Dear Commissioner Henney:

This letter is of extreme importance. It seems that more and more, I am finding myself reading articles, hearing stories, and watching news reports about the diseases that are caused from antibiotics ingested into the meat we eat. Research has proven that the overuse of these antibiotics contributes greatly to the emergence of untreatable and deadly diseases in people. The research that I have independently conducted has led me to the belief that there is no reliable data on antibiotic use in agriculture in the US. As a person who eats, and enjoys meat, this is very disconcerting. Please, please establish a reporting system to determine the quantity of antibiotics in U.S. agriculture. Please make this a top priority for you and other incoming Bush administration officials at the FDA.

Sincerely,

Cathy Bazata, OTR/ATP
