Dear Dr. Henney:

I am deeply concerned with the wide-spread use of antibiotics in livestock production. With the overuse of these antibiotics, people may become more susceptible to diseases that are resistant to antibiotic treatment. I believe the use of antibiotics as a method of fattening livestock should be banned when these drugs are also used to treat humans. I urge you to follow the European Union and leading health organizations in the banning of this use.

Thank you for your consideration in this matter.

Sincerely,

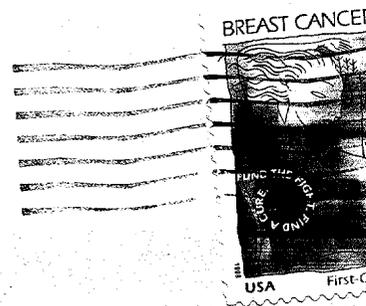

Julie E. Freeman
