the true size of the population exposed to a product, nor the true population affected with an adverse event.
- Adverse event data should not be used to compare the safety of different products. Many factors can influence reporting, and products that are more widely distributed or sold in greater volume may have more reporting than those with limited distribution or sales. Products for which there has been recent publicity may experience more reporting for a period of time afterwards. Underreporting is also common with adverse event reporting systems.

EON-540695	6/26/2023 18:16	Blue Buffalo adult Life Protection formula chicken and Brown rice	Dogs had previously gone through two 30 lb bags with no ill effects. Local store did not have it in stock so I bought a bag of something else with no negative effects. Purchased to 30 lb bags from PetMeds online and introduced one cup of the dog food to each dog. Several hours later both were vomiting and had diarrhea. Thought it might have been something else so two days later gave them same dog food with similar results. Waited approximately two weeks and gave it to them again just to confirm my suspicions that it was bad dog food. Both dogs recovered quickly after ceasing feeding them the Blue Buffalo dog food.	6	Years	Retriever - Golden	Dog	90	Pound

EON-540658	6/26/2023 13:00	Purina Pro Plan Performance 30/20 chicken and rice formula 50 b bag	My lab has been on Purina Pro plan since eating dry food. I bought a bag about 2 weeks ago and just noticed it was contaminated with maggots. I immediately notified the store. Of course without a receipt they would not refund me. They did have one other complaint that was called in before mine. We keep the dog food in a sealed locked container so I know for a fact is was infested before I purchased. Since then I have been to the vet twice with our dog. We are currently awaiting further labs to be ran to pin point this infection. Nothing was wrong with her until we started using this bag of dog food.	2	Years	Retriever - Labrador	Dog	86	Pound

EON-540589	6/25/2023 15:12	Native Pet Pumpkin	We have been giving our dog Native Pet Pumpkin for her constipation for several months. For most of that time, it caused no problem at all. However, the last two batches we purchased caused her to become very severely ill. It seemed like they either were not shelf stable, as described on the packaging, or were seriously contaminated. We purchased a can in mid March from Chewy.com. There were no problems with it until we got to about halfway through the powder. Then, it suddenly caused our dog to have extremely severe diarrhea every hour for multiple days, making her very very sick. We tried various things to treat her and determine the cause of the diarrhea, which at first we did not suspect to be the pumpkin powder. We took her off food, eliminating parts of her diet and so on, and several times in a row as soon as we stopped giving her pumpkin powder her symptoms immediately resolved, and then when we tried to give it to her again the extremely severe diarrhea started again immediately. It was clearly caused by the pumpkin powder. Sorry for the graphic details but, the diarrhea was also bright orange and mucus-y, which is also consistent we found out later with others I know of who gave their dogs the same product around the same time. We threw out the can we bought at that time and gave her pureed pumpkin from a can instead, and she had no issues with that. She also regularly eats apples as well, the other ingredient in the powder, and does not have any negative reaction to them. Assuming that can had been somehow contaminated, we threw it out and purchased a new can of the same product. At first, she was fine, and so we assumed it was just the one can. However, at about the same point, around halfway through the can, our dog again became suddenly extremely sick soon after eating pumpkin powder. She has been vomiting continuously for the last two days, and has been completely unable to hold down any food. We will not try giving it to her again, obviously. As with the last incident, our dog's vomit was the same color as the pumpkin powder. We have no stopped the pumpkin powder, and while she has still been throwing up, it seems to be steadily improving. Our dog rarely has problems with diarrhea or vomiting, so this has been an unusual occurrence and is pretty clearly tied to the powder.
EON-540580	6/25/2023 9:12	Iams Proactive Health small breed chicken and whole grain recipe	I ordered a 15 lb bag of Iams small breed chicken and whole grain recipe from Chewy on 5/2/23. I keep the food in the original bag, then place the bag in an airtight container. I start using the ordered food within a week. I have been feeding my dogs this food until the bag was almost empty. It was then that I noticed a clump of food that wouldn't move when I shifted the bag. I looked closer and discovered mold. I have been feeding my dogs mold! This is alarming to me and is a safety concern. The scan # on the bag is 19014803453. The # above the proof of purchase is 1553448. I have contacted Chewy this date and have tried contacting Iams but their submission form keeps bouncing me out. I will follow up tomorrow via phone.
EON-540578	6/25/2023 7:08	Paws and claws delicious mix-adult chicken salmon turkey and tuna formula dry cat food	I bought this food months ago cats ate some then quit eating it. The food smelled horrible dumped it outside and the raccoons and opossums wouldn't touch it either. I have kept an eye on other reviews of this food for the last few months and people are having same problems. One lady's cat died. This has been an ongoing problem from what I'm reading on the tractor supply websites reviews for the food. When I had problem the store didn't offer help. I tried calling manufacturers but couldn't find info on bag. There was no lot # or date of manufacturer nothing stamped on bag anywhere. I got ahold of corporate for tractor supply it took them over a month to reply then another month for a refund. There's a serious problem with the paws and claws dry cat food and it's been going on now for a very long time other people's animals are getting sick I'm unsure now of when I purchase the product I kept the empty bag for months just in case it was needed for the problem but then finally threw it out.	4	Years	American Shorthair	Cat	9	Pound

EON-540569	6/24/2023 23:52	American Journey Protein & Grains Salmon Brown Rice & Vegetables Recipe Dry Dog Food	Chewy.com changed their dog food formula for their "American Journey" food brand while trying to claim only the package changed. I believe they are trying to quiet people by quickly and quietly refunding anyone that complains. My dog has been fed American Journey Protein & Grains Salmon, Brown Rice & Vegetables Recipe Dry Dog Food since November 2021. On June 2, 2023, we received an email from Chewy.com that the look changed. It states "New Look, Same Recipe". The emailed claims "All that's changed is the packaging" My dog experienced extreme vomiting upon eating the food from the new package. Within a week, she had stopped eating the food completely and became incredibly lethargic. She would still take treats eagerly and continued to drink water. We gave her a new food and she ate it for about a week with no problems. We then tried to mix the new food with the American Journey and she was sick again within hours. Chewy refunded immediately when I contacted them. Visiting the site showed that others complained of the same symptoms with the new "packaging". I firmly believe that Chewy.com made a significant change to their American Journey dog food which is making dogs sick. They are trying to hide it by paying people (full refund - no questions asked) to keep quiet about their mistake.	3	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	53	Pound
EON-540567	6/24/2023 23:00	Wellness Complete Health Turkey and Duck Stew	June 23 purchased several cans of Wellness Stew-Turkey and Duck, Lamb and Beef, Beef. Have been using for many years. Opened can of duck stew and first noticed it did not have any gravy as it normally does. After observing, concerned, I opened second can. Same issue, however noticing also no vegetables etc, presence of what, to me, looked like maggots. Crook photos of both and batch info, contacted (b) (6) (place of purchase) also sent photos to both PSP and Wellness. Returned cans to store on June 24. at my request manager opened other cans of turkey with same batch number noticing same issue. Opened lamb and beef and beef stew. Totally different consistency (as it should be). Manager informed me that she was going to pull remaining stock from shelves. I made her aware that I contacted Wellness and submitted photos.

EON-540566	6/24/2023 22:16	Applaws pet food natural selection fish in broth	I don't remember all of it or the exact dates but it all started Wednesday or Thursday of the last week of March 2023 she was fine until 10:30 am she was meowing loudly in the computer room and her friend, (b) (6) was with her my grandma claimed they were playing rough but if (b) (6) was being to rough she would've wined and ran away. I left my room to check on her and already when I barely approached her she didn't try to run (she's a feral cat so running from us is normal), I crouched down petting her gently and laid her in my lap to look for bleeding or anything visibly wrong. I tried having her stand which she wouldn't even attempt to stand and would meow at me in pain (she normally meows quiet but these meows were definitely distress and pain) I brought her to my room and laid with her between my legs under my blanket (made sure she can breathe) for the next 2 days, she seemed more willing to attempt to stand the next day but was struggling and she would shove her head down into my sheets occasionally (a side effect of thiamine deficiency). The next morning I took her to the living room so she could lay on a soft big blanket and offered her food and water, she hurried under the couch for the next 3ish hours. I helped my grandma flip over the couch carefully to pull her out and put her in a cage with a towel on the bottom I took the cage to my room and within the next 5 minutes she started having seizures. I told my grandma and she told my mom to come home and take (b) (6) to the vet, as my mom was coming home she had more seizures with different time lengths. We got her to the vet and told them the different issues she's been having.. they advised us to take her to a neurologist which we couldn't afford they ran testing on her everything came back okay besides a few things. We were sent home with an iv bag and gabapentin which we gave her the next few days she was alive, we kept her in a metal cage with 3 soft blankets at the bottom advised from the vet to keep her away from (b) (6) I woke up every morning at 5 am due to her letting me know she was awake and needed the gabapentin so she can relax a bit. I gave her the medicine and IV no struggling from her occasional whines before we gently placed her into the cage making sure she had water and food. On April 1st 2023 I continued my morning I ke usual with giving her medication and IV but this time she seemed weak and had no energy to even lift her head I put her back inside so she could rest. That morning later I was baking a cake for my grandmas birthday, all morning (b) (6) has been running up and down the hall meowing trying to get my attention but I thought he just wanted to play. He sat at my door meowing which was odd for him to do unless I was in my room, I pulled the cake out and walked over reassuring him that (b) (6) was fine since I could tell he was missing her. I opened the door and saw (b) (6) laying down wheezing lifelessly, I ran to my moms room telling her (b) (6) needs oxygen (thinking she was struggling to breathe) my mom came to my room to put her in the carrier. As we opened the cage door to get her out her body was shutting down shaking. We got her out and put her inside and her body went limp. We rushed to (b) (6) animal hospital sobbing, we rushed inside trying to explain the situation and we told the desk lady that we think she's dead. They rushed over immediately taking her to the back to check and we were taken into the room where animals are put down before taken to a examination room. They had pronounced her dead. Had no idea from what but weren't offered a autopsy on either cats, we decided to get her cremated	1	Years	American Shorthair	Cat	7.7	Pound
EON-540564	6/24/2023 21:32	Applaws natural cat food fish selection in broth	So on 4/1/23 his friend had passed away and he's become very depressed and showed no interest in drinking or eating, kept offering applaws fish wet food to him since he loved fish and occasionally he would eat a bit of it. Ended up offering him an unseasoned chicken with skin peeled he did eat it rather quickly so I gave him more. He ate it for a bit but stopped and we took him to the vet a few days after 4/1/23 for a wellness checkup everything was fine just very depressed which is normal for cats after losing a friend. 4/19/23 we took him back to the vet since he hasn't eaten much and seemed to lose a lot of weight, the vet gave us amoxicillin gabapentin and a cream to put inside his ear for appetite. Gave him the meds and the next day we found him crying out in our kitchen and couldn't stand. Later that day we decided to put him down due to Thiamine Deficiency	4	Years	American Shorthair	Cat	7.5	Pound

EON-540554	6/24/2023 14:56	Whole Paws premium cat food. Grain free chicken loaf dinner	Over four days of feeding Whole Foods premium grain free wet cat food, our cat became more and more lethargic. I had to carry him from where he chose to sleep to eat and use the kitty litter. He ate less, urinated and dedicated less and slept most of the time, all of which were big changes from his normal behavior. At 14 years old, I thought he was going to die at any minute. On the fourth day of feeding him this food (1/2 can in the morning and 1/2 a can at night, fed in addition to his regular dry food) he refused to eat this food so I switched back to his old wet food and within one day was almost back to normal.	14	Years	Domestic Shorthair	Cat	12	Pound
EON-540552	6/24/2023 14:36	Earthborn Holistic Coastal Catch	We have been feeding the dog Earthborn Holistic Coastal Catch for 3 years now. Our dog ^{(b) (6)} died a month ago from cancer of the blood which ultimately caused kidney failure attacking her organs forcing us to put her to sleep. We feed our Pitbull the same food but now we are going to homecooked meals instead. Our dog ^{(b) (6)} died after 4 years from his spleen rupturing and we fed him Purina One which is why we changed after that. All the dogs we have lost these last 20 years have died before the age of 9 years old and from some form of cancer. EON-540547	6/24/2023 13:32	Pedigree small dog complete nutrition grilled steak and vegetable flavor	I think I bought this food in April 2023 at Target. I had never used it before. My older lab had passed away and ^{(b) (6)} the Jack Russell, seemed a little depressed. I feed her Pure Balance at dinner. So I got the Pedigree for small dog as a variety treat to give her a little at breakfast. She uses a pee pad at night and I noticed a spot of blood on the pad. I thought maybe she was not drinking enough and she did get better. I forgot about the Pedigree food and skipped giving it to her for a while. This month I started using it again (June 2023). My cat ate some of it out of the dog's bowl and he got sick. My granddaughter came over with her dog ^{(b) (6)} and she gave him some of it. He became lethargic and we noticed his poop looked bloody. This was yesterday, June 23, 2023. I realized it must be the dog food! I took Lola to the vet and she is taking steroids and I changed her to distilled water and homemade dog food.	6	Years	Terrier - Jack Russell	Dog	16	Pound

EON-539976	6/17/2023 0:40	Taste of the Wild PREY TROUT RECIPE FOR DOGS A LIMITED INGREDIENT DIET	Beginning date is an estimate. (b) (6) was rescued from a local shelter when he was about 7 months old. He was the best dog. We had trouble finding food that agreed with him at first and switched a few times before settling on Taste of the Wild Trout. He was fed that for about 4.25 years. Fast forward to age 5.5. (b) (6) had a cough for a week or two which we thought was allergies. We then took him to the local vet who diagnosed him with allergies or kennel cough. He was given an allergy shot and ant biotics for two weeks. His cough went away, but he was becoming increasingly lethargic and losing weight. At the follow up, the vet referred us to a specialty vet in (b) (6) They did a full work up on him and drained some fluid from his abdominal cavity. His heart was in bad shape. He had a follow up in a week with another cardiologist who diagnosed him with potential food related DCM (his breed is NOT prone to DCM) and heart failure. In the meantime, he had returned to preillness health on the outside - musculature, weight, breathing, cough, energy, personality, stamina, appetite, silliness, etc. He looked great. And then he was dead at half his life expectancy. He did not live long enough for his follow up with the cardiologist. I attribute his death to this food, so I guess you could call it natural.	5.5	Years	Setter - English	Dog	61	Pound

EON-539766	6/14/2023 21:04	Wellness Complete Health Adult Whitefish & Sweet Potato Recipe	Per a colleague's recommendation, I (I am a vet as well as (b) (6) owner) slowly transitioned (b) (6) from Royal Canin Aging Large Breed to Wellness White Fish and Sweet Potato. My colleague is certified in traditional chinese medicine and acupuncture and recommended switching her food to have a more cooling protein source. I gradually transitioned her diet over about 1 week. On the first day of being solely on the Wellness food, she vomited once. It contained her food and some bile. She continued to vomit once a day for about 4 days and became less and less interested in that food until she wouldn't eat it at all. Therefore, I switched her immediately back to her old Royal Canin diet which she happily ate but still continued to vomit once a day. With zofran and dividing her daily intake into 4 meals per day, she stopped vomiting but developed urinary incontinence (no prior history of this). She also was slightly lethargic and wanted to hide more. Due to the combination of symptoms (vomiting, lethargy, incontinence), I brought her in for blood work and a urinalysis and discovered all of her liver values were significantly elevated. She has not gotten into anything and the only recent changes were the adequate (started 3 weeks ago) and the new food (fully transitioned about 1 week ago). She is currently being treated for suspected hepatitis with the cause unknown. I mainly worry that the food was the culprit and want to report her case just to be safe. I plan to recheck her lab work in one week to monitor response to symptomatic treatment.	9	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	48	Pound

EON-539516	6/12/2023 14:44	Earthborn Holistic Unrefined Smoked Bison	I opened a new bag of Midwestern Pets' Unrefined Grains bison dog food last week. Within 24 hours, all three dogs were having diarrhea. I attributed it to the high levels of air pollutants from the Canadian fires (we were in the purple zone). By Saturday afternoon, the two younger dogs were acting sluggish. That night, something caught my eye when feeding them. My kitchen is quite dark and their bowls are dark, but I noticed the nuggets were two colors. On closer inspection, I discovered some of the nuggets were coated in fungus. I dumped some onto a white plate and examined it under bright lights, and approx. 50% of the nuggets were affected, throughout the bag. I stopped feeding immediately. I called the company this morning and did not hear back. The dogs are improving but still experiencing diarrhea. FWIW: I'm a biologist. This looks like fungal contamination. I store the food in an air-tight bag, then placed in a food-safe air-tight container. The bag has no punctures or damage and the expiration is 8/24.	7.5	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	25	Pound

Fed him from new bag. He ate a little but started refusing to eat. Didn't finish his normal portion in the AM. I didn't offer him anything else and he eventually ate some more. Ate puppy treats and apples eagerly throughout the day. Same issue in the evening but refused to finish that portion. Started throwing up that evening. 6/6/23: same issues, refused to eat morning food completely, ate some of the evening portion, seemingly ate out of hunger. 6/7/23: refused to eat, face started swelling around nose and eyes. Took him to regular vet. No sign of injury, diagnosed as allergic reaction (assumed sting, bite, plant etc but unknown), gave Dexamethasone and Diphenhydramine shots in office and prescribed Prednisone tablets. swelling reduced within a couple hours, offered dinner, ate very little. threw up afterwards 6/8/23: Face swelling increased some but not as much as the initial incident, very lethargic, ate some in AM and PM. 6/9/23: Face swelling stable but increasingly lethargic. Called vet, Vet reduced prednisone dosage (told to skip the Friday evening dose and start with one a day instead of the three days of twice a day) he ate dinner and threw up twice within the hour of eating. 6/10/23: Face swelling increased. Did not offer food. Called Vet (8:30am) Vet called back 10:00am was told to take to ER. Took to ER Vet and was seen by 11:30. Facial swelling had decreased. Labs and Xrays were done. The labs confirmed allergic reaction but Vet MD stated it had to be a recurring exposure for the symptoms to keep recurring. They administered same shots, Dexamethasone and Diphenhydramine, and instructed to keep taking the prednisone. Facial swelling increased when we got home (he did not eat but he drank water from his bowl that sits in the same container of the food bowl) We cleaned all his bedding and areas in the house he has access to trying to find the source of the recurring exposure. This included cleaning his food station. For his pm feeding, I fed him from a new bag a food (as an experiment as that was the only other item that was "new" and recurring through the week) He ate eagerly and did not throw up. Facial swelling remained low that evening. 6/11/23: no incidents through the night, no facial swelling in the AM, ate AM feeding eagerly and completely. normal activity	8	Months	Retriever - Golden	Dog	70	Pound

