

Introducing the International Center of Excellence In Food Risk Communication

www.foodriskcommunications.org

About the Center:

- Established in 2011 as a collaborative initiative among global food and health organizations.
- Founded on the belief that it is important to have a collective international resource of food-specific risk-communication materials.
- Dedicated to enabling informed decision-making to promote global health.

The Center:

- Convenes credible and influential governmental, communications, and health authorities to maximize their individual and collective reach and effectiveness for the public good.
- Contributes to the international body of knowledge on food risk communication.
- Increases the effectiveness of food risk communication, thereby enabling informed decisions about food safety, nutrition, and health.
