Dear Commissioner:

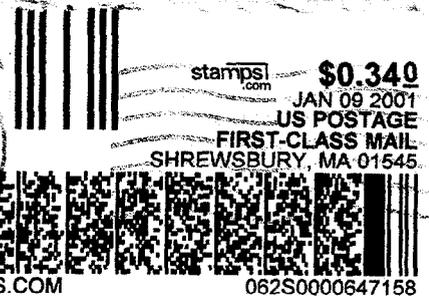

I think that one of the major food issues that we are facing is the issue of the the links between antibiotic use in food animals and the development of drug resistance in humans. With the new Republican administration coming in it seems to me that this would be a good time to help our food producers to take more individual responsibility for their products. (I think this is a good place to use W's phrase...) It is my impression the Food and Drug Administration has recognized the need for collecting such information, but has not yet taken action. While I also dislike the issue of more federally mandated paperwork, this is an issue that directly effects the safety of our food and our families. I hope this letter will assist you in the political issue of enacting the needed regulations.

Larry Lynch