EON-538884	6/5/2023 12:04	Pure Balance Pro+ small breed healthy skin and coat and immune support	I have been feeding pro+ from Walmart since (b) (6) was a pup. I recently restocked (I am a truck driver so I make sure to have a good stock and backup for him so if we get stranded he doesn't go hungry). He ate 3 of the little cans (bowls?) a day. Which is the recommended amount to feed him. It's never happened before but this time within two days he was vomiting in the morning. It looked like bile so I assumed he had just gotten a bit too hungry overnight and immediately opened a can for him. He didn't eat it just lapped up the gravy around it. Got him outside and he had really bad diarrhea. Yellow and very watery. He refused to drink all day long and wouldn't eat anything except chicken. Once again, I'm an otr truck driver so I immediately called my vet who told me to discontinue his food for now and give him boiled chicken with sweet potato and green beans, and to put electrolytes into his water as well. And again truck driver. So I found a Walmart and got supplies and he's been taking them for three days. Today was the fourth. He is slowly getting better and better and back to his bouncy self no more vomiting but still has diarrhea. He sees the vet on Monday when we are home. I will also be giving the vet a bowl of food from those boxes so he can check them out. I am extremely worried that his food has been tampered with at the manufacturer and it is a thought that I can't push from my head.	1.5	Years	Dachshund - Miniature	Dog	8	Pound

EON-538845	6/4/2023 21:08	Canidae All Life Stages Multi-Protein Formula with Chicken Lamb & Fish	Recently (5/8/23) purchased Canidae dog food and the label had changed. Comparing ingredients of old label versus new label, discovered that ingredients and order they are used had changed. There was nothing on the label indicating a new formula. Unsure if the change in ingredients had an impact. But I began noticing that my dog didn't want to eat, despite the fact that he was hungry. Around 5/22/23, I started noticing a change in my dog. He was lethargic and I could barely get him to eat. But I persisted because he's a small dog and I didn't want him losing weight. He began infrequently throwing up small amounts of bile. I started paying more attention to his condition. Sometime during the week of 5/21/23, I began noticing small dark spots in the Canidae. I went so far as to put one of these spots between my fingers; it wasn't any different than the food around it. I even smelled it and I couldn't discern a foul odor. So I assumed that it was part of the formula change. A week later, around 5/29/23, things got worse. My dog was defecating several times during the day, which is not something he normally does. The episodes of throwing up bile became more frequent and on a daily basis. At this point, I determined that it had to be the Canidae, as nothing else in his diet had changed. Whatever ingredients had been added or omitted, it wasn't agreeing with my pup. On 5/31/23, I completely stopped giving him any Canidae. I became concerned that the dark spots in the food were possibly mold. I was so concerned that I phoned Canidae on 6/2/23 and expressed my worries. They took some information from me, asked me to photograph the contents of the can as well as the bottom with the Use by date and Lot codes. They told me they would send me an email to enable me to send them the photos. No email ever came. So I'm not convinced they're at all concerned. However, by discontinuing feeding my dog any Canidae, his health has improved and he's regained his appetite. My Vet has seen photos of the contents of the opened can and he tends to believe it's mold, although he has not seen the can contents in person. So, I decline to provide Vet information, as my dog has not been seen and currently seems to be recovering. My dog is elderly and he doesn't deserve to be fed sub par food. I thought Canidae was a quality brand. However, I will never again feed him this food. If anything adverse happens to my dog within the next week, I will seek medical attention for him.	14.5	Years	Terrier (unspecified)	Dog	18	Pound

EON-538598	6/1/2023 10:48	Senior Advanced Aller-Immune Bites	I had two food contamination incidents with a dog treat product manufactured by Zesty Paws and distributed by Amazon, described below: Incident 1: Date: May 25, 2023 Product: Aller-Immune Bites by Zesty Paws Description: While giving my dog one of the Aller-Immune Bites treats, I found a pebble-like object embedded within the treat. I immediately stopped giving the treats to my dog, but he had nearly finished the entire container of treats. Action Taken: I contacted Zesty Paws to report the incident, providing detailed information, including lot numbers and photos. Incident 2: Date: May 31, 2023 Product: Aller-Immune Bites by Zesty Paws Description: Another incident of treat contamination occurred recently when a treat from a different batch of the same type of product contained a foreign object resembling a bird bone. This incident made me really worried about the safety and quality standards associated with the product. Action Taken: Reported the incident to Zesty Paws and Amazon, providing detailed information, including lot numbers and photos. These incidents of treat contamination with the Aller-Immune Bites treats by Zesty Paws are distressing and indicate potential health risks for pets. The repeated occurrence of foreign objects embedded in the treats raises serious concerns about the product's manufacturing and quality control processes. I urge the FDA to conduct a thorough investigation into the treat contamination incidents associated with the Aller-Immune Bites. It is essential to determine the cause of these foreign objects and assess their potential health risks to animals. Moreover, appropriate measures should be implemented to prevent future incidents, ensuring the safety and well-being of pets and maintaining consumer confidence in the pet food industry. Please contact me for photographs of the foreign objects found in the treats. Your attention to this issue is greatly appreciated.

EON-538546	6/1/2023 1:24	Kaytee Fiesta Guinea Pig Food	Many Kaytee food products meant for guinea pigs are dangerous and unsafe. For example the Kaytee Fiesta guinea pig food contains an extreme amount of nuts and seeds. These two items should not be feed to guinea pigs and many owners have had to go to the vet for GI statis. These items such as seeds and nuts force the guinea pigs stomach digestion to slow down and worse even stop. When this happens they're in pain and unable to eat, drink, nor poop. Another kaytee product is called the timothy roll n toss which also contains seeds. One owner had to go to the vet after feeding the roll n toss. They took an x-ray and found white specks in their guinea pigs abdomen that were from the seeds and should not have been feed. Yet companies l ke kaytee market these harmful products toward many guinea pig owners. Yet we continue to see these products at pets stores. Companies like kaytee do not care about the well being of pets. If they did they would not sell products like these. While I am one individual I would not be surprised if many other vets have experienced guinea pigs coming in from eating products like these. Often times people do not care for small animals such as guinea pigs. Therefore I am writing a report to the FDA in hopes that something will change to prevent future harm on guinea pigs.

He had mild increase in creatine and vet wanted me to put him on prescription food to delay kidney disease. He was on food for about 6 months. On his next senior checkup in Spring, his Calcium levels were elevated into high range. I also notice he was not feeling well and had muscle stiffness and decrease appetite. I even had x-rays done to check for arthritis. His x-rays were good. I took him off the Hill's Kidney Care and been feeding him Royal Canin Mature and Tiki Cat Silver. I had blood work done few months later and (b) (6) calcium levels are back in the normal range. He has more energy, moving around without stiffness, and his appetite is back. After 2 months off Hill's k/d, his Calcium levels went from 12.7 back down to 10. I think Hill's k/d prescription dry food was making him sick and would have killed him if I had not taken him off the food. I have last open bag of food but did not use much of it. I wish I had the last bag he used. All bags were purchased at local PetSmart and Chewy.com. I have asked my vet to submit a complaint about food. EON-537535	5/22/2023 4:32	Purina Pro Plan Focus Sensitive Skin and Stomach Adult Dog Food Salmon and Rice	We have been purchasing Purina Pro for years for our huskies after our vet recommended. Our one dog has a sensitive stomach and in the past we have used the salmon flavor of the sensitive skin and stomach line. We went to repurchase and bought 2 bags to last us both during and between travels while our dogs are boarded at their dog trainers. Both of our dogs started having GI issues to include diarrhea which we first accounted as stress of us being away, which was abnormal for them but first explanation. After a diet of chicken breast, rice, and pumpkin and the diarrhea clearing up the kibble was reintroduced to the dogs. Once reintroduced our dogs started showing signs of blood in their stools. The only common denominator is the dog kibble. No other dogs near them are showing any signs of GI distress, and the likelihood they BOTH all of a sudden have an intolerance of salmon is low. After reading recent reviews (3 months to present) of this specific flavor/formula on both Chewy AND Purina's website, maybe people are having the same or similar issues present in their dogs. This is more than just dogs being picky with flavors, some people have reported vet visits, new diagnoses of GI problems like IBD in their dogs, and emergency fluids. How can only a formula change do so much damage consistently across the board to dogs? We are switching our dogs to a new line that hasn't been changed and isn't seeing this type of issue in dogs.	6	Years	Siberian Husky	Dog	55	Pound

When I furthered examined the serving tray I noticed that there was food gravy that was already dried and already had dripped outside the foil lid. So I examined the rest of the serving trays for the remaining chicken and notices another serving tray of the chicken also had dried leaking gravy outside the foil lid! I want to know how long this food sat at the Ports of Los Angeles? or the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey? For this food to smell like dog shit and seeped out and was dried from underneath of the foil lid that tells me that this food was exposed to either long periods of heat or poor manufacturing protocol at the factory!

A cardiologist took one look at her x-rays, and was able to guess the type of dog food she was on. We've gone to many veterinary specialists now, and they all say it's widely known among the pet medical community and they've seen otherwise healthy dogs drop dead. Our dog will not recover from this disease. She's on medication now to try to extend her life as much as we can. We're devastated, and wish we had known how terrible Taste of the Wild and other grain free diets are for pets. In terms of disease progression, the first indication was when the dog developed a cough several months ago. After the usual medicines didn't take care of it, we did chest x-rays which revealed the heart abnormalities. We followed up with an echocardiogram, which confirmed the DCM diagnosis.

EON-537212	5/18/2023 11:40	Darwin's Natural Selections Cat food : turkey and chicken varieties	We were once frequent buyers of the Darwin's Natural Pet food for cats. Unfortunately, last year, we had a number of incidents where the cats both got sick. We spent upwards of $10k and that is not including travel to vets, food changes, prescriptions, etc... and the stress on top of the possible permanent damage that they suffered. It took as a while to figure out that it could be their food and when we did, I promptly contacted them. They contacted back to find out but then just ghosted me after I gave them the result that a zoonotic bacteria had been found in their systems and was the cause of their illness. They finally got better after months and me switching their food from Darwin's. We later found out there had been an FDA recall of their food which Darwin's fought hard against. This was not the first recall based upon my research. It hurts me that our pets went through this and the emotional turmoil and just financial and physical losses incurred. And Darwin's not taking accountability and with many animals possibly ill or even dead not having had the means that I did to get to the bottom of this is so unfortunate. I will be forwarding the same to the FDA but also want you to see this and hopefully, get a resolution for this. All animals exhibited: lameness, depression, diarrhea, inflammation of GI tract, immune responses, hospitalization, vomiting and in appearance amongst many other symptoms. two had to be hospitalized as it is their primary food. The other (dog) only tasted a bit so had less reactions but still had GI issues, nausea, diarrhea and vomiting.			Domestic Longhair	Cat

On the next annual exam on 2/7/2023, the vet still noticed the Grade 2 heart murmur, so she recommended blood work (Cardiopet proBNP), which came back with elevated results. Thus, the vet recommended seeing a cardiologist. On 5/2/2023, the cardiologist performed a detailed physical exam and ECG, diagnosing my pet with mitral valve dysplasia. There isn't definitive evidence yet that my pet's dog food caused her heart condition, but I wanted to report it - given how abnormal it is for a Havanese to be diagnosed with a heart condition at such a young age, especially given no family history. My pet has eaten Canidae All Life Stages Lamb Meal and Rice dry dog food her entire life. The second ingredient in that dog food is peas, even though it is not a grain-free dog food. I removed a 1/4 square piece of rubber from her mouth and throat. On closer inspection I could also see flecks of black material proliferated through the food, which I discarded. This can came from a 24pk of Poultry and Beef Collection, UPC 0005000081817 purchased at Kroger in (b) (6) probably in the last week of April. I discarded all other cans but retained the rubber and the can, which is marked with serial number 30639052L2A2231648. The next morning I observed the cat had vomited and had diarrhea twice. She was listless and hot to the touch. She was unable to feed her four kittens. This is a foster cat. EON-536639	5/13/2023 3:12	Evanger's Heritage Classics for Cats Chicken Lickin' Dinner For Cats	All of our three cats are indoor cats; cared for and fed at least two meals per day. My wife and I started feeding our cats Evanger's line of cat food. This brand entered our rotation three years ago. About a couple months ago, we were noticing one of our cats, (b) (6) a Russian Blue, started to lose weight quickly, coat was changing texture and becoming brittle, and he became more temperamental. Multiple times (b) (6) threw up after eating, was having unusual poops, and became aggressive to me, my wife and our other two cats. We thought it might have been an obstruction in his GI. He went from being 12-13 pounds to 7-8 pounds. We took him to the vet on multiple occasions. We had blood tests and x-rays/ultrasounds, but they came and ruled out illnesses diagnoses that involved his symptoms. One day my wife called me in a panic during work because (b) (6) threw up his breakfast and was feverish, lethargic, and panting. I asked her to give him 15 minutes before feeding him again. After she fed him a second breakfast he threw up again within 5 minutes, still lethargic and panting. She waited another hour before she fed him a different brand of cat food. (The other cats, in general, were okay because we had them on a mix of other foods.) From then on, I suspected it might be (b) (6) food. Later that week, I opened a can of "Evanger's Chicken Lickin' Dinner for cats" and found a full-sized maggot. This confirmed my suspicion. Evanger's was the culprit. The bottom of the can had the number "2122N22CL02BESTSEP2025". I have a few can in my pantry remaining, including another unopened one with the same number. (I will be happy to send them for your investigation/testing.) It's been a few weeks since we removed Evanger's from the food rotation and (b) (6) has been improving since. Although he weighs about 9 pounds now, (b) (6) is still far below his normal range of 12-13 pounds.	7	Years	Russian	Cat

			Please do something to rectify matters with Evanger's. We spent our hard-earned money on bad food and hundreds of dollars on vet bills. We don't want other pet owners and their cats going through this issue and we hope that our reporting prevents further harm to others.

EON-536625	5/12/2023 21:56	Kirkland Signature Nature's Domain Turkey and Sweet Potato Formula	Within a couple of days of incorporating the new bag of food, owners observed anorexia, lethargy, and increased water drinking and urination. First vet visit included blood work which showed a high total calcium level along with dehydration. Vet did not suspect kidney disease or cancer based upon initial blood work and age of pet. Dog received fluids, an anti-nausea injection, and an antacid injection. Blood was sent off to for an ionized calcium and PTH test. Meanwhile pet continued to show same symptoms and more blood was taken four days later. Results showed an even higher total calcium level and signs of kidney strain. Pet continued to receive subcutaneous fluids, a steroid injection, and a cortisol test to rule out Addison's disease. The cortisol test came back within normal range so Addison's is not suspected at this time. Ionized calcium and PTH test came back showing that the ionized calcium was elevated and the PTH was within the normal range so Hyperparathyroidism is not suspected at this time. We are now about three weeks out from the date of purchase of the new bag of food. New blood work shows total calcium levels have lowered to the high end of the normal range. Appetite has returned but is still experiencing slight dehydration, heightened water intake and urination with spouts of lethargy. Continuing with subcutaneous fluid visits in hopes that calcium levels will lower further into the normal range. Latest blood work showed a slight increase in ALT related to liver. Vitamin D toxicity from new food is considered as a possibility at this time due to all of these diagnostics.	4	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	52	Pound

The Original Pup Pie Happy Birthday Natural Pie Shaped Treat for a Darling Girl	We celebrated (b) (6) 3rd birthday on Tuesday 4/25/23 as we usually do for our 2 dachshunds every year. This year while at Petsmart I purchased the Lazy Dog Cookie Co Pup Pie (the first time ever) and read the ingredients and thought they would be good for my pets, however I found out that this was not the case at all. My baby girl (b) (6) began showing signs of sluggishness and pain the next day. On Thursday she was getting worse and not eating or drinking any food. By Friday 4/28/23 she was in excruciating pain and very lethargic. I had to take the day off work to take her to an emergency vet appointment). The vet determined that she was experienced some type of GI issues. I stayed home all weekend with my baby girl babying her and making sure she wasn't going to die, however come Monday morning she could not walk so I took her back to the vet where he still insisted that she had a GI issue and prescribed her additional medication. That evening, I saw a post on facebook that many dogs were very ill and dying after ingesting this same dog treat with the same lot number. I then returned to the vet again on Tuesday and at that time he decided to treat her for salmonella poisoning and added 2 more prescriptions for her. Today is 5/9/23 and she is finally showing signs of improvement, thank God. This has been stressful, depressing and emotional on my dog, myself and my family. I also noticed today that the company posted on facebook that they are now aware of this situation and have voluntarily removed the entire lot from the market. I was very scared that my dog was going to die and thankfully I continued to get care for her and the correct meds.	3	Years	Dachshund - Miniature	Dog	18	Pound
EON-536296	5/9/2023 14:52	They two variety of each flavored dog food. Supreme (grain free) and Barley.	I used to work for Big Dog Natural. They do not handle raw meat according to FDA's regulations. They never test their food for bacteria or anything other than AFFCO standards. When they transport raw meat, they do not keep it temperature controlled. When they thaw raw meat, they do not move it from the freezer to the refrigerator to let it warm up in acceptable standards. For example, they take boxes of salmon, beef, lamb, chicken, turkey, and tripe right out of the freezer and lay them on the floor of the warehouse to thaw for two days. Then when the food is processed and put back into the freezer, they often stack the meats on top of each other with cross contamination of all meats stated above. When I brought this issue up to Ben Inzelbuch he told me not to worry about it and to stop worrying about government agencies and regulations because they do not apply "here". People operating the forklift were never certified, and known to be under the influence of THC while operating the forklift. I tried to address this problem with him several times to which he disregarded me. I continued to bring up these issues, to which he proceeded to make my job impossible to accomplish and belittled me saying "what is the matter you can't keep up?" They also have two lines of food. Supreme, and Barely (grain) for each flavor mentioned. It should be noted that each and every product has grain in it because they add breadcrumbs to every single batch to keep the food together. On their website they state they their supreme version is grain free. This is a lie. If a dog can not handle the grain then this will certainly hurt them. I was specifically instructed by Ben Inze buch to not include breadcrumbs on the AAFCO food testing submissions when I listed the ingredients. I did not like this and objected. Since then he made work for me impossible leading me eventually to quit and then be fired when he lured me back in promising employment elsewhere. I want to be clear that this is not me being a disgruntled employee, this is a genuine concern for the dogs that eat this. It claimed to have a very short list of all natural ingredients. Within two hours of ingestion, both dogs began showing signs of severe stomach upset. Both dogs were profusely vomiting and having uncontrollable diarrhea. The sickest dog began having bloody diarrhea, vomiting blood, shaking, unable to stand or walk. Upon investigating, I found the products ingredients listed online did not match the list of ingredients on the packaging. I also discovered dozens negative reviews about how sick the product made their animals. (b) (6) is better, but (b) (6) was hospitalized at the vet for days... she required iv fluids, antibiotics, and iv nausea meds just to survive. We also want to add that multiple other conditions were ruled out by our vet, including worms, coccidia, gardias, parvo, and GDV. Her diagnosis was dietary indiscretion, and she was completely healthy before this treat was given. We reached out to the company and they dismissed the situation, and said we must have let our dogs overindulge or get too excited. The requested proof of purchase, the lot code from the box, our vet records, and we supplied all information. However when we asked them to compensate for the vet bills, or at least give us their insurance information so we could file a claim, they stopped responding. They are trying to convince me that my situation is an isolated incident, but I've seen dozens of reviews, and gotten countless messages from people who have experienced the same thing. They have deleted all reviews of the Pup Pie on their website, and turned off commenting on their Facebook page and instagram pages. EON-535101	4/27/2023 11:08	Blue Buffalo Dental Bones All Natural Rawhid-Free Large Dental Dog Treats Jumbo Pack	I am my dog's primary veterinarian and owner. Started a new bag of Blue Buffalo dental chews over the weekend. Have used these daily for approximately 1 year with no issues. We started ordering them on autoship from Amazon and have noticed that the bones look different in each bag, sometimes darker or lighter, harder or softer, but weren't having problems until this bag. One dog (3 y mixed breed neutered male about 35 lb) has vomited the same night as receiving one of these bones, but otherwise seems unaffected. The other dog (5 y mixed breed spayed female about 55 lb) has a history of food sensitivity and eats hydrolyzed food and is the reason we chose these treats. She was treated for a GI obstruction for the last two days, never eats anything she is not supposed to and is not an investigator or tendency to swallow non-food material. The obstruction was soft tissue density and had the shape of one of these dental chews, was in pieces, but resulted in pyloric obstruction which resolved with 48 hours fasting, though dog is not behaving entirely normal yet. Will not be feeding these bones anymore, but there may be a problem with this lot, or perhaps they changed formulation. Wanted to report in case other people were reporting the same thing. Nature's Evolutionary Diet with Chicken and LifeSource Bits Adult Small Breed	I switched my dog from Fromms Chicken dry food to the Blue Wilderness Chicken dry food meant for small dogs. It's being discontinued, according to Chewy, which is odd. I bought this pink bag of 11 b dry food through Amazon. Since then, my dog has been having diarrhea nonstop. It's lasted 4 days, where he urgently rushes to the door to be taken outside. He got up 4-6 times a night for the first 3 nights. He had diarrhea. Then, I gave him a bland diet and the stool began to firm. I slowly added Blue Buffalo back into his diet, making sure that's the only sustenance he was consuming aside from water. I continued monitoring, his diarrhea has worsened to the point that he is straining and there's blood in his stool. This began again. 3 days. For about a week, he had very frequent stools and they're all soft and/or wet, with blood. Before, my dog pooped normally. Now, again after trying a bland diet, he improved a bit. But again, he got diarrhea once I slowly transitioned him back to Blue buffalos high protein dry dog food (in the pink bag). Now, my dog has straining and diarrhea and blood again. I'm taking him to the vet. I can confirm that this is the only change that correlated to his onset of symptoms. I'm switching back to Fromms and I'm highly disappointed and concerned. Other dogs, based on reviews I saw on Amazon and Chewy for this product, have stated similar experiences. I reported this to Amazon, and now I hope this report helps to look into the causes of this.	3.5	Years	Pinscher - Miniature	Dog	14	Pound

