Dear Commissioner Henney:

I am writing to urge the FDA to immediately take steps to ban animal uses of growth-promoting antibiotics that are used in human medicine. I live in a farming area in Minnesota and have many neighbors who extensively use antibiotics to enhance growth in pigs and cattle. I am extremely concerned about the implications to human health and to the fighting of disease that result from the overuse of these substances and subsequent increases in antibiotic-resistant microorganisms.

Please follow the European Union's lead and begin to take action to ban these practices in the U.S. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Susan Granger