EON-533954	4/18/2023 20:24	V-Dog Kind Kibble Vegan Dog Food	Both dogs (male beagle and female beagle mix) were given V-Dog for six years, starting in 2015. In 2021, the male dog who was 13 presented with congestive heart failure symptoms that presented a month before he was euthanized in July 2021. A physical exam weeks before death did not detect a murmur. The weeks before he passed he was more lethargic and coughed, which we now know due to pulmonary edema. On the night of his passing, he could not stop coughing and imaging showed a severely enlarged heart and extensive water in his lungs. The female dog who was ten, showed some signs of lethargy but I initially thought it was due to the death of the other dog. In October of 2021 she began coughing and passing out. Although she too had been seen by a vet weeks before the onset of her coughing, we took her to the ER where we discovered she also had an enlarged heart and pulmonary edema. She was treated and then taken to a cardiologist who diagnosed her with possible diet-related cardiomyopathy based on her symptoms, breed and diet. She was given several medications and we were told to switch to a grain inclusive diet, which we did. Subsequent echocardiograms showed some improvement on certain areas of her enlargement, but she never fully recovered and on December 2022 her edema returned. Her medications were increased but ultimately she declined beyond saving and was euthanized in April of 2023. I have additional details concerning her medication, tests and progression I can share upon request.		Years	Beagle	Dog

Blood tests were done & her liver enzymes were wildly elevated- the vet put her on 2 liver medicines and 3 ant biotics and prednisone. A deeper specialist ultrasound was done within a week and it was discovered her liver had "changes" but recommended a liver biopsy to evaluate the problem further, a coagulation test was done and results awaited to further see if there were any coagulation issues as a full liver biopsy was recommended. The liver biopsy has now been done and her liver is showing copper accumulation of a level 3 out of 5. This is very concerning to have happened to such a young dog- the manufacturers should be made to put the copper content on their packaging- I had to call Purina to find out the copper content after my dog was taken ill - they told me it was 18.5mg/kg. Within 1 hour of eating this food, 3 of our cats were sick. Two had to be rushed to the Vet emergency. One of our 3 cats got sicker and sicker. He had follow ups at our regular vet, but he wasn't able to eat. In total, he had x-rays, blood work, urinalysis, ultrasound and finally a feeding tube was inserted. Ultimately, he had to be euthanized. This happened over the course of 6 weeks. All the vets were really trying to save (b) (6) especially because he had been such a healthy cat up to this point. He was 12 years old and still I ke a kitten. All of the vets we saw agreed that it was a high probability that this illness was the result of eating this Friskies food. After several months though, she began having loose stools. After a trip to the vet which included tests and exam, I began looking closely at the ingredients. I discovered that Hill's had replaced the psyllium husks with ground pecan shells!! This alarmed me and I spoke with Hill's on the matter. They stated the pecan shells were for f ber!!! I then spoke with her Vet and told her I'd like to change foods. Found out that Hill's offered a low fat canned food. I reviewed the ingredients, and pecan shells were not listed. We then tapered (b) (6) over to the canned I/d low fat food. In a short amount of time, (b) (6) began to act like she felt so good, actually younger?? Continued feeding her this for several months. Then one day (b) (6) vomited several times while I was at work. It was Very dark. Took (b) (6) along with a sample to her Vet. She examined (b) (6) and ran bloodwork. Bloodwork came back fine and Vet did not see blood in the sample. Per Vet, (b) (6) was not exhibiting signs of pain or soreness. Once back home, I began looking at the canned food ingredients and discovered AGAIN that ground pecan shells had been added to the ingredients!!!! Upon researching foods that are toxic to dogs, you will find nuts to be listed as a toxic food!! This lasted about 1 1/2 minutes, after the convulsions stopped, she was confused and growled at me, which is unusual. She tried to stand but could not. She was disoriented and unsteady on her feet for about an hour afterwards. We rushed to an emergency vet, who ran blood work and urine and found only a slight elevation in one of her liver enzymes. Her neurological exam was normal. Once we got home, she had another seizure at about 7am that lasted for 2 minutes. She again was confused afterwards and was running into objects while she stumbled around my apartment. This lasted for another hour. She has had no seizures since then. One week prior, she had started a new food, Purina Proplan Veterinary Diets UR, due to recurrent UTIs. I had been mixing it with her usual food until Monday, April 10th I finally only gave her the new prescription food for dinner. That night, she seized. EON-530354	4/13/2023 12:12	Rachael Ray Nutrish	We had a very unfortunate incident happen with our 5yo female GSD named ^{(b) (6)} a few days ago. She is an indoor dog, weighs around 100 bs and has no previous health issues. She's eaten Racheal Ray dog food for a few years but we'd just opened a new bag and she ate her first bowl Monday morning then went outside to play for a bit, came back in, fell asleep. After a few hours we noticed she was still sleeping and we could not get her to wake up! Her eyes were rolled back in her head, gums were pink, respirations were slow and HR was around 80. We tried every thing we could think of to try to make her regain consciousness and after about 45 mins she took a big breath then had a seizure but fell unconscious again. We finally got her loaded up to get her to the vet and she had a few more seizures in the mean time. The vet gave her steroids & fluids and kept saying it appeared that she had OD'ed on something and asked if she could have gotten into meds, drugs or edibles. We just don't have anything like that at our house and we live out in the country on 7acres where she is always in our sight so she never goes on other peoples land or to neighbors houses. The vet kept insisting she ate something that made act this way / made this happen and we agreed to a drug test. He kept her over night and continued fluids, steroids and antibiotics to flush her system. When he got the drug test the only thing it positive for was barbiturates. Again, the vet asked us if anyone in our house takes seizure meds, Xanax, ect and we do not nor does she have access to any meds!! He then asked if us or any neighbors recently had any big animals euthanized like horses or dogs that she could have gone over and chewed on because the drug the used to euthanize animals is a barbiturate. The answer is NO, she never leaves our sight! Our minds keep going back to the fact we had just opened a band new bag of dog food and she ate one bowl of it before this happened. We still have the packaging and entire bag of food saved. We will never feed her that brand again!! We would like to have it tested please. She is pretty much back to her old self after taking it easy for a few days but that was very traumatic!! We thought we gonna lose her. The other very scary thing we can't stop thinking about is we have a 10month old that sometimes sneaks pieces of dog food... :(The "what ifs"really get ya. Recently, my beloved dog consumed a bone that was labeled safe to eat and was purchased from Walmart. However, to my dismay, the bone or "easily chewable" caused significant harm to my dog, and I strongly believe it poses a serious threat to other pets as well. I have reached out to both Walmart Corporation and the manufacturer of the product, but despite my best efforts, no action has been taken to address the issue. Currently, my dog is still in the hospital recovering from the effects of consuming this bone. I have documented evidence of the bone, including samples, receipts, timeline, video footage, and even a written statement from my dog's veterinarian. Despite my efforts to contact Walmart Corporation and the manufacturer, I have not received any response, and no action has been taken to recall the product. The fact that it has not been recalled is a serious concern to me, especially given that the bone is labeled as safe for dogs to consume, despite being completely toxic. The bone has even been shown to be undetectable on X-rays, which is particularly concerning for pet owners who may believe that the product is safe based on its labeling. I have also sought legal counsel as my next step since no action has been taken, and I feel like I am running out of options. I strongly believe that the public has a right to know about the potential danger of this bone, and I urge you to investigate this matter further and bring it to the attention of	1	Years	Pug	Dog	20	Pound

EON-529832	4/12/2023 16:32	Milo's Kitchen Beef Sausage Slices and Rice	Was shopping at (b) (6) in (b) (6) and decided to pick up some dog treats. When reviewing the packaging for Milo's Kitchen products I noticed they had listed within ingredient section garlic powder and onion extract. These are extremely toxic to dogs and cause injury or death. They are two things that should never make their way into pet treats. These products need to be recalled and the manufacturer remove them from future products.

EON-529809	4/12/2023 16:00	Castor & Pollux ORGANIX Natural Petworks grain free Butcher & Bushel Organic chicken wing & thigh dinner with sweet potatoes in gravy	I brought my furbaby in to get an exam April 28, 2021 to (b) (6) when I thought he had an obstruction. After xrays, etc. it was determined no blockage but there was inflammation in his intestines. Fast forward, I realized later it had to be from canned dog food THAT HAD CHICKEN BONES in it that I gave my dog a portion of before I discovered the main bone. My vet agreed that could have been the problem. Yes, cooked chicken bones. Per the co, Organix by Castor & Pollux / Merrick, they ARE SUPPOSED to be in there...slow cooked. I filed a complaint and wanted them to reimburse me for my entire $460+ vet bill I incurred. After 3 months of back and forth and runarounds (yes I've saved all emails..I insisted all in writing), the company just told me they would NOT reimburse me for my costs because no response was received by my vet, however they offered a $150 "donation" towards my dog's vet costs. I was upset my vet hadn't responded to them in a few wks and sent him and the owner of the vet hospital an email yesterday expressing my immense disappointment in not supporting me (I've been taking my pets to them since the 1990s)...This morning my vet called saying he indeed called the dog food company back but could not reach their "claims" person and evidently left a message to call back, which they never did. I believe my vet said he tried a couple times. So did the dog food company lie? FYI the company rep (Alise Smith) originally told me a CLAIMS rep would be contacting me and my vet regarding the situation. I found that they did NOT turn it over to any insurance company for a claim, but instead turned it over to a "vet" (Jeremy Tarlow) who's company -- Drs.4Pets -- consults and develops dog products for companies I ke and including Castor & Pollux	3	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	15	Pound and I thought it's better than nothing AND BECAUSE I DIDN'T THINK MY VET WAS GOING TO RESPOND TO THEM. They stated that the main reason for not reimbursing the full amount is because my vet didn't respond. BUT HE DID...THAT'S THE LAST STRAW! I've done an internet search on the "safety" of giving dogs cooked chicken bones and have not found one to support feeding dogs cooked chicken bones! They all say DON'T! My vet said NO CHICKEN BONES! Other vets I called I was told the same thing. I bought the dog food online (PETSMART) and did not see the back of the can to read it contains bones. The description is also confusing leaving a person to think that it's cooked with them, but not included in the product. There's only a portion of the back of the can showing online. The full back of the can of their description of "slow cooked..."was not fully visible. I purchased the dog food via Pet Smart website. This was the link, but it shows a different food now: https://www.petsmart.com/dog/food/canned-food/castor-and-pollux-organix-butcher-and-bushel-grain-free-adult-dog-food-922.html (THIS LINK DOES NOT SHOW THE PRODUCT ANYMORE) This is a Link to where it's selling at Whole Foods: https://www.wholefoodsmarket.com/product/castor-pollux-organix-butcher-bushel-chicken-wing-thigh-dog-food-127-oz-b07dw1xd75 I did not look at the photo showing the contents when I purchased the product. I don't even remember such a photo when I purchased the product. I just looked at the cover of the can and scanned the ingredients list, WHICH HAS NO MENTION OF BONES. When I looked at it just now, their pic of the contents looks like 2 pieces of only meat and you cannot read their entire description on the back re slow cooked bones.

I was still thinking it may just be incidental. Over the past 2 days I have seen 12 of the cats throw up, A LOT. So far this morning I have cleaned up over 35 times. My cats are various ages There are 2 cats who are in cages and did not have access AT ALL to this food. Those cats are NOT sick. I have a friend who fed this to her three cats last week. EON-528560	4/5/2023 22:28	Pet pride Indoor cat	WARNING DECEASED ANIMAL Please, read. Krogers "Pet Pride (indoor cat)" cat food killed these two precious boys!! Within less than a week, and has made two other cats deathly ill. These Two, were luckily able to be saved. It also made 4 others of our cats vomit, after ingesting this food. They did not eat as much of it as the others. Last Saturday afternoon my father in law bought krogers "Pet Pride indoor cat" from (b) (6), to feed his fur babies. We usually get friskies seafood sensations, however they were out that day, so he grabbed the next biggest bag which was the "Pet pride". We noticed that even though the kitties are hungry after laying the food out, they seemed like they didn't want to eat it, but nevertheless were hungry and ate it anyways. Fast forward a few days and the cats have been eating the food for a couple days now, I notice bloody stool in the litter box, and alot of it but didn't see who went potty to pin point it. Tuesday afternoon my mother in law cannot find her orange cat (b) (6) and we look for him inside, and outside everywhere we could think of. We thought he had just gotten out somehow. He did not.. he was not even showing signs of being sick but we found out later on, he had went under the couch went into organ failure and passed right there without our knowledge. Tuesday afternoon I notice (b) (6) the siamese sleeping, acting lethargic, eyes were dilated and he began to have bloody stool as well. We make sure he is giving water throughout the day from a baby syringe, and a Lil bit of activated charcoal just in case, to obsorb anything bad he could've gotten into but we had absaloutley no idea what was making him sick. Wednesday morning comes around and I notice a other cat named (b) (6) lethargic, eyes dilated, meowing a lot, and unable to jump up on the counter, this is when I found his back end had poop on it, as he did not feel good enough to clean himself. We syringe feed water to (b) (6) as well, and that same night, we give them both canned pumpkin in the hopes to heal their bellies and help their stool. Shockingly doing this multiple times helped both (b) (6) and (b) (6) get better and even made the blood in the stool go away. I'm not	6	Years	American Shorthair	Cat	13	Pound sure how, but It did. Fast forward to Thursday, my mother in law calls my name and I can hear something is wrong in her voice, she then tells me she just moved the couch and found (b) (6) deceased. And is an absolute mess, because we don't know what's wrong with everyone, and (b) (6) never even showed signs of being ill. He literally just went under the couch and died of organ failure. I then gather myself and try to console my mother in law. I clean and box up his body and called a few people. In the end (b) (6) took his body for us as we do not have a car to drop him off at the animal foundation. At this point me and my mother in law are both panicking trying to find any chemicals or anything that they could've gotten into. We find nothing. And then all of the sudden I see the "PET PRIDE" food on the table and then something in my head just clicked. They didn't start getting sick until AFTER we started feeding them from the "Pet pride" bag and then just a few days later, we now have one deceased cat, multiple sick cats, or cats that are vomiting from the food after eating. It HAS to be the food!! So we panicked, went and got every single piece that was left of it. And then, switched it out with friskies, it was the only change in their diet and day to day lives. Unfortunately it didn't stop there..Friday the beautiful Grey and white boy pictured below, started to get ill, lethargic, and his eyes were dilated. This cat was specifically kept in a separate room by himself, away from the others, because he fought the other cats so there's no way he could've come in contact with any of them, and gotten sick. I then remember he had a ton of the "Pet pride" food in his room when I had switched it out, and he had probably eaten a lot of it. More than the other cats did. We try to help him as well. It's now Saturday morning and I went in his room to check on him, when I found him he was hiding at the bottom of his cat tower, his eyes were extremely dilated, and was profusely drooling, I take him out of the room and bring him to my mother in law where she makes a safe space for him in the laundry room. She cleans him up and tried to syringe him water as much as she can without making him vomit, multiple times throughout the day. We also try the pumpkin, he continues to throw it up. At this point We are now trying to find a vet to take us with no money, and are so scared he's going to pass. But everyone wants at least a few 100 to take him in for the treatment he might need. And we are low income and on disability. My mother in law doesn't know what to do, as she does not have the money, but is terrified of losing him, just a few hours later, on Saturday night. (b) (6) passed and crossed the rainbow Bridge, and mother in law just absolutely lost it, she's had him for the past almost 7 years, and has had him since he just a tiny kitten. We were able to save (b) (6) and (b) (6) but grem didn't make it and we didn't even have a chance to help (b) (6) as he didn't even show us he was sick. My mother in law is absolutely distraught over the loss of her two fur babies, (b) (6) and (b) (6) And does not want this to happen to anybody else or their fur babies! Please help us get justice for these babies!! All we did was try to feed our cats and in doing so they somehow got poisoned from the food, went into organ failure, and died. We have called Kroger and the number on the back of the bag and now have a case number as well. We are waiting for their call back to see how we can proceed from here, because the pain and suffering this has caused has been absolutely too much for my mother in law to bare, and she is blaming herself for buying this food. Please so we can get justice for (b) (6) and (b) (6) And get this contaminated "Pet Pride" off the shelves.

			She went to a breeder for several weeks 2 different times. Both times she ate Valu-pak 28-20 with no reported issues. She officially started this food at our home in early March after returning from breeder. She has consistently had very loose stools, almost every day. It's a grayish brown color. The breeder did not report this when she had her and she did not have the runny stools in February when she returned the first time. We are on the second bag of this same food. My other 3 dogs ate the first bag with no apparent issues. At that time we had a male 2 year old Labrador, miniature schnauzer female puppy, and a dachshund male 10 years old. On April 5, the male Labrador started with runny stools, same color.	3	Years	Retriever - Labrador	Dog

Little did I know as I stood feeding my three year old German Shepherd treats from Carolina Pet, a company from whom I've purchased treats for the last three years that I would find myself at our vet with my little girl fighting for her life. The treats unbeknownst to me were contaminated with what appears to be an elastic material. A material that would find itself into her digestive system and in turn create an obstruction requiring surgery to correct reflected as a shadow on her x ray. I've have spent the last part of the better of a month an a half nursing her back to health. This has taken both an emotional and financial toll from not only the medical bills, but also the medication required. I am in possession of the contaminated treat which Carolina Pet refused to analyze and completely disregarded my concerns. Rather they simply put me off on their insurance company without advising whether they had identified imperfections in their processing. They simply treated the circumstance as a basic case of liability without any due care for other potentially impacted animals. I as a consumer expected more from a U.S. manufacturer that I have supported for years.	3	Years	Shepherd Dog - German	Dog	82	Pound

EON-528175	4/2/2023 18:52	Fancy Feast Fish & Shrimp Feast Flaked Fancy Feast Gourmet Naturals Beef Recipe Pate	I have been a Purina customer for decades (I am almost 44 years old now.) The Fancy Feast Fish and Shrimp Feast Flaked used to be a favorite of my cats (and was wonderful to hide their medications in) but the last time I ordered it from Chewy it was brown and old looking, there were whole pieces of fish skin in the food, and too many bones to pick out so I had to dispose of it. Some of the pieces of fish were sharp and hard as plastic. I thought perhaps it was a confined case so I had my uncle purchase a can from a local grocery store, Food Lion, and the food was in similar poor and dangerous condition. I purchased the Fancy Feast Gourmet Naturals Beef Recipe in Pate as I thought it was a healthier choice for my cats, but when I got to the bottom of the can, I saw pieces of the can had come off and were floating in the food. The bottom of the can looked like it had been scratched off or it was a used can rather than a brand new product. There was a white paint like coating inside the can and it looked like silver was poking through underneath the white paint. Unfortunately, my cats had already eaten some of the food before I discovered this. I am extremely worried about their health now and I hope they do not have any health issues from this. I thought it was just the one can that was like this or perhaps my spoon may have scraped the can, so I opened more cans from the case and I dumped the contents out without using a spoon and all of the cans were the same. I washed the can out with water so I could send a clearer picture of the state of the can to Chewy and Purina, and when I did, I wiped the can dry with a paper towel. When wiping the can with a paper towel, the substance wiped off onto the paper towel, and had the appearance of black mold spores. I sent Chewy an email to let them know about the cases of food I purchased. They

			I searched online to see if anyone else had had a similar experience with either of these Fancy Feast foods and I found some extremely concerning reviews online regarding Fancy Feast and Friskies on Amazon and a website (https://www.consumeraffairs.com/pets/fancy-feast.html#scroll_to_reviews=true) making cats very sick and some even dying after consuming these foods. If it was just a few cases I read about I would think it was just a coincidence, or if it was older or sickly cats involved that it may have been another health issue that caused their problems, but these were many cats of all ages, some were very young, all with similar symptoms and specific diagnoses, and many with similar deaths. One of the saddest I read about was a cat who was only a year and a half old whose only crime was eating Purina's cat food and paying for it with his life. This has upset me greatly. With all of these cases surely this should be looked into and I can't believe this has been going on for so long. It looks like after the first hundred or so reports that Purina would've straightened this out if there is a problem, but it appears cats have been continuing to get sick and die. Some people buy these foods and their animals have no effects, others get extremely ill and die. It's like playing Russian Roulette with your loved ones' lives and I am not willing to do that. It is very inconvenient having to find another food after all these years, but I will do whatever it takes to keep my loved ones from experiencing what others' loved ones have experienced and when you try to find out what they may have ingested Purina is no help at all. I do not plan on ordering any of their products again. For the health of their consumers the ingredients and cans should be in better shape than this. A thoroughly disgusted and disappointed, (b) (6)

I was told that she need emergency surgery and had to take her to a ER. WE left right from that vet to the ER. The ER took her right in and saw the same thing in there X-rays and ultra sounds. At that time they prepared her and they told me to leave due to the time the operation may take. That was at @ 8:30pm. At 1:17 am I got a call telling me that the surgery went well and they removed some bedding and that her stomach was full of "Bird Seed". I dint have a bird and also don't feed the birds outside. I ripped my house apart and found nothing. I then took a look at her dog food and I found a lot of seeds in her food. I look at the ingredients and there it was flax seeds. I called the ER and also sent them pics and she told he that's what they were. Her little stomach was full of them and when she cut her open they them got into her chest cavity which caused more issues for the ER doctor and my dog. I emailed the company(3/26) that made the food and them someone called me back on 3/27. She apologized for everything and said that she has never heard of anything I ke this before. She asked for pic of the dog food, bag and my dog. She also told me that she would refund my money for the dog food I bought and I explained to her that in not confutable with that and please hold off. I send them off and heard nothing back. I called her back (3/30) and she first asked how I got her number and I explained to her that it was on my cell. She told me that this is her personal cell number and she doesn't know how I got it. She told me that they were going to do nothing because I told her that I was going to get legal help on this.. I never said that all I said is that I will call NYS and also who ever watches over dog food manufacturers. She told me that she would go back and talk to her manager and call me back. During both calls she remained me that they are a family owned business and the family all works there. I have no idea what that matters because my dog almost died. I have 3 or 4 bags of that food not opened here and also the bag that is open her. what I did is take what I would feed my dogs and I separated out everything and found that my 14lb dog was getting 14+grams of flax seeds twice a day. I feel that their food is harmful and may kill dogs or have already. I talked to my local vet to get my other dog checked out and see if she has seeds stuck and she is fine. He told me that the food is part of the issue and I should first ta k to the company that made it then contact you and NYS. (b) (6) is recovering and is at home with me ands has a check up on 4/4 with the vet. The cost of the surgery was $6000.00 but because of her age and she being part of the family I felt I had to do something. We also have other bills that will be coming in for this issue. All symptoms would suggest they were poisoned or ate a toxin. The veterinarian who was caring for both cats while they were hospitalized agrees it has to be the food after a lengthy process of elimination. The food is lot number is 10407 and PT317632. EON-527505	3/26/2023 17:40	Rachel Ray Nutrish - Real Beef Pea & Brown Rice Recipe	(b) (6) had been eating Rachel Ray Nutrish Large Breed dog food for years with no issues. About 1 week after opening the most recent bag, he became lethargic. On Wednesday (3/8/2023), (b) (6) did not eat his dinner bowl of food and he had to be coaxed outside of the garage in order to pee before bed. The following day, he did not move to eat or drink or go outside the entire day so he was taken to the vet around 4:30pm. They suspected a GI issue so prescr bed antibiotics and some special food. He had to be force fed the meds and one tablespoon of food. By the following day, he was peeing broken down blood and could barely stand when forced. The vet now suspected poisoning but we could not figure out what he could have gotten into as he is chained up in our yard or in our garage at all times. They treated him for poisoning and gave IV fluids, etc. By Saturday evening, he had to be put down due to severe drop in red blood cells and liver failure. About a week after we lost (b) (6) we gave the leftover bag of food to our brother-in-law to feed their dog (b) (6) Only a day and a half later, (b) (6) became lethargic and her eyes seemed to be droopy and she would not stand up. They immediately suspected the food because of the suddenness and stopped feeding it to her. She recovered and is fine at this point, but we would like the food investigated because of these events.	9	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	100	Pound

Manufacturer was notified, they took down origin info and lot #. They said they would send a package to collect the defective bag and object. This was found before any pill pockets were used from the bag. I have contacted both Amazon (where I bought the bags) and Mazuri's (the manufacturer) customer services. Amazon said they were going to take action to remove the bags from that lot number from their inventory. Mazuri has shown no interest or concern in the matter whatsoever when I contacted their customer service via email and a phone call. When I emailed Mazuri, I was told that the feed was expired and that I shouldn't feed it to my birds. Since the best by date stated on the label is 23 June 2024, this is not true. When I followed up with another email pointing this out and adding a picture of the best by date and lot number as printed on one of the affected bags, I was ignored. I hoped to get Mazuri to take the problem seriously by calling them, since it is likely that all bags of the same lot number are affected, but during the phone call they still seemed very unconcerned about the fact that there were bugs in multiple bags of the same lot number. They said that I should not feed my birds feed that has bugs in it and that the product should be ordered from their website and not elsewhere. When I received the bags from Amazon, the bags were completely sealed and there was no evidence of any holes or tears, which leads me to believe these bags got contaminated with the bugs or their eggs in the facility where it was produced, and not in an Amazon warehouse.

Since we have 2 cats, one being diabetic, can't really tell what vomit went to what cat, I did witness my other cat, (b) (6) vomit on March 19, March 20, and March 21. I did not "Witness" (b) (6) vomit after eating, until March 21, evening feeding approx. 20 mins after eating. However, As much vomit areas in the home, I feel that it just wasn't one cat, plus the area which (b) (6) uses frequently for napping and hangin out, was some areas of vomit. As well as the size of the vomit piles, as (b) (6) is a smaller cat, there were small piles of vomit as well as larger piles of vomit, leading me to believe both cats had vomited. I did witness (b) (6) vomit on March 21, 2023 after eating in the evening. I did not seek medical attention for (b) (6) as I did not realize that this vomiting may have been caused from their food. As well as (b) (6) does not have any medical issues, only (b) (6) has diabetes. I automatically assumed that the vomiting was due to her diabetes. EON-526773	3/17/2023 20:44	Purina Pro Plan Veterinary Diets Hydrolyzed (HA) vegetarian formula	Dog has been on Purina Proplan HY prescription food for a few years. Mid February, dog developed anorexia, lethargic, increased urination and increased water intake, vomiting and constipation. Upon taking him to my veterinarian, it was discovered he had severe hypercalcemia. He was referred to a surgeon, and a Parathyroidectomy was performed. He was released from hospital 2 days later, and 2 days after coming home, he was severely lethargic, and still had hypercalcemia of 2.5 calcium level (which is a result of vitamin d toxicity). He spent another 2 days in the hospital on IV fluids. Purina Pro Plan issued a recall in the beginning of February for the EL type of prescription food. Last week they expanded the recall to more lot numbers. While my dog is on the HA version, which both are for food sensitivities, what are the chances that there was cross contamination, or the tainted food was put into the wrong bag. The dog is now home and slowly improving. While his calcium level is still high, it is trending down slowly where he will be monitored each week with blood work. This is too coincidental and my veterinarian and I both believe there is a possibility this food made him sick. I still have the bag of food and was curious if it could be tested.	10	Years	Coonhound - Treeing Walker	Dog	77	Pound

Both pets were transitioned to a prescription diet for supportive care. The diet was Purina Pro Plan Veterinary Diets Cat NF Early Care Canned NF 5.5oz Can. Both cats seemed to be reluctant to eat the food well and lost some weight throughout the fall. Recheck labs were performed in early February to monitor kidney values and response to diet change. Both cats had become hypercalcemic despite being normal in September. The more severe was (b) (6) with a value of 15.2 which is a severe elevation. (b) (6) value was 11.8. I discussed this with internal medicine and they felt that it was very suspicious for both pets to go from normal calcium to elevated calcium (especially the severe degree for (b) (6) in such a short time and simultaneously. They were suspicious of a food toxicity with vitamin D. I reached out to Purina who said it was not possible and did not investigate further. Owner switched the diet to Royal canin renal support and noted both cats started feeling better and re-gaining weight. Within 1 month of the diet change, (b) (6) value was back to normal. We did not retest (b) (6) as she had a much more mild elevation and was also feeling much better so owner declined retesting. I attempted to switch them to Appalachian Valley smallbreed flavor, but the smallest amount mixed with the High Prairie turned their poo yellow. I stopped the Appalachian Valley, and used the of my bag of High Prairie with no issues, no gastro problems, all was well. When I got a new bag of High Prairie, both dogs got very sick and began vomiting yellow froth shortly after eating the new bag of High Prairie. I called Diamond Petfoods for Taste of the Wild brand, and Taylor informed they had changed ingredients in Dec 2022. There is ZERO warning, no alert, no indication whatsoever that this brand has changed ingredients on the bag at all. Arent they supposed to warn consumers with a "new formula" or "new ingredients" label when they change recipe ingredients? They are misleading consumers by not labeling the change and more dogs will be sick as a result because they have changed the third most prevalent ingredient of potato flour to pea flour and a few other ingredients were switched as well. How do they get away with this? Website after website touts this to be a good food, and safe, but this is false marketing. Isn't this against some laws? Dont consumers have any rights to know what manufacturers are putting into products? Why is this company allowed to buy internet space to bury the complaints, hazards, and dangers of feeding animals their dangerous and misleading foods? Consumers should be warned and all these bags of $60 dogfood should be recalled for hiding new ingredients and removing other ingredients without any warning to the consumer. I think they must be breaking some labeling laws and the food needs to be tested for any other potentially dangerous ingredients as I have found other consumers reporting online too. This manufacturer should be audited, fined, and forced to make the consumer whole from using their products that were not labeled as to a change in ingredients. You cant know the ingredients changed if you throw away the old bag for the new bag, and this manufacturer is making millions banking on consumers not figuring out there was a change in the ingredients because they cannot compare to an old bag that was thrown away before comparing ingredients to the new bag. Unacceptable behavior from Diamond Pet Foods. Havent they killed and made enough pets sick yet? And they refuse to be held accountable, instead using dirty tactics to trick consumers at the expense of our dogs' health. Please put a stop to this manufacturer and recall all their foods until it is sorted out and tested.	2	Years	Terrier - Rat	Dog	20	Pound

I purchase them November 1st 2021 and I noticed that he was vomiting and had explosive diarrhea. After he had had a couple of them over the few weeks I had to take him to the vet clinic November 16th 2021. They did a X-ray to see what was going on in the digestive tract where they noticed there was metal particles through his intestinal tract. I did contact Sam's club which they did refund the amount of the dog snacks due to there being a recall on this particular lot number that contained metal fragments. I told them that my pet ended up in the vet clinic severely ill and I now have a vet bill that has never been refunded by the main company that makes the treats for Sam's club. The company is out of Germany which they make the product for Sam's club members but their main company name is fresco. I have sent them an email along with the vet invoice and I also have a letter from the veterinarian with the concern. I have tried calling the company which the message they have is in German. I have had no contact with anyone to rectify this issue. My dog was severely ill for over a week do to metal fragments. If he did not get better he was going to have to go back to make sure that there had not been any metal that was embedded in his intestinal tract, which would cause them to possibly have to remove part of that if it had died. I did not throw away the snacks I have kept them this whole time. I do have the lot number which matches the product.	2	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	94	Pound

I didn't bother reading the reviews as when I clicked on the reviews it said 66% were 5 stars and the overall rating was a 4 1/2 star so I ordered 3 bags to bundle and save. The first day I arrived and I fed it to my dog he starting having diarrhea and I mean like 6+ times a day and he never pooped that much let alone had diarrhea like that. We've been feeding it to him for 15 days and every single day is the same of diarrhea and recently he started vomiting and we've tried to cut down the amount that we were feeding him and he hasn't been pooping or having diarrhea as much but still does. Even with cutting down his food he has been still vomiting. After awhile of feeding it to him I decided to go on Amazon and start reading the reviews and found out that even though it had a 66% 5 star rating there were tons and tons of people talking about how the food made their dog sick with diarrhea, vomiting, and some even vomiting or pooping blood. They spoke about how the moment they stopped their dog eating that food they were fine and ta ked about how their dog was perfectly fine before having that food. His vet referred him to a cardiologist who performed additional testing and confirmed dilated cardiomyopathy. He was given 6-12 months and the cardiologist recommended we switch his food as it could be the cause. He's on 8 pills per day. After 2 years on the meds, he had a repeat echo which showed part of his heart had healed, confirming the cause was his food and not genetics. The scaring from his heart injuries has now caused arrhythmias and he is undergoing additional treatment. Between his vet bills and meds, we are thousands of dollars into treating him on top of the trauma this has caused him. This was a new brand of food that we transitioned our dog onto. The bag was opened sometime mid February. The food had a slightly stronger odor than our previous brand but we thought it was how it should smell. Im a new dog owner so I naively thought it was a smell dogs would like. I noticed a week after opening the bag that some pieces had a lighter color. I scratched at them and nothing came off so thought like it just had three different types of morsels. The food very slowly started to smell stronger a couple days ago and one morning I opened the bag and it was like rotting garbage. I realized that morning that the discolored morsels had grown fuzzy mold. I called Petco and they sent me a replacement 15lb bag. This was on 3/7/23. This new bag has a very strong sour smell to it and I knew not to give it to our dog. Luckily our dog is ok. Honestly she loved eating bag number one which is scary. I could have kept giving it her and killed her. To us the food was supposed to smell this way and it so gradually worsened that we really didn't notice until it hit a tipping point. EON-525875	3/8/2023 16:56	All Products Rush Direct Sells	Rush Direct Inc. located at 890 N Wood Dale Rd, Wood Dale, IL 60191 is not adhering to food safety practices, FSVP, truth in labeling, and consistently miss-labels their products. I have personally witnessed the owner Charles Ferreira direct the warehouse staff to relabel expired products with new code dates. I have also witnessed Charles and Alci direct the warehouse to falsify the country of origin. Several Halloween Products were shipped to Walmart with the product labeled as coming from Mexico when a significant portion of the product actually came from Brazil and was expired. There are over 60 pallets of product located in the warehouse that has long code dated that the owner Charles is attempting to sell to customers. Some of this product has been infested with bugs on more than one occasion, then fumigated. In January, PetSmart came to do an audit. Prior to the audit, Rush direct removed 5 trailers worth of product so that PetSmart wouldn't see that they were attempting to sell expired products. Rush failed the PetSmart audit within the first ten minutes of the audit due to infestation and other issues. The packaging equipment used to pack the bones and various body parts for consumption by dogs have never been cleaned. This poses a serious salmonella risk to the consumer. Alci, Charles, Vera, and Enrique do not care at all about food safety and put the workers health along with the animals health at risk. Rush Direct hired a new QA Manager in the fall of 2022. She quit when she discovered how bad things at Rush Direct really are. Since her departure they put Alci in charge of food safety when she has no experience and doesn't understand how to effectively execute food safety programs. Rush often only tells customer that they have a single warehouse located at 890 N Wood Dale Avenue. In fact, Rush Direct has three warehouse at the below addresses: 1050 Arthur Ave, Elk Grove, IL 60007 2100 Lively Blvd, E k Grove, IL 60007 890 N. Wood Dale Rd. Wood Dale, IL 60191. During previous audits, Rush has hidden the 2100 and 1050 addresses from the auditors. This is due to the fact that no food safety programs are in place at either of these two facilities. Please visit all three of these facilities before another dog or cat gets severely ill as a result of the owners decisions. Rush Direct should be shut down to prevent further issues. In full transparency I was fired from Rush Direct about 2 months ago. I've continued to see products I know are expired and have food safety risks on sale at several retailers. I wish to remain anonymous to prevent getting sued and or harassed by Charles Ferreira.

EON-525854	3/8/2023 14:00	NutriSource Large Breed Chicken + Rice	I purchased a bag of NutriSource (by Tuffy's) Large Breed Chicken + Rice dog food from (b) (6) on 1-16-2023. Half-way through the bag, on February 12, I went to scoop the food out and found it was infested with beetles, moths, and larvae. I safely disposed of the infested food and thoroughly soaked the container with bleach, then rinsed with Dawn dish soap. I went back to (b) (6) and got a second bag. On March 6, again on or about at the half way point of the bag, I opened the container to find beetles, larvae and moths. I reported this again to the place of purchase, (b) (6). I also contacted NutriSource. NutriSource wipes their hands of culpability, but how could two bags of food be infested? They claim that there must have been a "tear" in both bags. I think not! I think this was the same lot (it is sold in small quantities) and they are unwilling to admit a problem.
EON-525829	3/8/2023 10:24	Zignature food for dogs complete and balance diet for a puppy to adult dogs crafted in the USA with globally sourced ingredients. Trout and salmon formula limited ingredient formula	My English bulldog has many allergy issues. He is now almost 7 years old and has been eating the signature, trout and salmon, formula, dry food for most of his life. I decided to make treats out of the trout and salmon formula in the can. I have been doing this for approximately two years, and have been buying the canned food by the case to save money this past year, I noticed a change in the consistency of the canned food, but did not give it much thought. My English bulldog started showing signs of allergy issues, making sure to only feed him this food to control the issues. However, they became worse. He had a terrible infection in his ears and sinuses, I have spent over $600 in the last two months on his health and then I decided to illuminate the canned food to see if that was the issue and it was. He is on the road to recovery and I am happy for that but very concerned what caused this issue. I also have two other dogs one is a puppy that I would also give the wet food to she at times refused to eat it and I wondered why I'm assuming it bothered her stomach and I did notice issues with their number two when they went potty, it did not look right and had a slimy Consistency at times. This is frustrating as a consumer when you try to buy the higher and food and changes are made for whatever reason by this company and my dog being the one to suffer and also myself dealing with this was very heartbreaking. I love my dog so much and to see him getting sick was really scary, thank you for your time. Sincerely, (b) (6).

He's had a chronic cough for years that we just associated with an old injury but now believe were the the first signs of CHF. About a year ago his coughing got so bad he was struggling to breath and coughed up fluid several times a day. We took him to the vet where they did an x-ray and confirmed he had an enlarged heart and was going into CHF. Symptoms he's had since the diagnosis: Coughing, Trouble Breathing, Shortness of Breath, Fluid Build-up in the Lungs, Coughing up Blood, Loss of Appetite, Loss of Mobility, Etc... Since then weve had to put him on several diffrent medications to improve his quality of life, but at this point he is coming to the end of what treatment can do for him. I don't want anyone else to go throuh this and am taking all of our dogs off of the products you listed. Currently my mom has 2 toy aussies (6yo & 3yo females) on Rachel Ray Nutrish, both are extremely active, don't eat alot, yet are still overweight. My boyfriends dog, a german shorthair pointer (2yo & extremely fit), has been on it for a year but will not be eating it after this. I had not noticed the pieces when I did the day time feeding because they blended in better with the color of the food. By night time the food had turned a darker color and dried out leaving an alarming contrast between the food and the foreign objects. I closely inspected things including a fresh can of the same food. All cans have extremely hard, sharp pieces of what looks like bone in excessive amounts. As it was not immediately identified that the root cause had been the food, as the dog had previously eaten this brand of food, the dog continued to be fed the remainder of the can, with increasing severity of diarrhea. The dog was temporarily moved to limited diet to treat the diarrhea. Upon recovering (approximately 1 day after being taken off the food), all GI symptoms were gone. Within days of eating the new food we noticed (b) (6) had stopped eating. This was around the same time he had been proudly catching mice so I associated the new symptoms to possibly something from the mice. (b) (6) was a very healthy and active kitty prior to this. I took (b) (6) to the vet who did blood work. It showed he was having liver issues plus a lot of other stuff going on and I started following the vet's advice with stuff received from the vet. I did my best to keep him alive for the next several months but he died in severe pain in mid November 2022. We finally decided to get a new cat recently. We cleaned out all his old toys, threw away the litter box, etc. since the vet could never confirm what was wrong with him. The only thing we kept was the food since it was a brand new 18-20 pound bag and we assumed the mice had made him sick. We adopted a new cat from the local shelter. They sent her to the vet, had her checked out, got her shots, de-wormed her, etc. before she came home with us. Within only 3 days of having the food she started showing the exact same symptoms. After a lot of research I'm afraid there could be mycotoxins in the food. I still have almost all of the food and I'm willing to send it in for testing but I can't afford to have it tested. I don't however have the bag it came in. She began having diarrhea and was straining to go more constantly, was vomiting, too. She would not eat Tuesday or Wednesday, but was drinking and urinating. I suspected possibly the pig ear (piece of it) might be lodged in intestines. The vet did an X-ray, but saw nothing, did an enema, and there was no obstruction. She was given antibiotics and anti-nausea meds, finally began eating on Thursday.	12	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	50	Pound

The following morning he had explosive diarrhea and vomiting that lasted over 24 hours. I called my Veterinarian and was told to not to give him food for 24 hours and then follow up. I purchased a food from them for digestive issues and slowly introduced it to him the following day and his stomach slowly healed. I gave him two more of the treats from the same bag last night, 2/24/23 and the same thing happened. This morning he woke up with explosive diarrhea. From February 19-21, a local dog-sitter was feeding (b) (6) the product while I was out of town. When I returned on the morning of February 22nd, I found my dog lacking energy and her food bowl was not empty of kibble. When I poured a cup of kibble into her bowl, she did not eat it at all. I noted that she would drink water but refused to eat the kibble nor her Proin. That evening, when she followed me up a flight of stairs, she appeared very unsteady on her feet and collapsed at the top of the stairs. The following day (February 23), she was very unenergetic and still did not appear to be very steady on her feet. I offered her the kibble out of my hand and she ate approximately a dozen pieces and then refused any more. I had a different brand of kibble in the house, so I proceeded to give her the other brand, which she ate. Today is February 24 and with the change in kibble, (b) (6) has her normal energy and appetite back and is no longer unsteady on her feet.	13	Years	Retriever - Labrador	Dog	46	Pound

She claims she did this about 4 p.m. The next morning at about 7:30 a.m. my dog puked and dropped dead. I looked at the puke and observed two large pieces of the jerky. It seemed strange to me that the jerky did not dissolve in my dog's stomach I ke the dry dog food I fed my dog the evening before. It appears my dog could not digest the jerky, but it could digest the dry dog food. I suspect my dog went into shock and her heart could not handle the shock. EON-524701	2/21/2023 23:32	Purina Pro Plan Veterinary Diets EL Elemental Canine Formula	Symptoms of nausea, and bilious vomiting started appearing on ~21 January and became progressively worse to include total inappetence, salivating/drooling at bowl, less active/somewhat lethargic, frequent/high volume peeing, and excessive thirst 2-2.5 times normal water amounts between 21 January and 8 February. His primary vet, (b) (6) had also been contacted on 6 February for a prescription of Cerenia (60 mg once daily) to address the inappetence, nausea and daily vomiting. By 8 February, it was clear that he was not going to eat at all. He kept spitting food out and refusing to swallow when I tried to force him to eat. He couldn't be seen by his Internal Medicine Specialist (IMS) at (b) (6) until 2/21/23, so I made the decision to bring him to the emergency room at (b) (6) on 2/8/23. (b) (6) was admitted to (b) (6) and hospitalized under the care of the Internal Medicine Service from 02/08/23 to 2/14/23 for vitamin D toxicosis secondary to ingestion of contaminated Purina EL that is currently being recalled for elevated levels of vitamin D. Both myself and his IMS (b) (6) did not become aware of the Purina EL recall for potentially toxic levels of Vitamin D until 2/9/23 (FDA announced it on 2/8/23). (b) (6) had been eating Purina EL since 11/14/22. It was confirmed that he had been eating out of at least one bag that matched the lot number and UPC code for the Purina EL recalled food. Following consultation with Pet Poison Hotline (Case #3517334), (b) (6) was treated with fluid diuresis (0.9% NaCl + 15 mEq/L @ 60 mL/kg/d) and one dose of zoledronate (0.25 mg/kg diluted in 100 mL NaCl) IV. He has responded well to treatment and his chemistry is being monitored weekly to ensure he continues to improve. It is impossible to know at this time, what long term health issues may develop with (b) (6) due to this issue. Nothing was ever found to be a problem, so Pepcid and dog food types were used. For a little over a year, I was using 4Health Sensitive Stomach. He did well on it. I recently came to find his coat was dry underneath and bit different in texture. I considered changing food again. Upon opening a new bag of food, I fed my boy in the morning. Later he looked like he didn't feel good. We went outside in the yard and he roamed around and I heard him puking. Soon after we went into the house. My daughter and husband arrived home from school pick up and we were in the kitchen when my husband noticed our dog was on all fours but crouched down, he coughed like he was choking, then collapsed to the floor and died right before our eyes. We were of course hysterical and no amount of tears could bring him back. I was devastated, tried to recount the day. Called my vet, and she agreed it sounded like a heart attack. Later I was given information about DCM Dilated Cardiomyopathy from GRAIN FREE dog food. The brand I was feeding was as such and I have beaten myself up over feeding him that food. 			I would like to know if this dog food I bought is poisoned, because, perhaps just coincidental or not, this happened the day I opened a brand new bag. Do you test dog food? My beloved dog, my walking buddy, my companion who was just going to turn 10 in 4 days, died before my eyes and I couldn't save him. I'm appalled that this grain free diets continue to be marketed and fed to our pets with clear indication of the health problems that it potentially brings. Leave the nutritional science of our dogs to the experts, such as Science Diet whose products have been sent to the back of the store at Petsmart all because they now sell to Walmart. They line their shelves with an inundation of product that leaves many people confused as to what to feed their pet. It is madness. I would like to have this bag tested for possible poison. Maybe high Vit D? but I feel the grain free diet was his demise. The only symptom I see in my dog was a very dry undercoat, a but unruly as was previously. I was just getting ready to look for another dog food!!!! but he just DIED, on my floor of a heart attack. You are the department that is supposed to PROTECT consumers but you're not doing it!! PLEASE bring this issue to the front, and end this terrible tragedy that many pet owners are experiencing.

We gave our two beagles the new bag of dog food after receiving it, and they both began vomiting and having diarrhea to the point of getting blood in their bile and poop. It, unfortunately, started close to the time the vet closed on Friday, Feb 10th, and we got them to our vet on Monday, Feb 13th. Their condition gradually worsened so we weren't as concerned until late Sunday and early Monday. We switched to rice and chicken late on Saturday, Feb 11th once we were able to make our own homemade food. Between late Sunday and early Monday, they would not eat or drink anything from the earlier poisoning. The vet on 2/10 did blood tests and fecal tests to look for bacteria and noted the weight loss. We began giving them the anti-diarrheal and probiotics that afternoon. The vet noticed the beginning of dehydration, so we gave them both some IV supplements. They gradually improved by the end of this week, but we, unfortunately, ran out of homemade food. So we gave them both another serving of the original dog food between late 2/17/22 and early 2/18/22 (1-2 servings). They both ate it (the Wholefoods serving) last evening. (b) (6) did eat it this morning, but (b) (6) sensed not to eat it this morning after having soft poop the morning of 2/18/22. EON-524420	2/18/2023 1:40	Friskies Prime filets Salmon and Beef in sauce	On February 9th,2023 I opened a can of Purina Friskies cat food for my cats and there was a sharp piece of metal in the food, luckily I noticed before dishing out to my cats! I kept can and lid and sharp piece of metal after taking pictures .I contacted Purina and spoke to a woman named ^{(b) (6)} who was a supervisor and she apologized and asked if I saved can and top n metal piece and I told her yes and told her I had pictures, she asked for can upc number and expiration date and she asked me how much I paid for the product and I told her 28 dollars because it was from a variety pack, she had told me she'd overnight me a refund and a postage paid envelope to send them the can and sharp piece of metal I had found. So by the 11th I still hadn't received anything so I call Purina again and I spoke to a guy named Dennis whom also was a supervisor and he didn't know why ^{(b) (6)} hadn't sent it out, so he said he'd overnight it Monday and I told him it was a holiday that day so he said he'd get it out Tuesday and I'd receive it Wednesday or Thursday, I received it February 15th. After I talked to him I emailed about our conversation and that it was unacceptable and also told them that they aren't taking complaints seriously because I had complained before about thier paper thin cans back in October 2022, because I had purchased from Chewy and Amazon and all cans were damaged and all they would do than too was refund me. They have numerous complaints on Google, Chewy,Amazon and Facebook regarding thier cans allowing the product to become contaminated and making people's cats very sick and some have died! They've known of can issues but contine to cut corners and NOT take complaints seriously! After I spoke with ^{(b) (6)} on February 9th I emailed them my pictures as she had asked for. They say they care about people's fur babies, but yet continue to do nothing about complaints!
EON-524412	2/17/2023 23:24	Iams Large breed chicken and whole grain recipe	I fed my dog her kibble for dinner (2 cups) about 7pm from a new, unopened bag. A little over 2 hours later she became restless, quickly followed by violently ill. She continued to throw up and empty her stomach. She also had violent diarrhea. I checked the rest of her food and found that some of the kibble (again, brand new bag) was discolored. There were pieces tinted red/pink, some that were entirely green, and others shades on between. When I found this I went through the bag closely and found more pieces of kibble that were discolored and or just very unlik the rest of the kibble. I contacted the pet ER as I was unsure whether it's mold, some other additive, poison, or something else altogether. Pet ER had me monitor her for the night. My dog continued to be violently ill through the night and next morning.	3	Years	Shepherd Dog - German	Dog	78	Pound

EON-524371	2/17/2023 15:56	ROYAL CANIN DIGEST SENSITIVE THIN SLICES IN GRAVY FELINE CARE NUTRITION	I opened a can of Royal Canin brand wet cat food--type: Digest Sensitive. Upon opening the can, I immediately smelled an acid-like, sickening odor and the contents were a "chocolate" color liquid (I saw no food content whatsoever). There is no doubt that this can was either or both highly toxic due to contamination or possibly a biological hazard (possibly botulism or simoilar). This can of food is part of a case and I still have the remnants of the toxin triple bagged in plastic. I also have two remaining cans from the same case (Note: one of the cans was used and is now empty; the other is unopened. I still have another full case, which I believe to be has the same lot number as the toxic can. I have a photograph of the toxic can showing the chocolate colored liquid after opening. Note also that some of the contents of the can splashed on me and my kitchen counter and floor. Lysol spray would not remove the acrid odor and I switched to bleach to try to remove all of the liquid from my kitchen. I have used this Royal Canin product for a number of years and noticed the quality has degraded. The manufacturer has substantially increased the amount of water in each can and reduced the amount of solid cat food. That may be an improper labeling issue since the consumer is receiving less actual cat food and more water for the same labeled product. I will never forget this incident since it was beyond appalling--there is no question in my mind that this can was adulterated, toxic to pets/humans, and possibly a biological hazard (I ke botulism). I have a photo of the opened can showing the toxic liquid (as mentioned) and two cans from the same case lot (plus another unopened case). I also have the toxic can preserved in triple plastic for analysis if needed.
EON-524362	2/17/2023 15:04	Omega.Caps for Cats and Smaller Dogs Concentrated Fatty Acid and Antioxidant Supplement	4 unrelated dogs from the same household received "Omega.Caps For Cats and Smaller Dogs". The manufacturer's website states the capsules contain 200 IU of Vitamin A/capsule. We have not heard back from our submitted inquiry to the manufacturer. We independently tested the supplement at Midwest Labs and the capsules were found to contain 45,000,000 IU of retinol/100 grams (360,180 IU of retinol/capsule) (see below for report). We then started working to try to gather necropsy samples (liver specifically) for further testing of dogs 1-3, which has been very challenging given multiple institutions have been involved. For dog 4, the serum vitamin A concentration was 2,678 ng/mL (400-1,200 ng/mL), and the liver vitamin A concentration was 12,000 ppm (<400 ppm established in livestock species).	8	Months	Dachshund - Miniature	Dog	4.4	Kilogram

She would not go near it, and she is a voracious eater. I went to the store and reported it, but they just gave me my money back. Two days ago I opened another can from this case (btw, some of these cans were dented, but not to the point of food being exposed) and it has a smaller type kind of pus thing, so I did the same thing and only gave my cat 1/4 of can, she did eat some of it, but has behaving very weird since then (hiding and not coming to the bedroom at night, which she does every night) and eating very little of the small size can I gave her. She usually eats the 5.5 oz can and more if I let her. So I have set up a vet appointment, and reported it again to Petco store. They looked up and saw there were not any recalls. Thursday morning I saw that she had regurgitated the worms and she was very lethargic and less responsive than normal. I brought the worms back to Petco and told them what happened and the cashiers did not seem to care and told me they could give me another exchange. I went over to the fridge where the worms and other live food are kept and I pulled out 3 containers of worms, I opened them all and two of them were all dead and extremely moldy, and the date on the containers said they were from early November, 2022. I grabbed the only one left which was from January 11th and made the exchange for the last time. The next morning, my snake was extremely lethargic, dehydrated, and was not eating. I made an emergency appointment at the vet early on Friday (b) (6). The doctor informed me that if the worms were spoiled that it most likely would kill my snake. EON-523475	2/7/2023 23:20	Soursop Leaf Noni Leaf Mamaki Leaf Guava Leaf Ko'oko'olau Leaf Hawaiian Sea Salt Kiawe Powder Palo Santo Smudge Stick, Essential oils flower essences ALOHA bottles dried herbs (Mamaki kookoolau noni guava soursop etc) and western herbs raw herbs (Ti leaf and fern) Hawaiian sea salt palo santo white sage	We are submitting this complaint in order to request you to investigate a business in Hawaii. The name of the business is Ohana Healing Institute / A'ala Herbal Bar + Aromatherapy. The business offers many aromatherapy, herbalism and animal care therapy classes, and sells the products such as essential oils, dried and raw plants, flower essences and other materials manufactured by themselves. And we have several concerns about the business. Our concerns are below. The business says that their products such as essential oils, flower essences, herbs and other materials are 100% "organic", however, they don't have any authorization by FDA, ASDA or any other organizations. It means that they are just saying "their products are organic." Some of us asked the business if they are going to get authorization by such organizations, but they are not going to do it. The business says that their essential oils and other materials are manufactured by themselves in Hawaii. Thus, people think that their essential oils are made from Hawaii and some of them sell the products as made-in-hawaii products in Japan. However, in fact, the business buys those essential oils from a manufacturer somewhere out of Hawaii, and fills the materials in bottles or bags at the business owner's home in Hawaii. Because the business sends the materials from Hawaii and says that materials are from Hawaii or paradise and/or tropical resort, people misunderstand that those materials are made in Hawaii. And the prices are extremely high.
			Especially regarding the 5 blend oils, ALOHA bottles, sold by the business, the business clearly says that they extract the oils from the plants at home in Hawaii. However, they don't. They have never done it. They just buy the essential oils from a manufacturer out of Hawaii, make blend oils with the essential oils and sell them to customers. The labelings of those essential oils prepared by the business don't mention enough information. Especially the ALOHA bottles mentioned above, don't show any contents and we are not sure what is included in each bottle. We asked the business about the detailed information for each material, however, they never answered. Incidentally, the Hawaii business pretends as if their own materials are safe and legal through their social media by complaining about other businesses. For example, the Hawaii business advised people to take a look at the labelings of the essential oils and other products very carefully since many other businesses have failed to follow the regulations or law. But actually the labelings of the Hawaii business's products have lacked enough information which they mentioned on their social media. We are also concerned about the flower essences manufactured by the Hawaii business. They make all flower essences by using plants at home in Hawaii, sell them to people in the U.S. and Japan. The Hawaii business directs the customers to take the essences internally and externally. However, in the same as their prepared essential oils/blend oils, the labelings of the flower essences lack much information.

T H ii i l i ' l ' H ii V)

		The Hawaii business explains that they use 'alcohol' (Hawaiian Vodka) to preserve the flower essences, however, the labeling of the flower essences doesn't say anything about the alcohol. (it just says 'sugar cane' and 'mineral water'.) We also asked the Hawaii business what is included in each flower essence, but they never answered. Moreover, there is a lot of misidentification of the plants made by the Hawaii business. The owner of the Hawaii business says she graduated from the UH (University of Hawaii) and her major is herbal medicine (La'au Lapa'au) on her profile. However, according to the UH office, it was cleared that she never goes to the school. In short, she has made false statements about her educational background. And she is teaching herbal medicine/ Hawaiian healing through her own classes by using her false educational background, and selling herbs to people. That is why most of her knowledge and information about the plants/herbs and other materials are incorrect and sometimes risky. For example, she introduces several alien plants as native Hawaiian plants. She uses poisonous plants without enough knowledge and information. She includes poisonous sap of the plants and incorrect plants in the flower essences. Because she removes flowers from the essences before selling them to the customers, we totally don't know what plants she is using in each flower essence. It is possible that some of their flower essences don't include anything, just water and vodka. Under this situation, the Hawaii business has started to offer 'classes' named Dog Therapy using essential oils and herbs. They teach how to use essential oils and herbs to cure diseases and injuries of the dogs. And they sell essential oils and herbs in order to feed the dogs internally and externally. Of course, the labelings of each product don't mention enough information. The labelings just say the name of the plants and amount. (We never know the scientific names and other information such as the origin of the herbs. Even if they are on the labelings, the scientific names may be incorrect due to the Hawaii business owner's lack of knowledge as mentioned be incorrect due to the Hawaii business owner s lack of knowledge as mentioned above) Some dried herbs are powders and the Hawaii business directs dog owners to feed them along with other pet food. The dried herbs prepared by the Hawaii business include native Hawaiian plants even though the owner of the business doesn't have enough knowledge. (She is not a herbalist nor a professional aromatherapist. She has a certified aromatherapy certificate but many people point out her knowledge and risk of her teaching.) Soursop leaves are included in one of the products in order to be used by humans and dogs too. The Hawaii business sends ti leaves and ferns from Hawaii to Japan. But those leaves are not completely dried because the business dries the leaves by themselves at home. The Hawaii business has never obtained any inspection nor permission to import the raw leaves from Hawaii to Japan. The Hawaii business sends all products from Hawaii to Japan (and inside the U.S.) as "gifts", not as the commercial products. The Hawaii business also sells the fragrant tree sticks, Palo Santo, to the customers in the U.S. and Japan. But they never got permission to import them from the origin of the trees. Rather, we don't know where the Hawaii business purchases the fragrant tree sticks. We asked them where Palo Santo came from, but they never answered and just said their products are all 'organic'. White sage is also sold in the same way as above. Lastly, the Hawaii business sells salts called 'Hawaiian sea salt'. However, as mentioned above, the labeling only says the name 'Hawaiian sea salt', therefore, we are not sure if the salt is from Hawaii. According to the regulation and law, when we sell(export) the sea salt, we have to follow the specific rules, and when we sell the 'made-in-hawaii' products, we need to follow specific guidelines and get the autholation. But the Hawaii business never goes through the process, and they just sell the packages showing 'Hawaiian sea salt', therefore, many people believe the 'Hawaiian sea salt' is from Hawaii and pay money for that.

		What we are explaining in this complaint can be proven through the social media and the website of the Hawaii business. Some posts made by the Hawaii business were deleted purposely after we have pointed them out to them, however, plenty of evidence still remains. Though their social media and website are shown in Japanese, we would like to request you to take a look at them very carefully. We can provide you with the evidence since we have saved the screenshots of their posts. We would like you to take this situation very seriously and investigate the issues very carefully.

EON-523432	2/7/2023 12:24	Royal Canin Selected protein PD	I had been unable to get the cat's Royal Canin PD wet food in late 2021 because of sourcing issues. I had called Royal Canin and was told that by the representative that spoke with. I gave both cats a different canned food until I could get the Royal Canin again. In January of 2022 I was able to get the Royal Canin again and ordered a case from Chewy. I noticed that my older cat, who had previous health issues didn't seem to be well and I took her the vet every month for 4 months. The vet was unable to identify the issue. In late April, my older cat suddenly got very ill and then died 4 days later. Right after that I saw the my other cat ^{(b) (6)} became very ill. Diarrhea, with some bloody. Vomiting off and on. Urination issues. I rushed her emergency twice and she almost died. She had a high level of rod bacterial in her intestinal track. She dropped weight very quickly as did my other cat before she died. I had stopped feeding ^{(b) (6)} the PD for about two weeks and she seemed better. I reintroduced the PD back into her diet and she became very ill again and almost died. This took place over about a two month time period. After seeing what happened to ^{(b) (6)} and how the food affected her, I fully believe that the food is the issue and that it killed my other cat.	13	Years	Domestic Shorthair	Cat	12	Pound

The last two weeks she has been lethargic and vomiting on and off. We thought the vomiting was possibly induced by her just eating too fast. Today, as I was sitting with her she experienced what seemed like a neurological event, I thought she was having a stroke. Her arms and legs locked up and she was unable to walk/move for approximately one minute. She seemed disoriented. She regained consciousness/the ability to move but I immediately took her to the vet and they drew blood for lab work. Since we got home we have been researching about this food and all we can find is a recall for this brand of food in 2017 in Australia along with a video of a cat experiencing very similar neurological issues. We're throwing away this food. We just hope to raise awareness in case other people's cats have been affected by this brand. Dog Dental Formula - Keep Dog Breath Fresh and Teeth Clean - Supports Gum Health - Dog Water Additive Dental Care Targets Tartar	(ON AMAZON)I HAVE COPIED AND PASTED ACTUAL REVIEWS FROM PET OWNERS: "This for sure gave my dog diarrhea. It did work for her teeth and breath but then she started having stomach problems. Stopped the product and then went I started it again, she had diarrhea again. Returned." •"Smells fine dog drank no problem. After a couple of weeks unexplained diarrhea and vomiting "possible blockage" after X-rays showing severe inflammation pup had Ultrasound no blockage unexplained inflammation. Coincidence?" •"My dog had a seizure after drinking the water with the mixture in it he never had a seizure before so I'm not gonna take any chances I'm not letting him drink it anymore" •"I used a total for 2 bottles adding a little less than the recommended amount- 3/4 tsp instead of 1 tsp per cup of water. I was concerned about some of the ingredients possibly being harmful and our 15 year old Chihuahua. After using this product our 65# pit bull had no issues. But our 15 year old chihuahua became withdrawn and stopped eating and drinking water. I stopped the product and after discussing the with our veterinarian found out that there are several chemical ingredients that could cause severe dehydration and even organ failure especially in small or elderly dogs. After 2-3 days of not eating she finally began to feel gradually better. I had to hand feed her and give her other liquids so she would drink. All in all I think it's not worth losing my dog. So I'll continue to brush her teeth manually. Some of the ingredients are known to cause cancer!!" •"I read the reviews from other people but I didn't believe it, I never thought a company would put out a product that could kill your dog, but this company did and this product is it. I gave my dog 1 table spoon with 10oz of water twice a week and he lasted a little under 2 months to the day I received this product. He was a healthy 8 year old English cooker spaniel. All of the sudden he didn't want to eat and couldn't get up, I took him to the vet and he had a developed a hole in his stomach and there was nothing we			Terrier - Yorkshire	Dog could do as he had gotten an infection. It's all due to this product. Please stay away from this evil company and don't buy their products." •"I used this stuff and while it initially worked, I had to change my review because my dogs had to be taken to the vet because of this stuff. Both of my dogs had a clean bill of health before I started using this stuff. I only got it because they had dog breath and I was told by a friend that this worked. I don't feed them store bought food so it's not a dog food issue that caused the problems my dogs are now suffering from just since they started this product. They eat a very specific diet but they had terrible breath. This worked in the beginning. My dog Beans began having serious dental problems since I started using this product in his water. He may lose some of his teeth. He had a clean bill of health JUST BEFORE STARTING THIS. He now has blood in his urine and is being treated for a bladder issues. Since this is used in the water, it gets ingested and lands in the bladder on its way out. I'm praying there is not more damage already caused by this product! This product is poison. Our dogs cannot verbally tell us this stuff is making them sick. We can only SEE the issues after the damage is caused. Don't buy this product if you love your pets. This will make them very sick or could kill them." •"I followed the instructions and my poor boy became very sick and started having partial seizures, stopped eating and drinking. He is only 2 years old and has always been healthy and active. When I took him to the vet, they ran tests and found he had crystals in his urine. i do not recommend this product at all! After a week of being off of the dental formula, and getting that crap out of my babies system he is back to normal." •"After using this product for a few weeks my dog became lethargic and limping. He also lost his appetite and had mucus in his stool. After going to the vet checking blood, urine and doing X-rays to see what was wrong - nothing showed up. It finally dawned on me the only thing different was the Dental Formula I added to his water. It has only been 4 days since we stopped using this product and my dog is slowly getting better. His appetite has picked up and his energy a little better each day. To think that this additive was making my dog sick --- heart broken since I thought I was helping him. Every dog may be different - I am just grateful that I figured it out before it got worse. My opinion: it is not worth the risk. Update: 10 months later - still not 100% healthy."

		•"I have 2 dogs, different breeds, about the same weight. They are older (>10 yrs) and both have gum disease. I decided to try this product as teeth cleaning is expensive. I put it in their water and within 8 hr. one of the dogs had a seizure. She had NEVER had 1 before. It was bad! This was late at night. The next morning she had another one, it was worse. We immediately took her to the vet. She checked Kati out and drew lab work. She stated that many times in a dog over seven, seizures were caused by a brain tumor. We took her home and she had 4 more seizures that day, each increasing in intensity. Sometime after the 5th one, it hit me! These seizures did not start until I put the Dental Formula in their water. I didn't think that's what it was, but decided to quit giving it to them anyway. She HAS NOT had another seizure. That was 10 days ago. The vet was skeptical that the Dental Formula is what caused them, BUT... So just a heads up, that is just too much of a coincidence for me. Had I known I would have saved $350. And not gone through a horrible day worrying about Kati." •"After 2 doses my dog became lethargic, breathing changed to deep gulping. Stomach appears very bloated. Very worried!" •"This came in a dented metal bottle with a torn seal. My dog will not go near his water when I add this product." •"I will NEVER buy this again. Let me start with I have 3 small dogs (2 chihuahua mixes and a lemon beagle puppy). They drink roughly 38 ounces of water a day. I measured how much water went into their bowl so I was using the correct amount of this product. The bottle did not last long so the cost in my opinion did not justify the

		this product. The bottle did not last long so the cost in my opinion did not justify the means. The puppy threw up every day within 10 minutes of drinking and lost an adult palm sized patch of top coat from his scruff. Originally, we did not associate the hair loss or vomiting with Pet Lab until the bottle was gone and his vomiting stopped and the hair began growing back. None of the dogs had better breathe. While the chihuahuas are older, it did help some with plague and not having to brush their teeth was nice. However, realizing afterwards that is have been giving them something full of a carcinogen made me feel like an awful dog parent. We rescued them to give them a better life and this product is not part of that." •"I never write reviews. Don't use this product. After about 3 months of use my dog started to have bladder issues. She is passing blood through her uretha. She also has had seizures(she has epilepsy so not sure if it's related) Don't risk it!!!!" •"I should have done my homework before buying - put it in my dog's water and then spent the rest of the evening taking him outside - horr ble reaction - diarrhea and vomiting. I re-read the bottle and saw the warning on the bottle to keep away from children and domestic animals!!! Then I looked up the ingredients one by one one of the ingredients (Stabilized Chlorine Dioxide) is FDA approved as a disinfectant or surface sanitizer!!! Two of them (Tetrasodium EDTA and Methyl Paraben) are on the list of the 5 top chemicals to avoid - from an independent testing lab - Paraben is a carcinogen and EDTA is made from formaldehyde and sodium cyanide. I'm very disappointed that this product would be marketed for pets - not to mention my own lack of research before purchasing and how I put my dog thru this. DON'T USE THIS PRODUCT"
		•"I would not recommend this product as it made my dog sick, listless, she couldn't jump up on the couch like normal I assume from abdominal pain. Very scary, I gave her one dose. Hoping this behavior will pass and she will be back to her self soon!!! She screams when we touch her abdomen?? I am very mad at myself for not reading more reviews and causing her this pain!" •"Although this product has good reviews I did not notice the bad ones unfortunately. after giving this to my dog he started shivering and acting uncomfortable and weird. I then realized after reading other reviews that other people were saying the same thing. It does seem to work for other people but I don't think the ingredients is healthy. I'm not sure if it depends on the dog but I would not recommend this for my pet. I am throwing it out." •"I used about 4 servings over 5 days. My dog was throwing up and super lethargic. I realized it was a possibility after I read the directions on the bottle but never imagined it would be so bad. I measured carefully and the dosage was correct. $30 plus dollars is a lot of money to waste to make my dog sick. Obviously it didn't work. They should offer a smaller sample size if it can make an animal that sick in a few days. Would actually be afraid to give the rest to a friend." •"Please don't buy this product! Our chihuahua is dying from CHF and heart failure after using!!! used a total for 2 bottles adding a little less than the recommended amount- 3/4 tsp instead of 1 tsp per cup of water. I was concerned about some of the ingredients possibly being harmful and our 15 year old Chihuahua. After using this product our 65# pit bull had no issues. He dedicated blood and diarrhea for two days and has still not stopped. The vet linked it to this product specifically. It cost me hundreds of dollars in vet bills and my poor dog is sicker than I've ever seen him. STAY AWAY" •"I bought this for my 4 year old Boxer who was having some terrible breath and some swelling in her lower teeth. This product advertised to help the swelling and the foul smell. Rather it changed my dogs behavior, she became distant and did not want to drink from the water bowl we had been putting this in. This caused her to have shivers and it looked like she was in some pain. We stopped this immediately after. Do not buy this product. I feel like it may have caused her some harm. Please do not buy this. I'm watching my pup closely now as I hope this passes." •"please do not buy this it is dangerous for your dog! the chemicals they use are cancer causing. I have 3 poms and was giving it to them diluted cause they require 1tsp per 8oz so I was giving 1/2 tsp 2 of the 3 dogs started throwing up after 3 days. 2out of 3 had bloody diarrhea which I when to vet with all 3. Blood work, stool samples, meds to help with vomiting and the diarrhea cost me 1800 in vet bills. BUYER BEWARE!" •"I stupidly purchased this product without doing sufficient research. Its active ingredient, Chlorine Dioxide, is mainly used as an industrial disinfectant. It may (or may not) clean a dog's teeth, but that doesn't mean it is safe to use. Adding chlorine bleach to your dog's water might make his teeth a bit whiter, but that doesn't mean you should do it. It also has a noticeable odor. After using it for about a week, my dog began vomiting. I discontinued use immediately. My vet advised that chlorinated products like this can disturb the natural bacteria in a dog's digestive tract, leading to vomiting. Remember, unlike products for humans, there is no FDA that regulates pet products that make health claims. At the very least, ask your vet BEFORE you use."
			•"I was putting this in my dog's water for about a month. It has not made any difference and, in fact, I've had both of my dogs to the vet recently with digestion issues. This is the only food/treat that has changed in their diet. When I showed my vet, I was told that some of the ingredients were not good for my dogs. I just missed the window to get my money back. So not only did I spend $40 (tax and product), but I also spent over $200 on vet bills. The worse part is, I feel just awful I gave my babies something that was more detrimental than helpful to their health." •"I have noticed my dog vomiting once every other day. But today, my dog has been vomiting non stop. I never thought that I'll be the one to kill my dog with this product. Save your fur babies and do not give this to them. Horrible people selling this." •"Bad product caused my perfectly healthy pup to have a seizure to keep me know something was wrong. I started giving to my pups after teeth veining and noticed paw chewing started soon after, but did not know why. One month later one of my pups had a seizure so I researched and others have reported the same. Do not use. Brush with a cosmetic pad. Doggie enzymatic toothpaste and your finger daily if possible" •"This Dental Solution almost killed my dog. It didn't work to freshen his breath. Plus, it made him so weak and sick, I was ready to have him euthanized...and for that fact, I stopped using the solution...and after a few weeks of stopping, he began to get better." •"I tried this product as directed for a full month on my 10 pound dog. There has been no effect whatsoever. In exchanging communications online I was told that it was probably due to the health of my dog. However, my dog has a clean bill of health, as I have traveled with him internationally this year. Due to this, he's probably been seen by a vet more than ever. He has no health concerns. I would not waste your money." •"Used this product yesterday for the first time with both of my dogs. One of them is fine the other one whom I thought had a iron clad stomach pooped and pucked all fine the other one whom I thought had a iron clad stomach, pooped and pucked all over my living room last night. I don't know if this product works but it didn't for one of my dogs abs I have 2 medium size (75 bs) dogs." "Do not purchase ... My Dog got sick with in 24 hrs after putting this in his water... He will not eat and will not sleep. Something is wrong. I have never used this before and will never again get something I ke this. I will report this to Manuf." •"After using this my 9 year Old chihuahua developed pancreatitis and had to be hospitalized . After ta king with my friend who's Chihuahua also died several years ago and also had pancreatitis we discover that her dog has been using this exact product as well!! Please do not buy this is not say it cost you the life of your dog" •"We only tried it for one day as our dog immediately got sick. She vomited and had diarrhea for several days after only one dose. Not only was it a waste of money, but caused our dog distress. She wasn't herself for several days." •"BUYER BEWARE!! I bought this for my 12 yr old dog, Sadie. Her teeth are looking bad, and due to COVID, I was trying to avoid taking her to the vet for a teeth cleaning. After only two days of adding it to her first bowl of water in the morning, she had horrificly scary, mostly pools of blood, diarrhea! I took her to the vet then and they said she had a really bad stomach bacteria infection. Now she's on four different meds and prescription dog food for the next two weeks. My poor baby!!! DO NOT BUY THIS PRODUCT!!" •"Beware: Methyl parabens are carcinogenic. In the ad methyl parabens are the last inactive ingredient. On the actual bottle, it is the first ingredient. Ingredients are listed in order of concentration...SO there are relatively high levels of this cancer-causing ingredient in this product." •""Product purchased through company directly. Did not know the damage this was causing to my dog until one day she stopped eating and became very ill. Pancreatitis the vet said, after finding my 11.5 yo Dobie dehydrated and wobbly on her feet. $2000 dollars later, after 2 days of vet treatment (IV fluids/a battery of tests/ all day stay at doctor etc), she did not get better and progressively became unable to get up, stand or walk independently. She was a healthy senior dog...Recently had her check up, and this poison, marketed so innocuously made her sick to death. Literally. PLEASE read the label carefully. Also, dosage of 1 tsp per 8 oz of water makes no sense without taking into account the size/weight of your dog. Something is not right with this kind of dosing. The directions on the bottle say daily 1 tsp and yet when I received emails questioning dose, the company said that for "efficacy" to add 1 tsp oer 8 oz, 2 tsp per 16 oz, etc, to fill her water bowl. There are many adverse reactions that have come to light and it is no coincidence when others have had similar experiences. I am sick about it, and now can only warn others. Please find a different, more natural product that isn't about feeding your dogs chemicals. There is NO other explanation for the quick deterioration of my once vibrant and healthy fur baby. I am so mad at myself for not reading the label more carefully, nor the many reviews that out this product as not only useless, but TOXIC. I failed to do my usual research, trusting that this product would indeed help my dog. NO!!! It did not. My dog became so unwell. I cannot bear to think that it is my fault that she is no longer alive. . .That a product, seemingly harmless, affected my dog's pancreas, nervous system and heart. She was a healthy senior dog...Recently had her check up, and this poison, marketed so innocuously made her sick to death. Literally. PLEASE read the label carefully. Also, dosage of 1 tsp per 8 oz of water makes no sense without taking into account the size/weight of your dog. Something is not right with this kind of dosing. The directions on the bottle say daily 1 tsp and yet when I received emails questioning dose, the company said that for "efficacy" to add 1 tsp oer 8 oz, 2 tsp per 16 oz, etc, to fill her water bowl. There are many adverse reactions that have come to light and it is no coincidence when others have had similar experiences. I am sick about it, and now can only warn others. Please find a different, more natural product that isn't about feeding your dogs chemicals. There is NO other explanation for the quick deterioration of my once vibrant and healthy fur baby. I am now $6000 in debt from hospital bills. I am sickened that the USA has such substandard laws regarding chemicals in our ingest ble products. Although from further investigation this company is based in London I also have learned a big lesson and

EON-523119	2/2/2023 21:40	Rewardables Hide Free Chews for Dogs Lot code 2190 Part number BGRW97510 Item # 97510 Best By Date July 31 2024 Made with USA Chicken in Mexico	We gave (b) (6) the Hide-free Chicken Recipe Chew for Dogs to chew on in the afternoon, and she ate it, and that night she began throwing up, first the contents of her stomach, and afterward, frank blood. She threw up ~13 times, ~10 of which were frank blood. Toward the end of her vomiting, she started pooping, and after the first bowel movement, every subsequent bm (5 times) consisted of pure blood. We took her to the Emergency Veterinarian (where she proceeded to vomit blood and poop blood again), because she was so sick and we were worried she might die. The Emergency Vet assessed her and were very concerned. They kept her and gave her SQ fluids, injectable medications, and monitored her frequently. They wanted to keep her overnight, but once she was stable, we elected to bring her home and give her the additional oral medication and monitor her at home, since I have a medical background. She was extremely sick. We treated her at home with a few other treatments and also brought her in to her Veterinarian for follow-up.	1.5	Years	Spaniel - King Charles Cavalier	Dog	21.5	Pound

EON-522765	1/30/2023 14:08	Royal Canin Selected Protein PD Sauce in loaf	She died on (b) (6). She had been on a special diet because of her digestive issues. It was the Royal Canin PD dry and wet food food. It is the wet food that I believe did this. She had been on the same food for a very long time, but for several months at the end of 2021 the wet food wasn't available. I called Royal Canin and they said that they had to find a different source for the food because they couldn't get it where they had been. So I gave (b) (6) and my other cat a store bought brand and they were ok. In January of 2022 when the Royal Canin became available again, I begin feeding them that food again. (b) (6) started having health issues. She was already thin, but began losing more weight and I took her to the vet every month for 4 months trying to figure out what happened. On (b) (6) she began going down hill. Because of the pandemic my vet was closed. I did everything I could to support her through the weekend, but by the time Monday came around she was in terrible condition. She got very stressed at the vet and I didn't want that to be her last memory, so she died at home in my arms at 8:30 in the morning on the (b) (6) She was an older cat and I thought it was just her time to go. When my second cat almost died shortly after, I realized something else was going on. I feel that the wet food is the issue. Fannie was peeing all over the house (huge amounts), drinking enormous amounts of water, needed to go out to pee ever 40 mins and waking up multiple times at night needing water and to go to the bathroom. Her Blood was run and her calcium score was alarmingly high-score of 14-vet immediately told me to stop using the food. She is still not 100% better but symptoms have improved-she is still a lot more tired than normal. I was basically told that this was most likely lymphoma or renal kidney failure. Chest x ray and ultra sound of kidneys ruled out lymphoma and kidney disease. Her blood was run again 2 days later and sent to the University of Michigan for further testing. Her calcium score was still elevated but not as high as the blood test 2 days before.. We just got her vitamin D test back today-the original test was so high that the University of Michigan called my vet and said "you need to make sure the owner takes the dog off whatever food they have been consuming immediately" and they retested the blood. 2nd test came back with a score of 1,110 for vitamin D. My vet said the high range for vitamin D is 423 and my dog was almost 3 times that!!!! My vet said "unless she got into poison the only other source would be the dog food. And I'm pretty sure if she got into poison she would not be with us at this point." What do I need to do to test this food-this batch needs to be taken off the shelves immediately and I hope you haven't killed any other dogs in the meantime. My vet said he was thankful I brought her in when I did -he has never seen levels this high and a few more days on that food would have killed her. As you can imagine the past 2 weeks have been exhausting and emotionally heartbreaking. The thought that this food could have killed my dog is unimaginable. I need someone to call me so I can figure out next steps. The University of Michigan is aware of this situation and said the food needs to be tested with the FDA. Purina is liable for all of this-after all this is the food that almost killed my dog. I hope this doesn't cause permanent damage and future health problems for my dog. We use it to compliment his dry food. I have notified both Purina as well as chewy in the past of poor quality canning seals on the 5.5 oz. Aluminum cans at least 2 times in the last year. Chewy thankfully refunded the damaged cans as well as the poorly sealed cans and we expect chewy to do that again. However, in this last shipment we received 2 cases of the exact same product and 16 cans of the product were so poorly sealed I could feel the rim of the seal top with my fingernail as well as super tiny food particles.. 2 of the cans also leaked inside the case bottom which could have brought about mold issues in our storage area. I have notified chewy we will NO longer be ordering this product. We are highly concerned that if their basic canning inspections are that bad that an entire layer (12 cans) of poorly sealed cans were on the bottom, the other case the poorly sealed ones (4) were mixed on both top and bottom. I am truly concerned for cats (not just ours) that eat this product will be injured by various microorganisms that come from bad canning practices (such as botulism). We are paying nearly $48 a case for 24 cans of food!! We customers and our cats deserve better. And I would like the FDA to inspect their canning practices safety as well as educate them on the terrible and painful things that can happen when poorly sealed product is sent to customers. The only reason I knew not to feed those cans to our cat was because I learned a lot in the trucking industry as a driver and a loader. Not all of their customers have the same education I do. EON-522330	1/26/2023 11:53	24 bs CANIDAE Pure Puppy Real Salmon & Oatmeal Recipe Product # DD0211G24001	Product in question - Canidae, Pure Puppy Real Salmon & Oatmeal Recipe, Dry food (b) (6) a healthy 2Y shepherd mix with no prior health conditions, was recovering well from an elective OHE about 3 days prior. On (b) (6) the pet was BAR until about 12:00PM, where she yelped and collapsed suddenly; pet was not breathing or responsive. Owner immediately brought pet to ER and was determined DOA. Advanced resuscitation efforts were performed by the emergency veterinary staff but were unsuccessful. Owner elected necropsy. Necropsy was performed on (b) (6), and reported necrotizing colitis, and noted apical necrosis of the large intestine mucosa that was covered by significant bacteria; the cause of death is unlikely due to recent OHE per necropsy findings. Prior to incident, the pet was in excellent health and had normal pre-operative labs. The pet had aspirated during her surgery, however, and the contents was noted to be extremely foul-smelling, orange, and large in quantity, despite the pet being fasted for 12 hours prior to the procedure and given Cerenia intra-op. The necropsy report does not indicate aspiration pneumonia as a cause of death. The pet was consistently fed the same diet (Canidae) prior to the incident. Owner reports that the pet had not had any other food or treats outside of their regular diet, and the pet is not a known culprit of dietary indiscretion or foreign bodies. The pet was also not having diarrhea prior to their death. We are concerned that the pet's diet (Canidae) may have caused foodborne illness and thus contributed to the sudden fatal event for (b) (6) The owner has kept the bag of food that the pet was being fed from. The owner has 1 other dog in the household (Male/Intact, 8 months old) that was being fed the same food from the same bag, up until he developed diarrhea (he is now being fed a Rx bland diet).	2	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	50	Pound

EON-522321	1/26/2023 11:53	Top of the Rockies Hay Cubes	On the evening of December 6th 2022 my horse was found down in his pen. We tried to get him up on his feet. He was trying to stand and was unable to do so. He was displaying neurologic symptoms such as leg tremors and rolled eye movements in between trying to stand and laying down. He was not thrashing or biting at abdomen as is seen with colic. We were unable to hear any stomach sounds and he was unable to get up after an hour of trying. Due to the veterinarian shortages in our area we were unable to get a vet to my location. Due to his age, the cold conditions, his inability to get up, the inability to load him in a trailer, and lack of veterinarian assistance we were forced to euthanize the gelding. If not euthanized he would have froze to death that evening. After his death it was brought to my attention that there was a possible feed contaminant in the Top of the Rockies Hay cubes that I at the time was exclusively feeding both of my horses. They were not fed any other feed, and I at the time purchased cubes from the company weekly.	23	Years		Other Mammals

The next night, Saturday, (b) (6) my fish had fallen ill. It could not swim properly due to what I believe was its swim bladder failing. It could not control where it swam or maneuver itself in the water. On Sunday, (b) (6), (b) (6) eyes were cloudy and the protective slime coat on its body was coming off in strands. The fins were deteriorating and its abdomen was bloated. Eventually, (b) (6) couldn't move anymore and lay at the bottom of the tank for hours until its gills couldn't work. The fish died that same night. I have owned and properly cared for this fish for almost seven years and have never had any issues with food poisoning. These algae tablets were the only change in my controlled tank environment, and it was no coincidence that my healthy fish of seven years died within two days of eating it. Not only did this fish die, but five other of my healthy fish died after eating the algae drops, one of which I've had for seven years as well, and three that I have had for over eight months.	7	Years		Fish

Upon opening a new bag of Purina Pro Plan adult sensitive skin and stomach salmon and rice dry dog food in November 2022, (b) (6) (Boykin Spaniel) began having stomach inflammation, bloody stool, lethargy and vomiting. An emergency room vet visit revealed no blockages in his gastrointestinal tract and his blood levels were normal. The vet added an over-the-counter probiotic. We switched him to a bland diet of rice and beef for 2 weeks until the blood stopped appearing in his stool. upon weening (b) (6) back onto the purina dog food the bloody stools and lethargy appeared again, and we put him back on a bland diet for 2 weeks. We took (b) (6) into the vet again and they gave him a probiotic and an antibiotic for 10 days. this relieved the bloody stools again. again upon weening (b) (6) back onto the purina dog food, his stools exhibited a mucous coating, and he was lethargic again. After 2 days of the purina dog food and mucous in the stool merlin started to refuse the food but eat other food items, specifically refusing the purina dry food only. EON-512671	1/18/2023 10:16	Hill's Science Diet, Hill's R/D	My dog was impacted by copper-associated hepatopathy thought to be due to over-supplementation of copper in commercial pet food. I implore the FDA to take corrective action to lower the maximum copper concentration in commercial dog food to mitigate this avoidable and potentially fatal illness. My experience shows: 1. The risk of Cu accumulation in the liver of breeds not genetically predisposed is real. My dog was 100% American Pit Bull Terrier (Embark). 2. Copper Storage Disease (CSD) is a stealth killer. Liver value changes in bloodwork can be subtle (not alarming) even in the presence of toxic Cu accumulation. Veterinarians use "rules of thumb" to determine concerning liver enzyme values. Following the AAFCO's 1997 change in requirements related to copper supplementation, these long-trusted rules are now outdated. My dog appeared completely healthy, however his ALT climbed from 94 to 181 in one year. His vet was not concerned about ALT <300, but I pursued investigation. A liver biopsy showed toxic levels of Cu (1500 ppm). 3. Diagnosing CSD requires an expensive, surgical biopsy of the liver and costly ongoing treatment – financially out of reach for many pet owners and traumatic for the dog. My cost exceeded $20,000. 4. Commercial (moderate cost) low copper diets are manufactured to address all types of liver disease. However, their low protein & high fat content is not suitable for all dogs with CSD. For my dog, an expensive custom diet was the only suitable option. 5. Inducing potential Cu poisoning of a dog's liver via feeding of commercial dog food, compromising this vital organ, can impair the treatment of other medical challenges a dog faces as it ages. My dog was later diagnosed with transitional cell carcinoma centered in the prostate. His compromised liver was unable to handle the NSAID recommended as part of the treatment. I do not believe commercial dog food is safe and am trying to get the word out to other pet owners!!	12	Years	American Pit Bull Terrier	Dog	85	Pound

I gave it to her on Tuesday out in a small enclosed area on my front porch, in which, she shattered it I ke glass in minutes and ingested hundreds of shards. I called my Vet and they instructed me to take her to the Emergency Vet before it got into her digestive tract, where xrays and some other proactive measures were taken. The next morning, I found her hiding in the bushes, as animals typically do when they are leaving the pack in order to die. When I touched her, she snapped defensively at me , in obvious pain. I took her back to the Vet and had more xrays done and fluids injected. Shards were found lodged in her intestines. I was told to bring her back for a third day to ensure that the shards had passed, or have surgery. Thankfully, they passed. I have attached several pictures to illustrate, along with her Vet bills, which also include a few minor, unrelated items. I lost my wife, suddenly, three months ago, so thankfully I was home during my leave to keep an eye on (b) (6) I was a General Manager for years of various companies. I even was the GM of PETCO at one point and understand that pet products are not under USDA, or similar protective controls. I also noted a small warning on the side of the label, to supervise your Dog when eating. Most people would trust that the product they buy from a trusted place would be safe. All the Vets at (b) (6) , (b) (6) and your own employees have said to never give your Dog one of those bones. One of your Cashier's lost a Shepherd that way. My concern is "Why sell them, then?" I went into your store to calmly and rationally explain my concerns. Up to this point, and including today, I have been reasonable and understanding of the situation They were kind enough to provide me your number and I wanted to give you every opportunity to make this right. I have expressed my concerns to my friends online, who have also encouraged me to reach out. Pet safety and care need to be more important than profit. The next time this happens, a pet could certainly die. Mine almost did I researched online and this is what I found.... As a follow up on (b) (6) incident, I did some brief research online and, with little effort, found these 22 similar experiences on these trusted sites (see below), some as old as 7 years I also found an article (see below), where an owner's pet DIED, and the company had their counsel use the fact that there is a small warning label on the side the of the package should have been read, inferring that it was the owners fault.. Our client has been pleased that over the last decades there have been very few incidents of harm to pets from our client's bone products. As is commonly known, and as provided in our client's labels, there are notices that pets should be supervised when being given a bone product. Should a bone product splinter or fragment, it should be immediately removed and discarded. Attached hereto for your ready reference is a copy of packaging containing a notification and recommendation for such supervision. The fact that there have been numerous complaints, and they have previous knowledge of their product causing injury and death is inexcusable! And for them to use the legal out of "there was a warning label provided" is deplorable. What person watches their Dog eat a bone? You should be able to have confidence that they provide a safe product, or at least would have a more conspicuous warning. There may be a legal exit, but not a moral one. They knowingly let a proven deadly product remain on the shelves and state "Our client has been pleased that over the last decades there have been very few incidents of harm to pets from our client's bone products "	6	Years	Retriever - Labrador	Dog	85	Pound

Bones Splintered These rib bones splintered badly - my dogs are dedicated chewers - and I didn't give them the last two. They enjoyed them, but I won't be ordering them again. Maybe these bones would be good for dogs who don't chew aggressively. Disappointed I really didn't like them, they were thin and too easy to chew a part. not for true chewers My dogs splintered these in a matter of minutes! I thought these would be similar to the slow roasted marrow bones, which are virtually indestructible - no such luck! Too Brittle I found these to be to brittle. My dog was able to easily brake them apart and swallow sharp pieces. I wont buy them again. My big dogs destroyed these in a matter of minutes Maybe these bones are better for smaller dogs. A couple of them literally fell into pieces as I unwrapped them. The bone split creating a large splinter. I was afraid my dog might choke. The bone split creating a large splinter. FDA issues warning that some dog bone treats could be deadly
By: Kim Tobin
Posted at 10:51 PM, Dec 04, 2017

A Valley woman says her dog died from intestinal issues about two weeks after eating a pork bone treat she bought at the store. She wants to share her story with other dog owners as the FDA comes out with its warning about the dangers of dog bone treats.

"I've never been close to a dog like I was her, at all," said Christine DeBusk. "So it was really hard."

"They did X-rays and found it was lodged in her," said DeBusk. "They broke up most of it, but there was a piece they were a little concerned about. They said as long as she's not showing any other symptoms the antibiotics should help."

"I looked at her, and all of a sudden, I noticed she wasn't breathing," said DeBusk "I was shaking her. The kids came out and they were crying."

			After 15 dogs died, the FDA just released a warning, telling pet owners to stay away from the bone treats sold in stores. "They splinter, they break off, they get lodged into the body systems," said Sandra Moore, director of the veterinarian assisting program at Carrington College. Moore says the pieces of bone can get stuck around the curves of the intestines. "Those blockages are going to be what causes the most damage," said Moore. "And sometimes, irreversible, leading to death." After Lilly's death, DeBusk shared her story on Facebook. Her post received more than 55,000 shares. "She's going to save thousands of lives and that's huge for us," said DeBusk. And the family got a new dog. They rescued a deaf dog named Mindy, who was scheduled to be put down. "She's definitely brought joy back," said DeBusk. "And we say Lilly helped, because she looks a lot like her in a lot of the pictures." The DeBusk family has been reaching out to many different corporations, hoping to get dog bone treats pulled from the store shelves. Smokehouse Pet Products, Inc. has released a statement via their general counsel regarding the DeBusks' incident: We are general counsel for Smokehouse Pet Products, Inc. On behalf of Smokehouse, its principals and staff and our office, we acknowledge and understand that the loss of a pet is a traumatic experience, and we extend our sympathy to your caller for such loss. EON-512465	1/15/2023 16:24	First Mate dry dog food 11.4kg (25 lb) bags	Have discovered puncture holes in the inner corner folds of the 11kg (25lb) bags of First Mate brand dry dog food. These holes are hidden from view from the consumer. As science dictates, air introduced to a food product or organic material will oxidize and degrade creating the environment for bacteria, mold and pathogens. I feel this procedure is putting any pet at risk of mold, bacteria and other health risks and can make a pet sick, damaging vital organs or worse. There is no label to inform the consumer of this practice to allow the consumer to make an informed decision if they feel they wish to purchase or feed this pet food to their pet. These holes are present from the moment the bags are filled and its freshness and questionable quality degrades from this point on, not when the pet owner or consumer first opens the bag. I find this practice of puncture holes in the manufacturer's bags and not making this practice known to the consumer deceptive and feel this practice needs to be noted on packaging or to cease altogether. Until the manufacturer changes and improves its packaging methods and shows its commitment to food quality and exceeding the expectations of the pet owner community, I have ceased using this brand for which my dogs health has improved since.

After a visit to the vet with (b) (6) initially on Friday morning (he came down with symptoms first), the vet diagnosed him with inner ear infection. However, (b) (6) came down with the same symptoms on Friday night, so we visited the veterinarian again on Sat Jan 14th who then concluded that it is likely a toxic substance that they consumed through food. We eliminated all following possibilities: - Thorough examination of our yard (no mushrooms, etc found that they could consume) - They have no access to toxic materials inside or outside the house - Iams wet dog food as they get individual new cans with different lot numbers each day - OcuGlo supplement as the vet ruled it out; cannot cause toxicity We were left with the only option that could have caused such a severe reaction: - Rachel Ray Nutrish dry dog food; reason being is that we opened a new bag of food on Tue Jan 10th. 			There are several segments of moderately gas and fluid distended small bowel throughout the abdomen, as well as additional segments of small intestine which are normal in size. At the right cranial abdomen there is an approximate 2.7 cm irregular shaped mineral opaque structure summated with a distended bowel segment, and there is an approximate 7 cm long by 1.7 cm accumulation of soft-tissue opaque material within an apparently separate distended bowel segment. The stomach contains a large amount of gas, but appears to be otherwise empty. The large bowel is not clearly distinguished throughout its course separate from the small intestines. On the left lateral view there is the appearance of a mild hazy and wispy fluid opacity summated with the cranioventral abdominal fat ventral to the pyloric antrum near the body wall. The regions of the liver, spleen and kidneys are unremarkable. The urinary bladder is not within the field of collimation for evaluation and suspected empty. The caudal vena cava is thin. There is a small amount of gas within the non-distended esophagus. The portions of the thorax imaged are otherwise unremarkable. There is very mild chronic spondylosis at the thoracic spine. Assessment: 1. Segmental small intestine distention with atypical intraluminal mineral opaque structure consistent with a lodged foreign body resulting in obstruction of the bowel, and additional soft-tissue opaque material suspected within the small intestines, but possibly incidental feces within the large bowel. 2. Small caudal vena cava suggestive of hypovolemia (dehydration versus Addisonian crisis or shock). However, the appearance can also be observed as an incidental

EON-512382	1/14/2023 1:52	Purina Friskies Pate Mixed Grill (for December problem) in Friskies Pate Poultry variety pack box; September problem was Friskies Pate green variety box	In the past few months, my parents have twice had cans inside of the Purina Friskies pate cat food variety pack boxes fail. In the first instance (in mid-September 2022), we were alerted to the issue by a stench and found foul liquid leaking out from the unopened box of cat food. We carefully disposed of the entire box immediately to try to limit any further contamination to ourselves or my parents' home. In the second instance (in late December 2022), 2 cans of the mixed grill flavor from another box were stuck together and upon investigation we found that one can was bulging and had leaked liquid that was now dried onto the second can causing them to stick together. We again carefully disposed of the cans immediately to try to avoid contaminating ourselves or the other cans. Our focus was on safety so we didn't try to gather information from the faulty cans other than noting that the best-by date was September 2024 for the cans in the box for this latest incident. In both cases, the purchase was made at the Walmart in (b) (6), and the cans were stored at room temperature inside of a home after purchase. This level of can failure is concerning, and we request that the Purina Friskies canned pate cat food quality control, canning processes, and distribution channel to this Walmart be examined for the safety of all. Thank you for your help.

Within 10 minutes she began vomiting for almost 30 minutes until her system was clear. We fasted her for 8 hours then gave her half ration of her food until the next morning. Not knowing what the culprit was we gave her a bit more this morning with the same result as a week ago. We had previously removed all treats and have been slowly introducing one at a time back to try and identify what caused her to get sick. She does not have a chicken allergy and has eaten everything without issues other than her own picky self about wet food. EON-512086	1/10/2023 14:04	Orijen Six Fish	I purchased two bags of orijen 6 fish for my dog at my local pet food store. About 10 hours after his first meal from the bag he had a very soft stool, followed by liquid diarrhea every few hours thereafter. We've been feeding our two dogs orijen 6 fish or a variation for the last 13 years. Last summer both dogs had a very bad bout of diarrhea at the same time. We thought it was odd that it happened immediately after we started a new bag of food. Out of caution, we discarded the bag. (Our older dog passed away last fall.) EON-511821	1/6/2023 10:32	Canidae sustain duck recipe jerky treats	Hello, I'm contacting you in regards to a product that caused 2 of my 3 dogs to have an adverse reaction. About 30 minutes after feeding one piece of jerky to my dogs, my 3 year old dog had a major reaction on his face: severe swelling around his eyes and mouth. Soon later he broke out in hives on his face, neck, shoulders, chest. We assumed it was just an allergic reaction until about 6 hours later (in the middle of the night) one of our other dogs , 2 years old and healthy, started throwing up. This convinces us the treats are tainted in some way. Our dogs have no underlying health conditions, have never experienced an allergic reaction before and the dog that threw up, does not have digestive issues or easily throws up (it would be an extremely rare event). This is 100% linked to this bag of treats. There was absolutely nothing else the dogs were exposed to or could have eaten. No other treats or chews or snacks were given. We were with them the whole time indoors and when they went outside to pee, the ground here in ^{(b) (6)} is covered with a foot and a half of fresh snow from the day so nothing on the ground is even exposed they could have ingested. The diagnosis and treatment has been and will continue to be very expensive and subjects my dog to surgeries, blood tests, etc. and me to the emotional stress of caring for him. I am very fortunate that I am able to afford this diagnosis and treatment as I know many pet owners are not able to which will lead to the death of their beloved pet. EON-510244	12/16/2022 14:12	Waggin' Train Chicken Jerky Tenders	My dog ^{(b) (6)} began regurgitating all his food and stopped eating. He became lethargic and irritable. The only thing we did differently was give him the Waggin Train chicken jerky treats. Our other dog, ^{(b) (6)} also experienced problems. He had terrible diarrhea. He is only 1, so perhaps he could heal better than ^{(b) (6)} being an older dog. We took ^{(b) (6)} to the vet and his ALT liver enzyme was elevated (800, normal is around 80-120) and that is why he was feeling sick. The vet suggested that he may have gotten into human medication or something toxic. However, he is not the type of dog to get into things. We deduced that it was the treats and after looking into it more, we found articles on these same treats being recalled several times over the past decade due to trace amounts of antibiotic residue being found in the treats. Many dogs died or became ill after consuming these treats. ^{(b) (6)} is on antibiotics and nausea medicine now and has begun eating without throwing it back up, thankfully. The vet also gave him fluids in hopes to flush out the toxins. We are hoping he will make a full recovery, but he is still lethargic and not wanting to take his medicine.	5	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	75	Pound

The next day he opened another can from the same flat of cans and it smelled foul. So we stopped using all the cans in the flat. Both dogs have been to the vet the prior week for issues related to the olroy wet dog food with vomiting and diarrhea however we did not have the food tested or labs done on our dogs. They were treated with antibiotics and given fluids. I'm guessing that the whole 12 pack (teal) colored line is tainted because that's what they have been eating the last few weeks when they were sick.	15	Years	Pit Bull	Dog	64	Pound

After taking him to the emergency vet, ^{(b) (6)} was diagnosed with possible seizures and was hypothermic, continued to be unresponsive, and we were advised he should be euthanized. We requested a second opinion from our regular vet who recognized possible signs of zinc poisoning and identified metal was present in ^{(b) (6)} stomach through an x-ray. Following the surgical removal of the metal object, it was identified as a spent, mushroomed zinc-based bullet. ^{(b) (6)} continues to receive fluids and care at the vet's office and we do not yet know if he will recover. Per the vet, the onset of zinc poisoning in canines is very rapid and ^{(b) (6)} likely consumed the bullet within hours of finding him unresponsive. Because the treat was the only thing he consumed within the likely poisoning window, we believe the bullet fragment may have been inside the treat we fed ^{(b) (6)} at bedtime.	10	Years	Corgi - Welsh Pembroke	Dog

EON-509857	12/12/2022 13:08	Simply Nourish Deboned Chicken and Brown Rice	Who do i speak to about a bag of simply nourish dry food for seniors that i purchased for my 2 older dogs. I was very displeased about the last couple of bags of dog food i purchased. I noticed some type of bugs in the bag of dog food. Didn't alarm me completely the first time i encountered this issue because i figured it was just a one-time deal. Then it happened again ok cool, no issues. I just purchased again a close to 60$ bag of food again. Same thing again, bug here and there. Today, (12/12/22) really ended my relationship with this company because i poured more dog food in my dogs bowl this morning and saw worms borrowing in and out of holes in the dry food. SO today i was horrified. I really take good care of my fur baby tummies with feeding. For the most part i cook their food and add some dry food to the mixture. I am returning the bag of food to Pet Smart for a refund. They were willing to give me a new bag but i think this is a bigger issue seeing that i got the bags of food from two different Pet Smarts in two different states with the same outcome. I wanted to inform you of this in case there is an issue in the factory the food is packaged that you may or may not be aware of. I find this highly unacceptable. The next day later, when we opened it, our dogs refused to eat it. They wanted our 3rd dog's food (the Royal Canin large dog food). We thought they were just being picky, so we waited to see if they'd eat any of it. Eventually, they both are a few bits and have had recurring diarrhea. One of the two dogs has become very sick. A rice and chicken diet has been needed for them. We've disposed of the problem bag. However, we don't know if it's safe to buy a new bag, or continue the bland food diet. EON-509734	12/9/2022 22:24	Trader Joe's(R) Advent Calendar for Dogs Salmon & Sweet Potato Dog Treats	I bought this smoked salmon and sweet potato dog treat advent calendar at Trader Joe's (b) (6) in November 2022. My dog has had bloody diarrhea every day up to 6 times per day since eating treats from this advent calendar, starting on 12/2/22. It's completely liquid and now almost entirely blood. My dog is whining and in pain, and the diarrhea is severe and frequent. I saw that other users have reported similar adverse reactions to this particular product when I googled "trader joes dog advent calendar sick." My dog has been very healthy otherwise. He has consistently received correct doses of Iverhart Max and flea/tick prevention since he was a puppy. He goes to the vet for regular checkups one to two times per year. He eats cooked salmon and sweet potatoes regularly and is fine. I am trying to have a stool sample completed ASAP. The box says that the treats are made of smoked salmon "raised without antibiotics, from the cold waters of northern Scotland" (not fully cooked salmon). The batch number for the calendar is SS0099, and the expiration date is 04/2024.	6	Years	Hound (unspecified)	Dog	40	Pound

EON-509702	12/9/2022 15:56	flo dog	RE: flo dog Supplements for urinary tract health for dog from (b) (6) Batch = 2 Bottles (30 chews each [supposed to be]) First received a bad batch of flo dog supplements from (b) (6) in 10/2022. The supplements looked & smelled wrong. They normally would look like the color of a fruit roll-up (brown) and would smell like Flintstones Vitamins (kind of fruity) to us, but these ones looked much darker red/brown, dryer & sticky and would trigger a strong gag reflex (not fruity)... just foul/rotten smelling. I contacted customer service right away, who then acted swiftly to remedy the situation by sending us new batches; however, it took them 3 batches (6 bottles total as batches are always sent in 2's) to finally get us a good batch. 2 of the batches were also rotten. Customer Service Rep was then able to determine that the 3 bad batches (6 bottles total) were all from the same lot. She stated that she notified their warehouse manager and notated my file, and advised to just throw the bad batches away... which I did. Yesterday (12/08/2022) we received our new batch after incident, which I opened both today to inspect and they are all rotten again. In addition to the rotten looking/smelling supplements, I also discovered that the counts are also inconsistent. Each bottle should contain 30 chews. In the past I kept having issues properly calculating the correct timing between next

			In the past, I kept having issues properly calculating the correct timing between next shipments based on having 2 bottles (30 in each bottle) where we would give 2 daily (so should be 1 months' worth). After the 3rd time of having only 1 chew left over in a bottle, I finally dumped out the new bottle and counted. My last batch (good) had only 28 in one and this new batch (bad) has 31 in one bottle and 34 in the other. Our Vet, who prescribed these supplements, is closed today (12/09/2022). I plan to notify them on Monday (12/12/2022), when they are open again, of our continuous issues and strong concern for reliability of product's quality/safety with this company. With this being the 4th time that we have received rotten supplements and discovering the multiple inconsistent counts, we felt this now warrants bringing concerns to a higher authority. Our dog has not had any bad reactions with the supplements, but we also have never given her any from the bad batches. We have been using this product since 01/2022.
EON-509688	12/9/2022 15:12	Trader Joe's Turkey & Cranberry Recipe Cat Treats	My significant other purchased the Trader Joes Turkey & Cranberry Recipe Cat Treats from a local Trader Joe's. Upon getting home, we looked at the ingredients in the package and noticed garlic and paprika are noted as ingredients in the treats. Both of which can be toxic to cats and dogs. I then searched the product online and saw a few reviews of this product from other cat owners who report they gave these treats to their cat and the animal became sick afterward. I reached out to the local store we bought them from to make them aware that these were on their shelf and could cause harm to someone's pet to which they said they contact their manager. I also sent in an online form complaint to Trader Joe's about the product. I have not heard back from them yet about that request.

EON-509385	12/6/2022 17:24	Blue Wilderness Duck & Chicken Grill	A 12.5 oz. can of Blue Wilderness "Duck & Chicken Grill" dog food was purchased at the Menards supply store in (b) (6) this past October. I have a small 6 lb. dog that can typically eat about 1/3 of the can per serving, of not less in a typical day. Upon scooping out the last couple ounces of food for the final serving from this can, I was alarmed to notice two (2) small curved pieces of sharp plastic that appear to have been some sort of r bbed plastic "collar" broken into 2 segments. Each piece is about 9mm tall X 11mm wide by 3mm deep, forming a squared-off oval when joined together. What deep concerns me is this foreign object was discovered after 2 servings were already administered to my dog in the past 2 previous days, and now there is the potential that he could have already ingested any other contaminants that already were in the can. As a retired lifelong career nurse I can testify that any foreign object in the anatomy, whether it be human or animal, can lead to permanent intestinal scarring, blood flow blockage, tissue necrosis, and a host of other terrible fate to it's victims. This is not acceptable in our food manufacturing nor should there be any concerns about my family's safety when it comes to food manufacturing, at least in the modern United States. Per the package size question below I mix two proteins...they were in 1 b and 3lb sizes.	When portioning out my cats food (a commercial raw brand) this morning, I felt something hard. Usually when I feel that I assume it's bone and don't investigate it. However, this item (a lead bullet) stuck out because it was darker and shiny. At first glance I thought it was some sort of beetle or something. As you will see, it's not. I have 8 cats and have EXTREME concerns over what I've been feeding them all this time. EON-509035	12/1/2022 20:32	Earth Animal Plant based No Hide dog chew	After purchasing the product i noted that the interior of the chew roll appeared discolored. I unrolled the chew roll. I found it was made of multiple pieces, some oddly shaped, and the interior most piece was a dusty grey color as opposed to the balance of the chew roll material which was white. I questioned if this represented mold. I also noted an odor, that to me, smelled like rawhide. Knowing that apparently the FDA was not able to rule out that other varieties of Earth Animal No Hide chews contain rawhide, FDA sample 1020257 Chicken No Hide "Results are inconclusive as to whether product contains rawhide or not" and the assessment from FDA's Dr Rotstein "The statement that this is a "no- hide" product may not be accurate", I investigated further. I found that after applying iodine to the chew roll material, independent of the flavor coating, I saw no expected color change to indicate the presence of starch. I found this odd since the chews is purportedly a plant-based chew made primarily from rice flour, oats and other starch containing ingredients. I did note a distinct color change indicating the presence of starch when I applied iodine to the flavor coating. The chew weight was 31 grams on my kitchen scale. The coating weight read "0" grams. The coating is apparently a very small portion of the overall weight of the product. The results were perplexing. The first two ingredients of the chew are brown rice flour and oats yet it appears that these may only be present in the flavor coating, a very minor portion of the chew and not in the bulk of the chew. I next examined the chew roll material both macroscopically and with digital microscopy. I found that the chew roll material is an intertangled mass of fibers. and appears indistinguishable to me from multiple rawhide chews that I have examined in this manner. Note:I co-authored the published manuscript "Microscopic examination of dog chews: correlation of histological findings to product labeling". These finding are very concerning. The amino acid profile of dermis, which is what the bulk of this product appears to be is inappropriate and potentially harmful for pets with certain medical conditions such as a history of calcium oxalate stone formation or renal insufficiency. Additionally, based on the discoloration I'm concerned the product may contain mold or underwent putrefaction of some type.
